School Officials Under Fire In Unification Row

Tam High Aides Defend Use Of Articles In 'House Organ'

Tamalpais Union High School District officials were charged yesterday with using taxpayers' money to try to influence the outcome of the April 20 district unification election.

John Cahill, finance chairman of the Citizens Against Forced Unification cited an opinion by Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino to uphold his charge.

The subject of Cahill's charge was the April issue of District Doings, a publication of Tamalpais Union High School District, which contained at least two articles, Cahill said, which "flagrantly" advocated unification.

Godino said that articles in the April 20 issue which reported pro-unification views of citizens and teachers groups and the district administration were "improper" under Section 1307 of the Education Code.

District Supt. Chester G. Carlisle said the District Doings is a "in effect, a house organ, not intended for general public circulation."

Carlisle said that articles reporting "what a campaign organization is doing, what a teachers' association has done, or what has transpired at an advisory council do not constitute advocacy."

Cahill's statement read in part: "I am shocked at the news that Superintendent Carlisle or one or more officials of the Tamalpais Union High School District staff have used district funds provided by taxpayers to try to influence the outcome of the April 20 unification election.

". . . The people responsible apparently feel that the end justifies the means. The public is entitled to expect its school officials to set an example as law-abiding citizens to the children entrusted to their care."

Five articles in District Doings for April dealt with unification. The lead article described how "several hundred" district employees were working for passage of the unification measure. Another said the district teachers' association was overwhelmingly in favor of unification. Others reported the support of the district administrative council and of the district trustees for unification.

Addresses Are Left Off Polling Cards

By BRUCE COLEMAN

Bevity has been stressed in the polling place cards sent out in sample ballots for Marin County April 20 school elections.

In short, the cards do not mention the address of the polling place.

John F. Musser, county supervisor of elections, said there were no addresses placed on any of the approximately 80,000 cards sent out in the county.

A Mill Valley woman telephoned the Independent-Journal saying her card says simply, "Presbyterian Church." Other cards read, "Community Church." "Old Mill School" "Fire House Number two, Homestead," "Almonte Improvement Club" and "Scott Realty."

Asked why addresses, placed on the cards in past years, were omitted, Musser said, "I'm not saying there was anything left off."

Asked for further information, he said, "I'll have to refer you to the county schools office. They are the ones that decide what the form of the polling place card should be. They furnish us with information . . . these are printed exactly as they were furnished."

He said information furnished his office by the county superintendent of schools office is sent directly to the data processing bureau. Musser indicat-

Storm On Way Out For Marin

The April showers which turned into a full-fledged storm tapered off today. Fair weather was predicted for tomorrow.

Snow fell atop Mount Tamalpais between 7 and 8 a.m. today but quickly melted, according to observers at the 666th Radar Squadron on the mountain.

Snow in higher altitudes has required motorists crossing the Sierra to use chains on sections of Interstate 80 and U.S. 50. Yosemite Valley had 15 inches of new snow with the level down to 2,500 feet.

Rainfall figures in Marin County for the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today were Point Reyes Station, 1.48 inches; Woodacre, 1.29; Tamalpais Valley, 1.12; Ross, 1.07; Mill Valley, 1.03; Fairfax, 1.00; Belvedere, .92 and Novato, .80.

The rain gauge atop the San Rafael Independent-Journal building recorded .52 of an inch of rain during the 24-hour period ending at noon today.

Nixon Pays Visit To Soviet Union

MOSCOW (UPI) — Former U. S. Vice President Richard M. Nixon today returned to Moscow, the site of his 1959 "kitchen debate" with ex-Premier Nikita Krushchev.

"We have both retired from politics involuntarily," Nixon quipped to American newsmen as he stepped from a train that brought him from Helsinki, Finland.

START OF MISSISSIPPI MISSION

Two seniors from the San Francisco Theological Seminary are shown at one of several collection depots where they loaded a two-ton truck today in preparation for a trip to deliver food, clothing and other items to Mississippi Negroes. One of the drivers is Thomas J. Blaney, shown being aided by "Marin to Mississippi" co-chairmen, Mrs. Joseph A Forest and Mrs. Albert Goldstein. Others are unidentified. Blaney and seminary student body president James A. Martin plan to leave tonight or tomorrow.

The Savage Cell

Mind Affects Cancer Victims

By PAT McGRADY
(Sixth in a Series)

It begins to appear that emotional stress is a factor in cancer. This is shown in animal experiments more clearly than in human studies.

Much of what has been reported on emotional aspects of human cancer seems fuzzy and fanciful, particularly to sound psychologists and psychiatrists.

Dr. Daniel Horn, a psychologist and co-author of the classical study which showed the statistical association between cigarette smoking and lung cancer, has stated that, amid the welter of contradiction on the relationship of emotions and cancer, one frequently reported finding is relatively undisputed: the loss of a personal emotional relationship (usually the death of or separation from a loved

Wirt, Companion Plead Guilty To 'Manslaughter'

Dr. Sherman C. Wirt and his woman companion, Mrs. Helen Calani, both of Corte Madera, pleaded guilty to reduced charges of voluntary manslaughter yesterday in the fatal shooting of a Virginia City contractor.

The couple had earlier been charged on an open complaint of murder in the death of Richard Ghilotti, 60, at his Virginia City home last May. Ghilotti, a widower, was shot four times with a .38-caliber revolver owned by Dr. Wirt.

Police said Dr. Wirt, 58, of 10 Corte Comada, and Mrs. Calani, 45, were drunk and incoherent when arrested after the contractor's body was found in the kitchen of his home.

The couple met Ghilotti in a bar and went to his home to discuss antiques, according to testimony at a preliminary hearing last year.

Dr. Wirt practiced in San Francisco. Mrs. Calani, who has a long arrest record and has been known under several aliases, was introduced in Virginia City as the doctor's wife in their frequent visits there.

Sentencing was set for April 23 before District Judge Frank B. Gregory. The couple faces terms of up to 10 years in prison.

Goldwater Ailing

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Former Sen. Barry Goldwater, hospitalized for treatment of a recurring back and neck ailment, today was reported "resting well and in good condition" at St. Joseph's Hospital.

SAN RAFAEL CITY HALL BIDS CALLED

San Rafael City Council last night called for bids on the long awaited new city hall after plans and specifications were adopted unanimously at a resumed meeting.

Bids will be opened May 14, City Mgr. Dan E. Andersen reported today. Cost of the building has previously been estimated at around $685,000.

Site for the new city hall will be on Fifth Avenue just east of the city library. Last night's meeting was again adjourned until Friday at 5:30 p.m. for the canvassing of ballots after Monday's election.

Rusk Unhappy Over Reaction To Talk Offer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said today he was "quite frankly disappointed" at the Communist response to President Johnson's offer of unconditional discussions on Viet Nam.

Rusk was referring to the North Vietnamese radio's denunciation of Johnson's Wednesday offer as "deceitful." Red China's initial reaction also has been negative.

The secretary made the comments to newsmen as he landed at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., on his return from a Central Treaty Organization (CENTO) meeting in Tehran and talks in Geneva.

"Quite frankly I have been disappointed in the reaction so far," Rusk said. But he said he wanted to read the Communist comment in detail.

Marine Planes On Viet Scene

Hoping For More Aggressive Role

COMBINED AP & UPI

DA NANG, Viet Nam (UPI)—Advance elements of a Marine Corps fighter squadron thundered into this air base this afternoon to add more punch to the growing U.S. Marine task force in South Viet Nam.

Four F4B Phantom fighters arrived after a five-hour flight from an undisclosed airbase in the Pacific.

The 1,600-mile-per-hour jets were led into Da Nang by Lt. Col. William McGraw of St. Louis, Mo., commander of Marine Fighter Aircraft Squadron 531.

McGraw said the rest of his twin jet tactical fighters were expected tomorrow. There are about 18 aircraft in the squadron.

The jets arrived shortly after the first of two additional battalion landing teams slogged ashore 10 miles north of here, to bolster the 9th U.S. Marine Expeditionary Brigade.

LONG WAIT

"I'll tell you, we have been waiting a long time for this," said Marine Commander Brig. Gen. Frederick J. Karch, as he welcomed the newly arrived pilots on the Da Nang flightline. "This is really great."

Karch said he hopes his Marine ground and air units would get a more aggressive role against the Communists.

Capt. Don K. Hanna of Costa Mesa, Calif., a Phantom jet pilot, said "We've been itching to get down here for a long time. The flight lasted 5½ hours. We had good weather and no problems."

U.S. Navy and Air Force planes carried out new strikes in Communist North Viet Nam today, knocking out one highway bridge, officials said in Saigon.

AIR STRIKES

Seventy five Navy planes from the carriers Ranger and Coral Sea took part. They hit the Kin Cuong Bridge on route 7, 150 miles south of Hanoi, and reported they knocked it out.

The Navy planes were over the target 30 minutes and all aircraft were said to have returned safely.

A Navy Phantom jet pilot said today Communist MIGs which jumped his flight near Red China's Hainan Island yesterday bore no discernible markings but came from the east and returned to the east.

At the time said Lt. Howie Watkins of San Diego, the flight of four American planes was

San Rafael Is Facing Monday Vote

Voters in San Rafael and such nearby areas as Terra Linda, Santa Venetia and San Quentin will go to the polls from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday in combined elections of the city and the San Rafael Board of Education.

They will pick a new mayor, fill two seats each on the city council and the board of education, and will accept or reject three city measures and two school propositions.

Charles W. Aby, a city councilman, and C. Paul Bettini, president of the board of education, are seeking the mayor's job. Neither will be out of office if he loses, since each has two more years in his present term.

On the council, incumbents Louis H. (Bud) Baar and Harry A. Barbier are challenged by Joseph R. Filippo and Irwin Taranto.

None of the four candidates for the San Rafael Board of Education is an incumbent. One, Lawrence I. Kramer Jr. is now president of the board of Dixie Elementary School District. The others are Walter R. Castro Jr., Kenneth M. Proctor and Laurence B. Thomas.

City measures include two proposed charter amendments affecting the city clerk's post, and a proposal for the city to build up to 50 low-rent housing units for the elderly.

The amendments would relieve the clerk of finance and accounting duties. The other would make his job appointive in two years. It is now elective.

Sought by the school board is an $850,000 bond issue to build multi-purpose rooms in 10 schools, and permission to raise the statutory maximum base tax

$8,500 Fire Hits Home In San Anselmo

Fire which started in the kitchen of the James Shelley home at 26 Oak Knoll Avenue, San Anselmo, early today caused an estimated $8,500 damage to the house and its contents.

Shelley, his wife and two sons were sleeping when the fire broke out, Mrs. Shelly said today. Their 20-year-old son, Ted, awakened to the smell of fire and alerted the rest of the family. All escaped without injury.

Sixteen firemen and volunteers from the San Anselmo fire department extinguished the blaze which destroyed the kitchen and back porch and burned into the attic and roof. Extensive smoke and heat damage was reported to the rest of the home. Cause of the fire is undetermined, San Anselmo firemen said.

Shelley, brother of San Francisco Mayor John F. Shelley, is a Marin County insurance Broker and bail bondsman.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Factory Workers

WASHINGTON (AP) — There were 17.8 million Americans at work in manufacturing last month, the greatest number in 21 years. The Labor Department reported yesterday that the average factor wage was $2.60 an hour and the average weekly salary was $107.38, including three hours' overtime pay.

'Russia Slandered'

MOSCOW (AP) — A Moscow newspaper published today the first Soviet reply to Western reports of racial discrimination against African students here. It said they were lies. The youth paper Komsomolskaya Pravda accused the American press of slandering the Soviet Union.

Red Leader Dies

TOKYO (AP) — The New China News Agency reported yesterday the death of Deputy Premier Ko Ching-shih of Red China after a "serious illness." Ko, who was 63, was described in a broadcast monitored in Tokyo as a "fine member of the Chinese Communist party."

Cable Car Delay

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The re-opening of San Francisco's cable car system has been delayed until Monday. The cars have been undergoing repairs and were originally scheduled to get back to work tomorrow, Sunday.

Tom Neal Indicted

RIVERSIDE (AP) — The Riverside County Grand Jury yesterday indicted former actor Tom Neal, 51, on a charge of murder in the fatal shooting of his wife, Gail, 29, in their Palm Springs home April 2.

U.S. Temperatures

NEW YORK (UPI) — The lowest temperature reported this morning to the U. S. Weather Bureau, excluding Alaska and Hawaii, was 22 at Pellston, Mich. The highest reported yesterday was 96 at Laredo, Tex.

Building Blast

EAST CHICAGO, Ind. (AP) — An explosion blew apart a half-block-long building of the U. S. Reduction Co. late last night, injuring 26 workers, one critically, firemen and hospital authorities said.

Air Strike Meet

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—United Air Lines officials meet Monday to determine whether the airline can continue to make extra flights to Honolulu in case the Pan American strike continues.

Russ Leaders Home

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev and Premier Alexei Kosygin returned today from Warsaw where they renewed the Soviet treaty of friendship with Poland for another 20 years.

Job Corps Camp

SAN MARCOS, Tex (AP)—President Johnson dedicates the Southwest's first antipoverty Job Corps camp today.

France Gets New Soviet Envoy

PARIS (AP)—A hard-line Russian presented his credentials to President Charles de Gaulle today and became the new Soviet ambassador to France in what some see as the opening of a diplomatic offensive on Germany.

Zorin

Valerian Zorin, former deputy foreign minister and an expert on German affairs, told the French president he would try during his service here to contribute to the traditional ties of friendship linking France and the Soviet Union. De Gaulle welcomed Zorin and said the diplomat was correct to stress these ties.

"France and Russia have not been combatants against one another for 112 years," de Gaulle said. "Throughout most of World War I and World War II, France and the Soviet Union were allied through good days and bad."

Zorin succeeds Sergei Vinogradov, who generally was regarded in Paris as a better dinner partner than diplomat.

Catholic Mourn Death Of Cardinal

CHICAGO (UPI)—Led by Pope Paul VI, saddened Catholics the world over today mourned the death of Albert Cardinal Meyer, a strong voice for liberalism in the Roman Catholic Church.

Meyer, as archbishop of Chicago, the spiritual leader of 2.1 million Catholics, died yesterday in Mercy Hospital of a cancerous brain tumor. He was 62.

He will be buried Tuesday.

Informed of Cardinal Meyer's death, Pope Paul VI retired to a private Vatican chamber to pray for him.

Burned Actress Clings To Life

CHICAGO (UPI) — Film actress Linda Darnell, critically burned in a heroic rescue attempt, clung to life today despite burns which doctors said would normally prove fatal.

Miss Darnell, 43, was transferred to famed Sumner L. Koch Burn Center several hours after she was burned at a suburban home where she had been visiting.

She was given plasma, fed intravenously and given air through a tube in her throat. Doctors said 80 per cent of her body was severely burned.

The actress was given last rites by a Roman Catholic priest.

New Convict Is Stabbed At Quentin

Jesse H. Hicks, a 24-year-old convicted burglar and robber from Los Angeles County, got a rough welcome yesterday when he arrived yesterday to serve time at San Quentin Prison.

Hicks was stabbed twice in the back by Jose J. Cornejo, 23, a convicted San Diego burglar while walking in the prison yard, according to associate Warden James W. L. Park.

Cornejo used a prison-made weapon, a flattened, eight-inch steel blade with a taped handle, but inflicted only superficial puncture wounds, Park said.

Cornejo, Park reported, jabbed Hicks in the back. Hicks wheeled and knocked Cornejo down with his fists. An officer then fired a warning shot and other officers picked up the two men and the weapon.

Hicks arrived at the prison yesterday, and Cornejo has been there since March serving time for parole violation, Park said.

"We're still trying to determine the cause," he added.

College Leaves

Twenty College of Marin students have been granted leaves from class for a week each to serve as volunteer counselors in the outdoor education school at Camp Lokoya near Napa. The school is operated for sixth graders by the Marin County schools office.

Mariner Cove Group Elects

Seven directors of the Mariner Cove Improvement Assn. were elected at the group's annual membership meeting last night.

Directors are Howard C. Harvey of 167 Golden Hind Passage; Lee B. Hausam of 247 Golden Hind Passage; Betty Herron of 49 Staghound Passage; Raymond C. Nann of 9 Baja Court; Leonard Shaw of 6 Golden Hind Passage, Byron White of 24 Staghound Passage and Ted M. White of 171 Golden Hind Passage, Corte Madera.

The directors and current officers will meet April 21 at 8 p.m. at the Al Borro residence, 21 Diamond Head Passage, Corte Madera, to elect officers for 1965-66, according to Herber C. Leney, current board chairman.

Sunny Hills Gets Grant

Sunny Hills in San Anselmo has been awarded two grants totalling $12,500 to maintain its specialized remedial school.

The remedial program, started this school year, has about 10 students, according to Sunny Hills executive director Richard O. Pancost.

Grants of $6,250 each came from the San Francisco and Sanguinetti foundations.

Maneuvers End, Autobahn Open

BERLIN (AP) — The Communists called off military maneuvers ahead of schedule today, ending five days of shutdowns on the autobahn that brought confrontations with the United States and Britain.

The United States sent four convoys of 452 men in 103 vehicles over the autobahn and the Russians waved them through. The Communists had closed the 110-mile lifeline intermittently since Monday, saying it was needed for military maneuvers.

A joint Soviet-Communist East German announcement said that in the military maneuvers "all training tasks set for the troops in the exercise were fully accomplished." Previously the Communists had said the maneuvers would end tomorrow.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the maneuvers ended after a display of "a high standard of combat training and military skill."

The Communist harassment came to a head Wednesday when the West German Parliament met in West Berlin. To protest the meeting, the Communists closed the autobahn and Soviet MIGs buzzed Western airports, the air corridors and the hall where Parliament was in session. Other MIGs shattered the sound barrier with sonic booms.

Communist officials on the autobahn said the shutdowns — and earlier slowdowns which began a week ago Thursday — were to protest the meeting of Parliament. The Communists say West Berlin is a separate entity and Parliament has no right to meet there. Bonn says West Berlin is part of Germany.

The announcement of the end of maneuevers made no mention of the shutdowns on the autobahn.

The Russians also lifted restrictions on the movements of the U.S. military mission at Potsdam. No Communist planes interfered with commercial planes in the air corridors.

The East Germans sped the movement of civilian traffic, which had been delayed for hours this week. By midafternoon, trucks and cars were moving at a practically normal rate over the autobahn.

The U.S. convoys began showing up early in the day at Helmstedt, the checkpoint at the western end of the autobahn.

Army Recruiter Invites Students

Marin high school seniors — boys or girls—are being urged to come to the San Rafael Army recruiting station, 819 A Street, Room 28, during spring vacation next week to see if they qualify for Army school training in any of 107 available courses.

Choice of training and school is guaranteed in writing before enlistment, according to the recruiters.

Holds Slim Lead

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Prime Minister Sean Lemass' Fianna Fail party held a slim lead in the tabulations today for Ireland's national election. The opposition demanded recounts but Lemass was expected to be able to form a new government.

Flood Victims To Get Help

Twenty young people from the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael will leave Marin County tomorrow for Orick, Humboldt County, to help repair damage left by December's floods.

Meeting them will be Rev. Joel Peters, Presbyterian minister in Orick, who was a Sunday school teacher in the San Rafael church while a student at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

Accompanying the students will be Rev. T. Royal Scott and Mrs. Robert Lindskog.

Mosquito Group Given Reports

Reports on mosquito spraying and yellowjacket control in March were given to directors of the Marin County Abatement District Thursday night by district manager G. Paul Jones.

Jones said mosquito breeding was limited by cool weather, but some breeding sources and a few open marsh areas were sprayed.

Yellowjacket traps, he said, were baited in an effort to kill queens as they come out of winter hibernation, before they are able to start new nests.

Suit Is Filed Over Land Purchase Deal

Building contractor Douglas M. Christensen has filed suit in Marin Superior Court to force completion of an alleged agreement by Harry H. Johnson of 200 Shoreline Highway, Mill Valley, to sell 1.3 acres of Grant School property at Highway 101 and Grant Avenue, Novato.

Christensen, of D. M. Christensen Construction Co., 4280 Redwood Highway, San Rafael, charges he signed a contract last Jan. 18 for the $150,000 purchase, with half to be secured by a note and trust deed payable in two years, if the state would sell him the adjacent parcel.

He said the state sold him the parcel, but Johnson repudiated part of the contract and refused to extend it by 30 days so Christensen could raise more cash.

The suit asks for a decree of specific performance of the contract or damages according to proof. Christensen bought most of the former Grant School property from the state at public auction last February.

Less Local Money Seen In Budget

County Administrator Alan Bruce, getting his first look yesterday at the totals in the preliminary 1965-66 budget, predicted the percentage of local money going into the county operation will drop from this year.

In this year's $21,261,036 budget, local taxes are contributing 43 per cent. In the $24,005,521 budget which he will recommend for next year, the percentage of local taxes will drop to 38.

Balance of the budget revenue comes from federal and state subventions — particularly for the road budget and for public social services (welfare).

Even though the percentage would drop, Bruce noted, local tax contribution would increase from $8,314,672 this year to $9,181,151 next year.

Bruce stressed that these figures must be seen as "very preliminary." Many changes will undoubtedly be made when supervisors begin their review in June.

'Critics' Choice' Set By Players

"Critics' Choice," a comedy, will be presented by the Ross Valley Players at 8:30 p.m. April 29 at the Barn in Ross, sponsored by the Marin County Real Estate Board.

Proceeds from the performance will go toward the California Real Estate Board's Glenn D. Willaman Scholarship Fund. The scholarships go to men and women majoring in real estate at colleges in the state.

Champagne will be served at the special performance.

Landmarks Society Sale Is Continuing

A sale of thousands of newspapers and magazines up to 50 years old by the Belvedere-Tiburon Landmarks Society will continue tomorrow from noon to 4 p.m. at Old St. Hilary's Church.

The sale — featuring a collection of 31 out-of-print magazines published between 1915 and 1923 and about 2,000 San Francisco Examiners published from 1914 to 1925 — began today. Items on sale come from the estate of Mrs. Rose Verrall, known as the "Goat Lady," who died Aug. 3.

Man Booked In Vitamins Theft

Donald Duane Fields, 28, of Petaluma, was booked in county jail last night for allegedly taking a bottle of vitamins from the Bret Harte supermarket in San Rafael without paying for it.

He is being held on $276 bail and is scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court at 1:30 p.m. Monday.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

YESTERDAY:

11:22 a.m., Tiburon — Smoke check at 112 Jefferson Drive. No fire.

11:24 a.m., Tiburon—Firemen gave first aid to John McClain, 38, of Oakland, who was freed from the cab of the garbage truck he was driving when the brakes failed and the truck ran into a brick bus stop at Stewart Drive and Tiburon Boulevard.

7:48 p.m., San Rafael—Electric wires were reported arcing at Mountain View Avenue and Williams Street; firemen stood by until Pacific Gas and Electric Co. workmen arrived.

TODAY:

3:14 a.m., San Anselmo—Fire which started in kitchen of the James J. Shelley residence, 26 Oak Knoll Avenue, caused estimated $8,500 damage to kitchen, hallway and back porch and heat and smoke damage to rest of home.

six miles over the Gulf of Tonkin and Hainan Island was visible. U.S. officials said Friday the American planes were 35 miles off Hainan when attacked by MIGs.

The Phantoms were returning from bombing raids in Communist North Viet Nam, west of Hainan.

Peking radio claims Red Chinese jets drove off eight U.S. aircraft over Hainan Island. It claimed that in their confusion, one American plane fired a missile that knocked down another American plane.

It was also reported that a short-lived mutiny in the Vietnamese navy collapsed today. The rebellious commanders of coastal, sea and river forces fled with the chief of the Saigon navy yard to the temporary safety of an anchorage in the Saigon River.

The four commanders threw Saigon into turmoil Thursday night when they joined about 20 other officers in signing a petition that accused Rear Adm. Khung Tan Cang of graft and demanded his resignation as commander of the navy.

Military commanders sounded a "coup alert." Barricades were thrown up at strategic points and Skyraider fighter-bombers buzzed menacingly overhead.

A U. S. military spokesman said the Viet Cong won its first big victory in weeks Saturday morning 35 miles south of Da Nang just as the Marines were landing. He said the guerrilas overran a company-sized Vietnamese outpost, burned it and apparently slaughtered its entire garrison. There were no figures but a garrison usually is just over 120 men.

Large number of Viet Cong have been reported moving into the area from the South.

Girl, 3 Shot By Pellet Rifle

A three-year-old Sleepy Hollow girl was shot in the cheek yesterday with a .22-caliber pellet rifle.

Stacy Vail Barnett, 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Barnett of 125 Crane Drive, was in good condition today at Marin General Hospital, where she underwent surgery yesterday. Doctors said a large fragment of the pellet remained lodged in her right jawbone.

The gun went off accidentally in the hands of Stacy's brother, George R. Barnett, 12, in the living room of the Barnett home, sheriff's deputies said. The pellet struck Stacy, who was standing about 16 feet away, in the right cheek.

Dixie School Board Discusses Contracts

Trustees of the Dixie School District Board held a closed session this morning to discuss contracts for principals and to evaluate school administration.

Action on the contracts will be taken at a regular trustee meeting, probably April 28 or May 2.

Pellet Hits Window

Mrs. Rita B. Dell'Era of 118 Center Street, San Rafael, reported to police yesterday that someone shot a pellet or BB gun bullet into the front room window of her home. The bullet made a small, circular chip in the six by four foot window.

Just Who Owns Gate Span Dinery?

Is the Army in the restaurant business?

Directors of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District asked themselves this question yesterday after learning their district may turn out not to be legal owner of the Roundhouse Restaurant next to the bridge toll plaza, a facility they have controlled since 1938.

While it may come as a surprise to the Pentagon as well as the bridge directors, Bridge Director Dan E. London revealed that a "minor technicality" may have prevented the restaurant from being handed over properly from the Army to the district.

When the bridge directors took control of the property, then part of the Presidio of San Francisco, papers were signed by a "mere" colonel, London explained.

There is some doubt as to whether the documents went through the proper chain of command in the War Department, he said.

London was quick to predict that the legal loophole would be resolved soon with no difficulty.

The subject came up as directors agreed to extend restaurant operator Benjamin Stacey's lease on a month to month basis through November.

Director Benjamin K. Lerer had urged in February that the district take over the restaurant. When Stacey's lease expires June 30. He called it "inferior."

Bridge Fatal Driver Sent To State Hospital

A former Navy chief petty officer, whose car struck and killed maintenance crew foreman Arthur S. Olson, 59, of Novato last Sept. 28 on the Golden Gate Bridge, was sent yesterday to the state mental hospital at Atascadero.

Superior Judge Francis McCarty imposed the indeterminate sentence on Kenneth M. New of Alameda after finding him guilty of manslaughter by reason of insanity.

Three psychiatrists told the judge that New, who has been free on bail for the past six months, was "insane beyond a doubt." New told officers after his fatal 90-mile-an-hour "speed test" across the bridge that he was playing Parnelli Jones — you know the Indianapolis champ two years ago."

Olson had been a bridge maintenance worker for 20 years.

Goldblatt Re-Elected Longshoremen's Aide

Louis Goldblatt of 432 Lovell Avenue, Mill Valley, was re-elected secretary treasurer of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union yesterday as the union's 16th biennial convention closed in Vancouver, British Columbia.

Goldblatt, president Harry Bridges, and J. R. Robertson, vice president, were returned to office unopposed.

Police Officer Charged In 'Moonlighting' Case

A San Francisco police officer who lives in Corte Madera has been charged with violating police "moonlighting" rules as the result of investigation into the attempted burglary Tuesday of the Pacific Heights mansion owned by ex-madam Mrs. Marsha Owen (Sally Stanford).

William C. Roberts, 36, is one of four San Francisco officers who will be charged for holding outside jobs.

Two other officers and three ex-convicts were trapped in Mrs. Owen's home. The arrests were triggered by a tip from Donald E. Midyett, Marin County district attorney's investigator.

Investigation led to the discovery that the two arrested policemen, Patrick M. Buckman and Salvatore Polani, as well as other officers, were holding down jobs as credit investigators, in violation of police department rules.

Buckman and Polani were reported to have a prosperous unlicensed private detective agency.

San Francisco Police Chief Thomas Cahill yesterday ordered a massive crackdown on all moonlighting by police officers.

Roberts and three others were found to be working as part-time credit investigators. Cahill said they would be given Police Commission trials.

CARD

ed the bureau decides what to put on the card.

An employee at the processing office said he knew nothing about it.

Ruth Lascy, secretary to the superintendent, Mill Valley School District, who said she has worked 18 years sending in such information for ballots and polling place cards, said she included the name of the voting place, address of the polling place, plus names and addresses and telephone numbers of those working on the election board. She said the method used was the same as in the past elections.

Mrs. Lascy said she checked her own card which says simply, "Alto School."

"We have done the same thing we have done for years," said Robert F. Stannard, assistant superintendent for administrative services, county schools office. "We send Mrs. Lacy's material on to the county clerk's office. We don't indicate what to put on the polling place card or not to."

He suggested that if the address being printed means printing an extra line on the card, this may be the reason for the omission. "If no mechanical problems exist, it would seem logical to have it printed."

Stannard said his office has received a small number of calls out of 80,000 cards. He said there are 200 polling places among all the school elections and some of the cards have polling places which are at private garages. "The address would have to be on these," He said. "You just can't say Joe Blow's Garage."

Two sample ballot foulups were discovered Thursday, one for Tiburon Fire District election and one for the Southern Marin school unification vote.

The omission of the word "incumbent" was found on the Mill Valley sample ballot beneath the name of candidate Joyce Gross.

Station Owner Sued By Wife

Joseph Hallowell Cox, San Rafael resident and owner of the Hal Cox FM radio station KAFE, is being sued for divorce in Marin Superior Court.

The wife, Cecile, charges cruelty. The couple wed in San Francisco on Aug. 30, 1947, and separated last March 12. They have four children and family residence is at 798 Del Ganadao Road.

The radio station has studios in Oakland and San Francisco.

rate from $1.75 to $2.25 per $100 assessed valuation.

A two-thirds "yes" vote is needed to approve the bond issue. A simple majority would pass the tax hike.

The candidates, measures and propositions will appear in varying combinations on four different ballots, depending on whether voters live in both the city and elementary district, in the city alone, the district alone, or the San Rafael High School District only.

Voting will take place in 45 precincts. A heavy turnout is expected among the approximately 21,700 voters.

It will be the first time the city has extended voting hours to 8 p.m. The change, intended to benefit commuters, was requested by the school district.

Greek Islands Hit By Quakes

ATHENS (UPI)—An earthquake of "unusually long duration" shook the Dodecanese Islands before dawn today, it was reported here. Weak shocks were felt in Athens.

There was no immediate report of casualties or damage. Press reports said the quake caused panic at several points in the islands.

Negro, Whites Exchange Fire

JONESBORO, La. (UPI) — A Negro civil rights worker and four white teen-agers exchanged gunfire early today on a U.S. highway running through this small north Louisiana town. No one was injured.

Authorities said the white youths apparently fired one shotgun blast at a car driven by Elmo Jacobs and Jacobs fired four shots at them with a .38-caliber pistol.

Inside Jacobs' car were five passengers including four university of Kansas students who are here to help rebuild two burned Negro churches.

Bogalusa Quiet After Marches

BOGALUSA, La. (UPI)—Negroes in this center of Ku Klux Klan activity suspended their mass demonstrations today and planned interracial meetings with Mayor Jesse C. Cutrer and other city officials.

After a day of marches, one in violence and one carried out peaceably partly through the cooperation of the Klan, civil rights leaders praised the mayor and expressed hope that future talks between whites and Negroes will prove fruitful.

James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), left the city last night. He said no demonstrations were planned for the weekend but that downtown stores would be picketed Monday.

Mrs. Conrad T. Kett New Club President

A member of the Sausalito Women's Club for 22 years, Mrs. Conrad T. Kett, new president, says she enjoys her activities in the club more than anything else.

For five years she has been in charge of the club's dedicated tree program.

"We became concerned when far too many trees were being chopped down on city property," she said. "So we asked for an ordinance to protect them by making them dedicated trees and placing plaques on them. There are about 100 of them.

"PEOPLE ARE now so much interested that if one of those plaques even gets a little loose, I get a telephone call immediately."

Mrs. Kett was the club's treasurer in 1963-64 and two years before that was financial secretary. As the new president she hopes to have the club concentrate more on Civic affairs.

AFTER THE death of her husband, an architect whose name is well known in Marin because of the many rustic style houses he built, she became president of Ke tt Brothers, Incorporated, which she managed for two years with her brother-in-law.

She obtained a general contractor's license and did some building of her own, which she remembers as the most hectic period of her life. She has lived in Marin—Mill Valley and Sausalito—most of the time since 1930.

SHE HAS one son, Frederick Kett, who also lives in Sausalito with his wife and two-year-old son Eric.

Born in Calaveras County durduring the Gold Rush when her father was a mining engineer there, Laura was graduated from Dominican Upper School and attended Santa Rosa Junior College, the University of California and Dominican College.

Because of her father's connection with mining, she has been active for many years in the Northern California Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Mining, Metalllurgical and Petroleum Engineers. This is an international organization which promotes welfare in mining camps.

OTHER OFFICERS serving with Mrs. Kett will be Mesdames George R. Chapman, first vice president; Jan Paul Dyk, second vice president; Perry L. Brock, recording secretary; Frederick A. Hough, treasurer; Arie Slikkerveer, financial secretary; and Sherwood Armstrong, Charles W. Henderson, George R. Kowski, Lee Perrone, Edward E. Shev and James W. Smith, board members.

SEW SIMPLE

Why Should Wealthy People Want To Sew Their Clothes?

By EUNICE FARMER

I've been reading that Mrs. Hubert Humphrey does a lot of her own sewing, as do any number of wealthy important people. Why in the world do women sew when they can go out and buy anything they want to?

Puzzled

Dear Puzzled:

I too have read of many women who sew when it's obvious they aren't sewing to save money. It would be interesting to know just how many such women there are. Write me about the important names you have seen in various stories in the newspapers and magazines.

Most women sew because they want clothes that fit them better, an individual style, a hobby and to save money, also they sew because of the fine fabrics available today and because they love beautiful things. I'd love to start my own survey on this timely subject, so please drop me a card or letter telling me why you sew and what problems confront you most often. Send your notes to Sew Simple, in care of this paper. I'll let you know the results in a few weeks.

I know I shouldn't smoke when I'm sewing, but try to tell a real smoker when and how often they can have a cigarette. The inevitable happened last week. Just as I was admiring my newest coat in production, with facings and collar already finished, I discovered a big hole burned in the back of my coat. It was about 10 inches down from the shoulder. Should I give up and throw it away or can you help me?

Mrs. E. L.

Dear Mrs. E. L.:

Sometimes our mistakes and catastrophes make designers out of us. If you can't see how to correct an impossible calamity, you will have to put your genius to work and create your own design as a cover-up. Often, you can come up with a garment that is more attractive than it was originally.

I would suggest taking a seam about ⅝ inch wide straight across the back of the coat at the center of the burn. Cut the fold and press the seam open. Top stitch each side of the seam and you will have a very attractive yoke.

If the burn is above the armhole, you will have to lay the pattern back on your coat and recut the armhole. If there isn't enough length at the coat back you may have to face the hem.

Please remember — if you make a mistake, it's very seldom that you can't come up with a clever idea.

This is coat and suit time, and you'll want to perfect those sleeves. Send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Sew Simple in care of the Independent-Journal for your copy of "All About Sleeves."

After searching for a suitable braid for my Chanel-type suit, I had to settle for second best. I just couldn't find the right thing. I decided to make my own, and what rewards that has paid! It's beautiful and my very own.

I purchased a skein of imported mohair tweed yarn at my knit shop. I braided the yarn, using three groups of two strands in each one and it came out just the right thickness and width. The tweedy effect complements the color of the suit and adds a little life to it. Best of all, it cost less than $2. Another little hint that worked for me was to use a paper clip to secure the strands of yarn while braiding.

(We've used your idea already and it really is different and beautiful. We also tried using one strand of solid color mohair with it and it gave us another lovely effect.)

Mrs. James Vernier, Grosse Point Woods, Mich., is this week's winner of a tailor trix pressing board for this suggestion.

Thanks to all of you who have sent in answers to Alice B.'s problem of having the threads bunch up into an ugly mess on the wrong side of the fabric. The unanimous answer is to take the bobbin and top thread together in your fingers and draw them to the side. Be sure they are held firm by the presser foot when you lower it.

Children Of Television Talk To Be Heard Tuesday

Teachers of Marin County have been invited to hear Dr. George Steiner, associate professor of radio, television and films, from the School of Creative Arts of San Francisco State College, speak at the meeting of the Marin Motion Picture and Television Council on Tuesday. The meeting will be held in Huxley Hall, San Rafael Methodist Church, 9 Ross Valley Drive, San Rafael, at 9:45 a.m.

Dr. Steiner is Educational Television Coordinator at San Francisco State, and is a vice president and director of educational television for the American Council for Better Broadcasts. The title of his talk will be "Children of Television."

Dr. Steiner conducts an instructional television institute in cooperation with KQED, to bring together teachers and others wishing to learn about instructional television.

Dr. Steiner produced the "Read Better-Read Faster" program on KQED, the series "Hot Spot" and the "World of Man" for Station KPIX, and was executive producer of a series, "The American Voter—1964," for KPIX, which won the George Washington Medal from the Freedom Foundation, Valley Forge.

North Marin P-TA Council Names Officers

Mrs. Harold Marsh of Novato was elected to serve for a second term as president of the North Marin Council of Parent-Teacher Assn.

Elected to the Board of Directors to serve with Mrs. Marsh are Mrs. Patrick Owens, first vice president; James Bunker, second vice president; and Mesdames Gene Williams, recording secretary; George R. Ungemach, corresponding secretary; Duane Moeller, treasurer; William Harris, historian and James Sturken, parliamentarian.

Air Winter Wools To Keep Freshness

NEW YORK (UPI)—Do your winter wardrobe a favor by protecting it from unwanted lingering odors. While wools usually need less cleaning and pressing than summer clothes, they can hold odors. Start from the inside out by using medicated powder after your bath, for tip-to-toe freshness. What else helps, rotate winter garments. Also, air them occasionally, to restore freshness.

MR. AND MRS. MATHEW SEDDON
(Bob Hax photo)

Miss Wasset Weds Mathew F. Seddon

Brigitte Wasset became the bride of Mathew Foster Seddon at a garden ceremony in the home of her parents on April 3.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Wasset of Novato.

The Rev. Russell P. Knoebel performed the 11 a.m. double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of white silk and lace. The skirt extended into a chapel train.

Mrs. Wasset, as matron of honor for her daughter, wore a pink silk ensemble.

Jackie Beebe of Novato was flower girl.

Martin Seddon of Long Island, N.Y., was best man for his brother.

A reception followed the ceremony in the garden and on the terrace of the Wasset home.

The bride attended New York University and the Agricultural and Technical Institute in Farmingdale, Long Island, N.Y.

The bridegroom, who is the son of Melvin Seddon of Long Island and Katherine Seddon of Sacramento, is in business with his father in the Archer Company, New York City.

Following a wedding trip to Mexico, the newlyweds will reside in Fort Lee, N.J.

Mount Carmel To Hear Talk On Women's Page

"Society—or the Women's Page of Marin's Daily Newspaper" will be discussed by Maybelle Speckmann at Wednesday's meeting of the Mount Carmel Women's Club in Mill Valley.

The program will follow a business meeting starting at 8 p.m. in the lower meeting hall of Our Lady of Mount Carmel School. Also speaking briefly on "Meals for Millions" will be the Rev. Francis Scanlon.

Mrs. Speckmann, who has been a member of the Independent-Journal staff since shortly after the Southern Marin office opened in Mill Valley in 1950, is Marin Women section correspondent for Mill Valley and Sausalito areas and is the I-J music critic.

Holder of A.B. and M.A. degrees, she previously taught English, journalism and psychology in high school and junior college and has done personnel work in private business and for the federal government.

Section To Hear Talk On Plants

"Plant For Color Month" will be the theme of Gordon Baker Lloyd's presentation Wednesday at 10 a.m., for the Garden Section of the San Rafael Improvement Club, at the clubhouse.

Included will be specific gardening plans for annuals and perennials, announced Mrs. C. J. Fitzharris, section chairman.

Easter Program Set At Alderson Home

An Easter program will be presented at the Alderson Convalescent Home in Novato at 2 p.m., Wednesday by the Raymond School of Dance.

The Easter program will feature youngsters dressed as Easter bunnies including Laurie Kiefer, Virginia Tyra, May Lipinski, Lori Side, Kim Thomson, Christa Fredrick, Kelly Ground and Kathy Schmidt.

Other youngsters in dance routines are Vickie Craig, Carla Fredrick, and Bonnie Swan.

For the finale the cast will sing "Easter Parade" joined by Lisa Miltenberger, Joyce Thomson, Lisa Fernandes, Kathleen Hanson and Nancy George.

Marin Whirl-Aways To Hold Scaloppini Dinner, April 21

The annual veal scaloppini dinner to be given by the Marin Whirl-Aways folk and square dance club will be held on April 21, 7:15 p.m. at Carpenters Hall, San Rafael.

Highlights on the program of dancing, following the dinner, will be Gary Kirschner of San Francisco, with guitar, as guest caller and exhibits of traditional Scottish country dances by members of the San Francisco School of Scottish dancing.

Dancers participating will be June and Tom Birchall, John Dymond, Yvonne Graber, Robert Knudsen, Gloria Hetherington, John Richter, Dolly Nelson, Elsie Robertson, and their director C. Stewart Smith, holder of teaching certificates from the Royal Scottish Country Dance Society and the Highland Branch of the British Assn. of Teachers of Dancing. Their piper will be John Partenan.

Master of ceremonies will be club instructor Joe Angeli. Reservations chairmen are Mesdames Joseph Angeli, Peter Brajkovich, Everett Clippinger, Eric Hicks, William Odell and Fred Sweger.

Blue Birds Plan Train Trip South

San Rafael Blue Birds have scheduled their annual train trip Tuesday when they will ride a special Southern Pacific car to Palo Alto. More than 100 girls are registered to go with 24 leaders. Box lunches will be enjoyed on the lawns of Stanford campus. The train will leave San Francisco at 10:30 a.m.

On Wednesday 150 San Rafael Camp Fire Girls will be on the 11 o'clock harbor cruise. A picnic lunch is planned at aquatic park, with Mrs. George Error in charge.

Tomorrow night Marin Section Horizon Club members will join other Golden Gate Horizon Club girls as hostesses at the annual Future Farmers of America dance at the Golden West UMCA in San Francisco. The girls will bake cookies and take sandwiches.

St. Rose Academy Sets New Chapter

A Marin chapter of the St. Rose Academy is being formed by the local alumnae, and the group is planning a luncheon May 5 at noon in Pennafort Hall, Dominican College campus, San Rafael. Alumnae may call Mrs. William Descalso of San Rafael and Mrs. Ernest Valente of Fairfax.

Tam High Junior To Talk Tomorrow In UN Contest

Sue Farrell, 16-year-old Tamalpais High School junior, will compete tomorrow in the annual United Nations Pilgrimage for Youth contest sponsored by Rebekahs and Odd Fellows of Marin and Sonoma Counties. It will be held at 2 p.m. at Odd Fellows Temple.

The announcement was made by Mrs. George Russo, chairman of Mill Valley's Blythedale Rebekah Lodge Pilgrimage for Youth Committee.

Sue made the highest score on a written examination on the United Nations given in February at Tamalpais High School and was selected as a contestant on the basis of this and her scholarship, leadership, character and interest in community and world affairs.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Farrell of Mill Valley. Selected on the same basis as alternate was 16-year-old Tamalpais High School sophomore Clista Lee Ellis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne D. Ellis of Mill Valley.

Sunday Sue will speak on "My Community and World Affairs" at the contest in Petaluma to select the delegate to represent District 61 of Rebekahs and District 11 of Odd Fellows in the Pilgrimage to the United Nations.

Virginia Harris Becomes Bride Of Gerald Crowe

St. Sylvester's Church was the setting for the April 3 wedding of Virginia M. Harris of San Rafael and Gerald Crowe of San Anselmo.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winston H. Harris of San Rafael.

Officiating for the 1 p.m., double ring ceremony was the Rev. John Tierney.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a ballerina gown of white taffeta.

Susan Franz of San Rafael, as maid of honor, wore a lime green ballerina gown.

Kenneth Crowe of Novato was best man for his brother and ushering were Chris Gray and Leon Lowe.

A reception following the ceremony was held at the Loch Lomond Yacht Club.

The bride was graduated from Marin Catholic High School and attended San Francisco State. Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Hicklin of San Francisco are her grandparents.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Crowe of San Anselmo, was graduated from Marin Catholic and is attending the University of San Francisco. Mr. and Mrs. Leon Pinault of San Francisco are his grandparents.

Following a wedding trip to Carmel, the couple will reside in San Francisco.

Sculptor Will Be Hostess At Party

Sculptor Mary Tilden Strebeigh will be hostess at her home in Sausalito tonight at a party for all the sculptors who will be participating in the month-long sculpture exhibit in May at the Marin Civic Center.

The exhibit is sponsored by the Marin Museum Assn. Mrs. Strebeigh is director of the exhibit which will open in May with an invitational champagne reception for 1,000 people at the center.

Some 40 to 50 guests, including some musicians and writers, are expected at the party tonight.

AUDITED PAID CIRCULATION ABC

One in a series of messages to advertisers

No myths or mysteries, just the facts

The finest advertising doesn't have a chance unless it is seen or heard. The circulation of an advertisement is vital to its success. And, circulation is people ...not the number of advertisements printed or anticipated or projected.

No advertiser can afford expensive guessing. Positive proof of circulation should be demanded. Vague generalities should be discounted. Charts, formulas, and promises are not readers, and can lead your advertising off sales target.

The actual circulation figures...verified count...of this newspaper are available through the report of the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Exactly how many units of your advertising are delivered into the hands of paying customers? How much do they pay to see your advertising? Where and how is this advertising being delivered?

This is the type of circulation information that helps keep your advertising and advertising budget aimed in the right direction. No camouflage, just facts and figures.

Insist on circulation proof when you buy advertising—be ABC-sure.

These Students Prove Future In Good Hands

IF YOU ARE AMONG those who think the coming generation is going to the dogs, you would change your mind if you could serve on a scholarship award committee.

You would agree that the coming generation most certainly will surpass the present almost any way you could care to measure it.

Each year the California Newspaper Publishers Assn. awards its Edith R. Allan scholarship to an outstanding college journalism coed who otherwise might not be able to complete her final year of higher education.

The $500 award memorializes the late Miss Allan who, in the course of her long years of employment by the publishers organization, aided many a young journalist in starting a successful newspaper career.

This year each of the seven California colleges and universities that have journalism departments nominated a contestant for the award.

Without exception, the nominees proved bright, dedicated, and highly promising young ladies. Their grades were exceptional; they had nothing but the highest recommendations from their journalism professors.

When they answered questions about their need for financial help, their strength of character and their self-assurance evidenced itself.

TAKE THE GIRL WHOSE parents live in a high income area somewhat like Marin. She acknowledged that her father was a highly placed and well paid title company executive. Her need? Well, it costs a lot to live in the manner required of a highly placed executive and her younger sister was about to enter college, doubling the burden on parents.

"But," said the young lady firmly, "you may have applicants whose need is greater. I would not want to stand in their way, as much as I would like to win."

This young lady's generous attitude and willingness to face facts is all too rare among her elders.

NEXT WAS A 20-YEAR-OLD college junior who has thus far put herself through school, financially. She has a regular part-time job as a telephone operator and a sometimes job as office girl.

Illness prevents her father from working; her mother has gone back to school to improve her breadwinning abilities. A sister also is in school.

What does this scholarship applicant say about her need? She can make it on her own, she says, but it would be a little easier if she could spend more time on her studies and less having to support herself. In short, she doesn't view her own need as critical.

The world would be a better place if more of her elders shared her self-confidence in her ability to go-it-alone, and didn't seek free handouts at every turn.

ANOTHER GIRL WHO SAID she really didn't need help very badly was the American of Korean ancestry whose father died when she was only 20. Her working mother raised her along with her brother and sister.

Her brother saved his money to go to college. Married and father of a child, he is about ready to finish graduate work and enter employment in the space science field. He still has most of the money he saved to put himself through school; he was very successful at winning scholarships. So he has been able to put his younger sister through school so far, with only modest help from her mother who because of illness can no longer work.

This proud young American with oriental features was almost apologetic when describing the state of her need, which she regarded as not very critical. She was mostly concerned about the drain on her brother's savings.

A FOURTH CANDIDATE expressed gratitude to her father, a fireman, for having seen her through three years of college. Next year he will have the added burden of a younger daughter in school, too. The older daughter would like to win a scholarship so as to relieve her father a bit of his heavy financial burden.

As each of the girls explained her need, none showed any lack of self-assurance. Their concern in each instance was more for others than for themselves.

WHEN QUESTIONED ABOUT non-campus activities it turned out that each was engaged in some outside activity—most of them in church-centered work aimed at helping others.

Each of the seven girls evidenced a strong belief in God; five of them were dedicated church workers. All were clean-cut, attractive "well-scrubbed all-American" girls—unlike those who have had their pictures in the newspapers of late in connection with campus demonstrations and "civil disobedience."

All looked forward to eventual marriage and raising families, hopeful that they could work in a journalism career along the way.

If you could take part in such interviews, you couldn't help but have an immense new respect for the coming generation. The world will be in capable hands tomorrow, probably more capable than today's hands.

—Jack Craemer

Bouquets And Brickbats

A BOUQUET to Mrs. Augustine F. Hall of Corte Madera, who will retire after almost 40 years of teaching, the last 23 years at San Quentin School.

A BOUQUET to Steve Owles of San Rafael for winning a "superior award" in the California State Spring Fair's industrial arts exposition in Sacramento.

BRICKBATS to seventh and eighth graders who thought it was "smart" to drink liquor during lunch; BOUQUETS to the school administration for suspending them on the spot.

A BOUQUET to Trammel Combs, 67, of San Rafael, superintendent of the cotton mill at San Quentin Prison, who retired after 11 years on the job.

A BOUQUET to Atlantic L. Cencio, manager of the Pt. Reyes branch of Bank of America, who retired after more than 47 years with the bank.

BOUQUETS to three Marin students for winning prizes in the Bay Area Science Fair: Janet Offenbach, Valerie Gross, and Gordon Daum.

THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

PRAISE IS APPRECIATION

Praise is one of the most frequently used terms in the Bible. In the Book of Psalms alone it occurs 74 times.

The dictionary defines the verb "praise" as: "to express approbation; to commend; to glorify, especially God, by homage."

It is derived from the Latin verb "preiare," meaning "to prize; to have an appreciation for."

Xenophon in 360 B.C. was hardly exaggerating when he said: "The sweetest of all sounds is praise."

"True praise roots and spreads," observed George Herbert in 1629.

However, as the great Augustine warned in 400 A.D., "Falsely praising a person is lying."

If praise is based on a true appreciation, then it must be sincere. And if appreciation should grow according to the greatness of the person addressed, then the Hebrew Psalmist shows the way for all by reserving his joyous cries of praise for Him Who made heaven and earth:

"Let everything that has breath praise the Lord." (Psalm 150:6)

Let my thoughts, words and actions, O Father, always be directed to Your greater honor and glory.

School Candidate Offers Apologies

Editor, Independent-Journal:

During a recent discussion of unification I suggested that county-wide unification was the ultimate goal of the pro-unification movement and that Frank Miller, chairman of Citizens for Unification, was sympathetic with this objective. While that was my understanding, Mr. Miller in a subsequent conversation assured me most emphatically that this was not his position.

My immediate attempt to set the record straight apparently failed and the proliferation of this error has proved embarrassing.

I would greatly appreciate your publishing this retraction, along with my sincere apologies to Mr. Miller. The issue before us on April 20 is far too important to have either success or failure hinge on misinformation.

Minority Should Not Rule Majority

Editor, Independent-Journal:

A recent private discussion of the "Free speech" controversy on the campus at Berkeley developed a series of thoughts which have not been adequately spoken publicly. . . .

Freedom to speak or to do as one wishes does not include the right to compel others to see and hear.

It must be the right of the majority, speaking through the Administration, to create an atmosphere of culture and learning and to state the rules by which this may thrive. If one per cent wish a different culture and a different way of life, it may be their right, in their own close, to speak as they choose, but if they select a public thoroughfare which the majority must frequent, they should not be able to develop that right as they may want, nor should they be permitted to compel the majority to stop, look and listen to four-letter words, or to philosophies they would rather consider with greater deliberation or to hear importunities for off-campus help. If the majority may prevent air pollution by smog, it should be able to prevent air pollution by harangue, at least in the halls and sidewalks of learning.

For some obscure reason, the minority, in seeking its way of life, has been unable to see that when it thrusts its approach on the majority against its will, it is Fascistic, than which it finds nothing more anathema.

Let's Work For School Excellence

Editor, Independent-Journal:

. . . Three thoughts for our universal consideration and application without reference to political boundaries:

1. That we all recognize the importance of developing a high standard of manners, morals and conduct among our youth, and further the importance of all public agencies—church, home, school, business community, newspapers, etc. — working together in this area;

2. That despite the many attributes of Marin County, we recognize that we are beset with several problems such as high population mobility, a large number of broken homes, and too many misdemeanors among our youth;

3. That consistent with our mutual high aspirations for our progeny, we all continually strive to do a better job of instilling enduring values and ideals in our fine young people.

To this end, students, parents, business, civic and religious leaders of the Belvedere-Tiburon area may have provided one positive contribution to solving this large and elusive problem through the publication of the Peninsula Key, a printed code of conduct for youths, grades six and up. It is hoped this small yet impressive ripple might extend beyond its present influence by mounting a greater Marin County effort.

Time For Taxes And Elections

Editor, Independent-Journal:

April—Time for taxes, elections and a few reflections.

Exercise your civic duty and vote, but who informs the voter that despite spending much more per pupil than districts anywhere in California (we're fourth or fifth highest), we are being asked to increase the tax rate for schools. San Rafael schools are limping along with so many in non-teaching capacities, that only 60 per cent of the taxes allotted to salaries goes to teachers. . . . Where is the logic to the fact that the highest pay possible for a teacher is $10,600, while an Assistant Administrator makes $15,000.

Ah Marincello. Seems no one wants it, except those who expect to get something out of it. Mr. Frouge has touched all bases—leading Democrats and Republicans, but what of the people? Everyone in Marin will be affected—from the changed complexion of the County, traffic, land values, taxes. I would gladly trade my vote on the housing for the elderly (and even on the school tax rate), for a vote on Marincello. A new bridge similar to the Golden Gate would cost around $300 million, but yet we would first consider increasing bridge traffic by at least 25 per cent because of Marincello. Where's our vaunted planning? . . .

Election Should Mean A Choice

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The word "election," in some countries including ours, signifies a free choice between two or more alternatives. That is, it usually does. In the case of the April 20 vote on school unification, we must again vote on a plan already rejected by the voters.

Is this a choice? Or are we nearing the day when the little stamp in our voting booth will be marked with a "Da" instead of a cross?

Johnson's Viet Nam Speech Shows Shift In His Position

WASHINGTON (AP) — It is President Lyndon B. Johnson who is pleading for a discussion to end the fighting in Southeast Asia, not the North Vietnamese who have been bombed for two months by American planes in an effort to pressure them into seeking peace.

They've endured the battering and given no public indication of asking peace.

IN MAKING his plea, in a nation-wide broadcast from Baltimore Wednesday night, Johnson took a softer line than his administration has been following since Feb. 7, when Red guerrillas attacked an American air base and Johnson ordered bombing.

This shift in position came one day after the Associated Press reported 50 per cent of the people in South Viet Nam are sitting on the fence, supporting neither their American-backed government nor the Red guerrillas.

In his broadcast Johnson offered $1 billion in American aid for Southeast Asian economic development, saying he hoped North Viet Nam would join in the cooperative effort as soon as "peaceful cooperation is possible."

THE TWO Republican leaders in Congress, Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, took a dim view of this economic offer from Johnson.

Earlier this year, after the bombing of North Viet Nam had begun, they denounced suggestions of seeking peace through negotiations with the Communists. They said such a move would be "running up the white flag."

Wednesday night they derided Johnson's offer of $1 billion in aid as an attempt to buy peace in Asia.

JOHNSON'S SHIFT of position can be seen by comparing what he and his administration had said before with what he said Wednesday night.

After Johnson ordered the bombing to begin Feb. 7, the White House issued a statement which said in part: "The key to the situation remains the cessation of infiltration from North Viet Nam and the clear indication by the Hanoi regime that it is prepared to cease aggression against its neighbors."

Secretary of State Dean Rusk later repeated that position.

ALTHOUGH Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara Wednesday said the military situation in South Viet Nam has become increasingly serious this past year, Johnson Wednesday night made this offer:

"Unconditional discussion" with the North Vietnamese Reds. His aides, who said there was no indication from the North Vietnamese that they would enter into worthwhile discussion, said Johnson meant the United States would talk even with the fighting going on.

In taking this position Wednesday night Johnson was actually accepting an appeal made April 1 by the heads of 17 nonaligned states for immediate negotiations "without any preconditions" for a solution to the war.

AT THE TIME they made the proposal Rusk was reported by authoritative sources as informing the group that peace in Viet Nam could be restored "very quickly" if Communist aggression ceased.

The only condition that Johnson suggested Wednesday night was that there should be no precondition.

But, while he is seeking to persuade the Reds to start talking, the American government is making a great effort to persuade the people of South Viet Nam to support their government, which the United States is fighting for.

THE RED guerrillas are estimated to have the support of about 8 per cent of the South Vietnamese, the South Vietnamese government about 40 per cent. That leaves roughly 50 per cent refusing to support one side or the other.

BARKER ON CHINA

When Red Writer Falls From Favor

By GEORGE BARKER

LAST WEEK'S issue of "China News Analysis," a rather objective little paper airmailed weekly from Hong Kong, is devoted to two word portraits of well-known Red Chinese intellectuals. Both are old-time party members who have fallen from favor because they failed, in their writing, to follow as good children should the twisting and turning of the "Thoughts of Chairman Mao."

One of them, Feng Ting, is tainted with the aroma of liberalism and idealism at a time when Maoist dogmatism and suffering and sacrifice for the world revolution are the order of the day. China is being exhorted to a new kind of mass masochism mixed with evangelical fervor.

FENG TING joined the party in 1926 and is thought to be in his 60s now. His entire life has been spent in the service of the Chinese Communist Party and particularly in propaganda work and teaching. He has held numerous high party posts.

Now Maoist nit-pickers have been publicly dissecting his writings and taking sentences out of context and denouncing them in influential Communist newspapers. The young generation which grew up reading his books must be warned away from his dangerous ideas.

What exactly do the Reds object to in his writings? Several years ago he wrote that the most urgent business of that time was the peaceful competition between countries of the world with different social systems. This is clearly "Khrushchevian revisionism," the dirtiest two words in the Chinese lexicon.

ANOTHER sentence which this dastardly fellow wrote and which was the subject of an entire denunciatory article was this heinous sentiment: "If happiness means normal life, then it means peace and no war, good food and beautiful clothes, spacious and clean housing, love and harmony between husband and wife, parents and children; this undoubtedly is true and this is what we all want." Pretty heady stuff for people who are asked to struggle, sacrifice and deprive themselves in the name of Mao and the myth of a Marxist Utopia tomorrow.

Another sentence written in 1956 appears equally abominable to Peking's present advocates of a Spartan existence: "How can one serve the masses if one is not able to live?" This is taken to imply that the Chinese are not really living.

FENG TING let slip two other dangerous statements among his long list of books and articles. One is that "Every man is infected by some form of individualism." The other is "If a man does not think at all of his own interests he will not be able to think and act properly."

Feng Ting evidently made the mistake of believing what he wrote and not bending with every breeze from the central committee. His career is in ruins and he has been held up to public shame and ridicule. Such is the price of non-conformity in Mao's China. His "infection of individualism" was his downfall.

Ku Klux Klan's 'Action Groups' Causing Concern

FBI Goes Into High Gear In Fight Against Race Foes

By EDWARD W. O'BRIEN
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON—Last fall the Ku Klux Klan began flexing its muscles in the South in revolt against the new civil rights act.

The largest Klan organization in the country, the United Klans of America, held a "National Klonvokation" in Birmingham in September, featuring a banquet attended by several hundred people from every Deep South state except Florida.

But the development that caused far more concern among federal officials was creation within the Klan of so-called "action groups."

These secret cells, known as "Terrors," "Holy Terrors" and "Execution Squads" were assigned to do the illegal dirty work of the Klan.

Each group consists of three to 10 Klansmen.

The Klan doesn't realize it, but its organizations, including those cloaked in deepest secrecy, have been infiltrated by FBI agents as thoroughly as the Communist Party.

Information flowing from this penetration presumably contributed to the FBI arrest of the four Klansmen charged with conspiracy in the ambush slaying of Mrs. Viola Liuzzo near Lowndesboro, Ala.

More than 10 years ago, the Ku Klux Klan was placed on the attorney general's subversive list at the instigation of the FBI.

FBI surveillance of the Klan since then has depended on the degree of Klan activity.

Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, Connecticut Democrat and a former FBI agent and federal prosecutor, recently told the Senate:

"For several years, the Klan lay relatively dormant.

"In recent years it has expanded greatly, in members and in its threat to the law. As the threat has increased, so has FBI infiltration."

An official with intimate knowledge of the Klan gives this close-up:

"Based on bigotry, the Klan continues to maintain its traditional intolerance of and antagonism toward Negroes, Jews, Catholics and the foreign born.

"For the most part, Klansmen are fanatics with limited education and narrow views. They have probably spent most of their lives in rural areas or small towns in Southern states.

"Most likely, they will be found among laborers, small farmers, service station attendants, salesmen and those who own small businesses.

"Except for the Negro, they are at or near the bottom of the social ladder.

"This lack of social status may well account for their insecurity, frustration, discontent, and longing for revenge.

"Thus, recognition from fellow Klansmen following participation in Klan activity acts as a substitute for the recognition withheld by society.

"Klansmen live in a make-believe world of their own with peculiar titles, mystic ceremony, terrorist activities, shared hatred and hoods which serve to conceal their identities.

"Klan activities are associated in the minds of most with threats, terror, shotguns, mutilations, tar and feathers.

"While Klan leaders may say they are opposed to violence, they also make inflammatory statements which incite Klansmen and promote violence."

More than half of the total Klan membership is in the United Klans headed by Imperial Wizard Robert M. Shelton, who was re-elected last September.

Other Klans are:

Original Knights of the KKK. White Knights of the KKK of Mississippi, National Knights of the KKK, United Florida KKK, Association of Georgia Klans, Association of South Carolina Klans and Association of Arkansas Klans.

Most Southern states have enacted laws against terrorist activities of the kind associated with the Klan. Local enforcement of these laws has often been non-existent.

In recent months FBI agents have arrested Klansmen in connection with the bombing of a Negro home in Jacksonville, Fla., the murder of two Negroes near Meadville, Miss., and the discovery of a large amount of dynamite at Meridian, Miss.

But federal officials don't believe for a moment that they have put the Klan out of business.

CROSS BURNING—The National Ku Klux Klan is shown holding its annual cross burning and rally at Stone Mountain, Ga., on Aug. 31. The Klan was told then how Klansmen were going to handle the "Negro problem." They are saluting the flag before the meeting began. (UPI Telephotos)

NEW HELICOPTERS USED IN VIET NAM

Two-Chopper Team Technique Developed To Improve Safety, Delivery Of Troops

By JULES WITCOVER
Advance News Service

PLEIKU, South Viet Nam — The American helicopter, which earlier in the war against the Viet Cong was in danger of becoming a vulnerable white elephant, now is changing the very nature of guerrilla warfare.

Improved helicopters and improved tactics are stripping the Viet Cong of much of the mobility that has been a major guerrilla advantage. The Viet Cong still are able to conduct their successful hit-run maneuvers, but they are up against a more formidable opponent now.

The heavy losses sustained by U.S. helicopters about two years ago, when the Viet Cong mastered the technique of downing the old and lumbering HU-21 "Flying Banana" chopper with small arms fire, have been greatly reduced.

The HU-1B "Huey" now in use by the U.S. Army, a more compact single-rotor chopper with greater manueverability, has been able to cut sharply the danger of ground fire. Also, new take-off and landing techniques, which accentuate the vertical and give the enemy a smaller target area for a shorter period of time, have cut losses.

A two-chopper team technique has been developed that has increased helicopter safety and at the same time has augmented the plane's ability to deliver troops and supplies and to bomb, attack and strafe the elusive enemy.

All Hueys now have two crewmen riding "shotgun" — manning light machine-guns mounted on each side of the aircraft. The choppers that carry Vietnamese troops into battle, or that move cargo into combat areas, have only these two guns. There are about 200 here.

But chopper pilots—U.S. Army warrant officers—now know how high they must fly to avoid ground fire and still keep ground targets within range of their own gunners. Guns firing down have a greater range.

Working with the troop and cargo-carrying choppers, called "slicks" by the Army, are armed Hueys — the same basic chopper with deadly rockets on each side, plus the two machine guns. These are called "gunships" in the new chopper lingo, and there are about 100 here.

The "gunships" carry out raids of their own on occasion, but mostly they are escorts for the "slicks" on troop and cargo-carrying missions. Their objective is to draw fire from the "slicks" to themselves, and then to flush out the Viet Cong firing at them. The enemy as a result is very wary about firing on any "gunship."

The most effective technique developed so far is the "eagle flight," in which a Vietnamese strike force is dropped right into the midst of a Viet Cong concentration spotted earlier by observation planes or ground intelligence.

This tactic often catches the Viet Cong by surprise, strips them of their mobility and cuts off their routes of escape. It can turn a potential Viet Cong ambush into a rout of the enemy.

The usual maneuver is for the armed helicopters to go in over a target first, fire into the Viet Cong to disorganize them, then rise and remain over the area while the "slicks" come in swiftly to unload their human cargo.

The manuever has worked out so that the troop-carriers can discharge their passengers and be off the ground again in seven seconds. At pickup time, the armed choppers shield the "slicks."

U.S. advisers say a significant contribution of these tactics is the impact they have had on the Vietnamese soldier. First, they give him confidence, a boost in morale and a feeling of being on the offensive.

Second they get him to start thinking of anti-guerrilla warfare in more realistic terms. He begins to realize, as the enemy realized long ago, that the objective in a skirmish is not to control the terrain but to inflict damage on the enemy himself and disorganize him.

Another advantage to the side with helicopters is rapid resupply of troops. Whereas the Viet Cong must fall back into the jungle and await re-supply over foot trails, a large Vietnamese unit can be re-supplied in hours. This is one big advantage the French did not have in the war against the Viet Minh.

Finally, a new tactic is being employed now that U.S. advisers hope will mark a turning point in the war. U.S. jets recently were used in conjunction with armed choppers and "slicks" to extract 200 trapped Vietnamese soldiers along Highway 19, the key route between Pleiku and Qui Nhon.

The jets held off a massive Viet Cong force that had pinned down the Vietnamese for two days. The Viet Cong had hoped to lure a Vietnamese rescue force into a trap but instead were all but annihilated.

Bay fill control bill

Bay Fill Bill Infringes On Property Owners

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The argument of proponents and opponents of SB 309, a measure proposed by Senator J. Eugene McAteer, D-San Francisco, to establish a commission to make a master plan for development of San Francisco Bay, appears to be a bill which would infringe the rights of private property owners.

The bill establishes a four-year moratorium on further filling activities in San Francisco Bay, and calls for a shoreline development master plan.

The measure is one of the hottest in this year's session of the legislature. It is opposed in principal at least, by the Association of Bay Area Governments, which see control of the bay slipping from its grasp into the hands of a newly created state commission.

McAtter's measure is one which mirrors the rule or ruin attitude of state government toward private property rights which have been acquired by individuals and corporations over the years.

At the present time, these private developers can get approval of local government for filling and developments.

Under the McAteer bill, it would be necessary for them to secure the additional approval of the state commission, coupled with a four-year moratorium on any filling activities at all. Thus, development of new home and business sites would be stymied.

Probably one of the best presentations against the bill when it was heard in the governmental efficiency and economy committee, headed by Sen. Luther Gibson, D-Vallejo, was made by Raoul A. Vincilione, secretary of the Inland Boatmens Union.

He said he could see no reason why people who own private property, even though submerged by the waters of the bay, should be prohibited from developing this property, and making a profit on their operations. "But making a profit in private development," he declared, "seems to have become a dirty word."

He called attention to the fact that some 31 areas on the shoreline of the bay are used for garbage dumps.

"The people who live on the hills and look down at the beautiful bay should get down there and smell it," he said.

The problem exists because of the deposit of thousands of tons of silt in the bay during the rainy seasons. The silt must be removed to make way for navigation and for the entry of large ships through the bay to ports as far north as Sacramento.

But, the gradual filling in of tidelands areas is necessary to dispose of the silt.

So while the idea for control may be a good one, a four-year moratorium on filling in the bay could mean disaster, for large ships cannot navigate without depth in the channels.

Eventually, a program may be worked out to allow for dredging and disposing of the silt, but it must be done continuously.

KUCHEL PROBLEM

Knight Has Eye On Governorship

By EDWIN S. CAPPS

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Former Gov. Goodwin J. Knight made a quick visit to Sacramento Wesdnesday—he's a man with a plan, and a problem.

Knight, looking considerably more fit than when he left office in early 1959, despite a bout with hepatitis, made no secret of the fact he would like to get into the 1966 governor's race. At a young-looking 67 or 69 he appears to be physically fit and says he has some friends who have offered to help on the financial side.

Knight allowed as how the banking business is fine for counting your money but admitted he still has politics in his blood and is itching for another campaign.

As for the so-called right wing groups which have taken over much of the power in the GOP, at least as far as pre-primary endorsements are concerned — the California Republican Assembly, the United Republicans of California and the Young Republicans — Knight quoted a statement made by Abraham Lincoln on April 9, 1865.

When asked if he would hang the southern states, Lincoln said no, that he would "hang onto" the southern states. Knight, an old phrase-turned, indicated he would have no criticism of the conservative Republican groups, even though he considers himself a moderate. Instead, he will try to ride around them.

While Knight expressed plenty of interest in being a candiate in 1966, he is still shy of making an announcement. An announcement at this time would compromise his personal position—appearances before television or service clubs.

That's Knight's plan. His problem can be spelled out in one word—Kuchel.

Knight indicated he wanted no part of any contest with U.S. Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif.

Knight based this reluctance on two factors: (1) he is an old and long-time friend and supporter of Kuchel, and (2) he feels Kuchel would be unbeatable if he ran for the governorship.

However, Knight was not above pointing out a distinct disadvantage the Republicans would face if Kuchel ran for governor in 1966 and won.

"This would give Pat Brown the chance to get out of here," Knight said. "If Kuchel won the governorship in 1966, Brown would resign the day after the election.

"Glenn Anderson then would move up to become governor and would appoint Brown to the U.S. Senate to take Kuchel's place," he said. "Brown would be there for life—you'd never beat him. And the Republicans would lose all that seniority they have."

Knight also noted, if the state is economy minded, he would be the cheapest governor California could elect. At present he draws a pension of $1212 per month. If elected governor, the pension would cease. Thus, from the governor's salary of $44,500 per year, the pension of $14,544 would be deducted, giving the state a governor for a net cost of less than $30,000 a year.

Tax Overhaul Might Miss Its Deadline

SACRAMENTO (CNS—If both houses of the legislature, including their committees, would devote all their time from now until June 18—the mandatory adjournment date—to the massive tax overhaul and increase bill introduced in the assembly, they might be able to approve it.

The bill would increase state tax levies by $1,043,000,000 and return about two-thirds of it to the cities, counties and school districts.

But both houses of the legislature and their committees will not spend all their time on the tax bill, even if they could. There are many other items to be considered and, in the Senate, the issue of how to redraw its district boundaries to comply with U.S. Supreme Court rulings on Senate reapportionment, is the No. 1 item.

From a simple matter of mechanics, the tax bill introduced by Assemblyman Nicholas C. Petris, D-Oakland, with strong backing of Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, D-Inglewood, cannot be heard by committee until May 6.

It would require hearings before two committees in the Assembly — revenue and taxation and ways and means—in addition to a full-scale floor debate. The same would be true in the Senate.

Unruh said he hopes the Senate Revenue and Taxation Committee and Finance Committee will study the bill as it is moving through the Assembly so, if it comes over to them, they will not be starting out from scratch.

Senator George Miller Jr., D-Martinez, chairman of finance and chairman of the interim committee on revenue and taxation, said his group had made a thorough study of "numbers"—how much various tax programs would produce.

Johnson Speaks Of Viet Talks

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

President Johnson for the first time this week spoke of "unconditional talks" to resolve the difficult situation in Viet Nam—but he kept his powder dry.

In a speech before a nationwide radio and television audience, Johnson said this country was ready to engage in discussions to end the Viet Nam war without setting any prior conditions.

This was an abrupt departure from statements made previously by administration officials, who had insisted that North Viet Nam make, at the minimum, some gestures to show its willingness to halt its aggression against South Viet Nam.

The president's expressed willingness to negotiate the military crisis was coupled with a new plan for the economic development of Southeast Asia.

Johnson called for a new expanded cooperative effort in that area and said he would ask Congress to join in a billion dollar American investment toward that end.

Before, during and after the president's statements, the U.S. military kept up its air strikes against North Viet Nam military staging points and installations.

Yesterday the biggest air raid of the war was carried out by an armada of 220 Navy and Air Force planes. There were no reported losses of U.S. aircraft which successfully attacked two bridges as well as a number of other unidentified targets.

Around The World Around The Clock

Washington—The House passed the administration's controversial Medicare bill while the Senate approved the school aid bill already passed by the House.

Berlin—Soviet jets buzzed the West Berlin Congress Hall apparently angry over the meeting there of the West German Parliament. The Russians also slowed down, stopped and started traffic on the autobahn between Berlin and West Germany in an extension of its harassing tactics ostensibly for the same reason.

Bogalusa, La. — Brief violence flared during a civil rights march which was quickly contained by police.

Cape Kennedy — Early Bird, the world's first commercial communications satellite was successfully launched into an equatorial orbit.

Today is Saturday, April 10, the 100th day of 1965 with 265 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning star is Mars. The evening stars are Mars, Jupiter and Mercury.

American journalist Joseph Pulitzer was born on this day in 1847.

On this day in history:

In 1841, Horace Greeley published the first issue of the New York Tribune.

In 1944, Odessa, the Black Sea port, fell to Soviet troops.

In 1962, President John F. Kennedy stepped in and forced a boost in steel prices to be wiped out.

In 1963, the atomic submarine Thresher sank in the Atlantic with 129 men aboard in the Navy's worst peacetime submarine disaster.

A Thought for the Day — Horace Greeley once said: "The illusion that times that were are better than those that are, has probably pervaded all ages."

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Trump Opening Lead Gives Nothing Away When Playing

Since it often costs a trick to lead away from a high card, the opening leader may choose to make a waiting lead from some worthless holding.

A trump will serve for this purpose when you have reason to believe that this lead will not cost you a trump trick.

Opening lead — ♠ 3

The trump opening lead in this hand, cited by Fred Karpin, famous Washington, D.C., expert and teacher, gives declarer nothing. Left to his own devices South will almost surely lose a club, a diamond and two hearts.

VERY UNNATURAL

(South can make the hand by a very unnatural line of play if he knows where all the high cards are, but in actual play he would go down.)

Incidentally, West must cover with the king of clubs if South leads the jack. Dummy will win with the ace, and then dummy's ten will never win a trick.

If West failed to cover the jack, it would ride to East's queen of clubs, and dummy's ace-ten would later take two tricks when South repeated the club finesse.

OTHER LEADS

West would give declarer the contract if he led anything but a trump.

A heart lead would be obviously fatal. A club lead would allow South to play low from the dummy.

East would win with the queen, but South would later lead the jack to finesse through West's king.

LOW DIAMOND

If West opened a low diamond, South would win with dummy's queen, draw trumps, take the ace of diamonds and then put West on lead with the king of diamonds.

West would have to return a club or a heart, and either way South would make his contract.

West would avoid leading a trump if he had a singleton or if he had a holding such as Q-x-x or J-x-x, but it cannot cost a trump trick to open a trump when you have three small trumps.

Answer: Pass.

You have 13 points in high cards, but no distributional advantage, no long major suit, and less than 2½ Quick Tricks. There is no reason to stretch a point to open this hand. Some experts would open with one club, but the majority advocate a pass with this kind of hand.

Palm Rites To Open Holy Week

The traditional palms, songs and sermons of practically every Christian church in Marin County tomorrow will recall the entry of Jerusalem by Jesus Christ, nearly two millenia ago, to face the dramatic, terrifying and spiritual moments of His last week of life as men knew it.

Among the many Palm Sunday special observances in Marin County will be:

BAPTIST

The Sanctuary Choir of the First Baptist Church of Sausalito will present the cantata, "Hallelujah! What a Savior" by John W. Peterson, at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the church on Filbert Street. Director is Charles R. Higgins of Golden Gate Baptist Seminary; accompanied by Mrs. Joyce Newton. The church's primary and junior choirs will also sing seasonal numbers during the program.

Tiburon Baptist Church will conduct special services each day of Holy Week, including tomorrow's 11 a.m. service conducted by Pastor Ernest J. Wood, Jr. A youth-parent fellowship dinner will be held at 6:30 p.m. Monday, with Dr. Winton J. Pearce, professor of preaching at Golden Gate Baptist Seminary, speaking on "Mt. Tamalpais of Scripture" at the 7:30 p.m. worship service.

The same church will have a fellowship dinner for young adults at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, again with a 7:30 p.m. service in which Dr. Pearce will speak on "This Was Our Worth to God." On Wednesday, the dinner will be for adults and family and "Mark the Earth With a Cross" will be the topic.

CONGREGATIONAL

The chancel choir of First Congregational Church of San Rafael will sing both Mozart and folk music at the 10:15 a.m. service tomorrow, according to Lincoln B. Wirt, pastor.

EPISCOPAL

St. Paul's Episcopal Church, San Rafael, will begin the observance of Holy Week tomorrow with the blessing and distributing of palm at all services. Rev. Kenneth Anderson, newly ordained to the priesthood, will offer his first celebration of the Holy Eucharist at 9 a.m.

Holy Innocents' Episcopal Parish, Corte Madera, will mark Palm Sunday at the 11 a.m. service, with a special rendition of four sections of Bach's St. Matthew Passion; The Preparation of the Passover, The Institution of the Eucharist, The Mount of Olives, and Peter's Denial Foretold. Soloists are: Kenneth Rowland, Narrator - Evangelist; James McClure, Christus; Tom Graefe, Judas and Peter; and Gloria Giddings, Soprano Soloist. Dr. S. Drummond Wolff will be the director and organist.

Other services of the day will be: Morning Prayer, 7:30 a.m.; Holy Communion at 8; Family Worship at 9 a.m. and Evensong at 7:30 p.m. Blessed palms will be distributed at all services.

St. Francis Episcopal Church, Novato, will begin with the blessing of palms at the 7:30 a.m. communion, and palm crosses will be distributed at all services. From Monday through Thursday there will be daily communion at 6 a.m.

At St. John's Church in Ross, communion will be offered at 8 a.m. and morning prayer and a sermon by the rector, Rev. Harold E. Hallett at 9 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. services.

Church of the Redeemer in Glenwood will have services at 8 and 10 a.m. tomorrow, with the Procession of the Palms at 10 a.m. Matins will be offered at 9:30 a.m. Monday through Wednesday.

Communion will be offered at 8, 9:30 and 11 a.m. tomorrow in St. Stephen's Parish, Belvedere.

The Palm Sunday Liturgy will be followed at the 9:30 a.m. service of St. Columba's Church in Inverness, with the Palm Procession and a solemn dialogue reading of the Passion during eucharist. Coffee hour will be held in Frick Hall at 10:30 a.m., and morning prayer, sermon and distribution of palms at 11 a.m. Communion will be offered at 7:30 a.m. Monday and Tuesday, 9 a.m. Wednesday.

LUTHERAN

The Church choirs and Sunday school membership will present a pageant "That Was the Week That Was" at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in Christ the Victor Lutheran Church, Fairfax. Author and director of the program is Roberta Johnson of the Sunday school staff.

Traditionally, Palm Sunday is Confirmation Day in many Lutheran churches, including Peace Lutheran Church of Mill Valley. At tomorrow's 11 a.m. service, Rev. Harold G. Johnson assisted by Rev. Herman G. Grunau will perform the confirmation rites for 23 youths of the church.

Trinity Lutheran Church, San Rafael, will conduct traditional Palm Sunday services at 8:30 and 10:30 a.m. with communion at the earlier service.

Pastor Sig. G. Sandrock of Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church, Belvedere-Tiburon will continue his Lenter sermon series on traffic signs at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow with "Merging Traffic." Palm Sunday worship and Sunday school classes will be held simultaneously at both 9 and 10:30 a.m.

Marin Lutheran Church, Corte Madera, will have worship services at 8:30 and 11 a.m. tomorrow, according to Rev. Gerald W. Garlid, pastor.

METHODIST

The Novato Community Church choir will present the "Crucifixion" by John Stainer at the church at 4 p.m., tomorrow and at Hamilton Air Force Base Chapel One at 8 p.m. Good Friday.

Singing with the group will be some of choir members of the Novato Presbyterian Church and St. Francis Episcopal Church. This is the third year that a sacred cantata will be presented at Hamilton.

The "Crucifixion" will be directed by Ronald Lord, accompanied by Mrs. Harriett Howard. Tenor solos will be sung by Jack Cassell and Don Pearce and bass solos by Tomm Rappsilber, Gene Schultheiss and Art Howell.

Regular 9:30 a.m. and 11:00 a.m. services will be held at First Methodist Church of San Rafael.

The choir, under the direction of Mr. Sterling Rainey, will present "The 7 Last Words" by Dubois. Soloists will be Mrs. Robert Winters, Ray DeLong and Bert Bowes. Mrs. George Suffern, professor of organ at Golden Gate Baptist Seminary, will be guest organist.

The sermon by Rev. Donald H. Baldwin, pastor, will be "Committed to a Cry." The church school will hold its regular sessions.

During Holy Week Sterling Rainey, choir director and organist of the church, will play devotional music on tthe organ from 12:15 p.m. to 12:45 p.m.

Junior and chancel choirs of Aldersgate Methodist Church, San Rafael, will sing at both the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services, and baptisms will be performed at 11 a.m. tomorrow, according to Rev. Paul G. Schurman, pastor.

PRESBYTERIAN

The chancel choir of Sausalito Presbyterian Church will sing Gabriel Faure's "Requiem" at both morning services tomorrow. Rev. David C. Jacobsen, pastor, said that the services of worship will incorporate the "Requiem" instead of the sermon.

The chancel choir is directed by Mrs. Chalmers Donaldson of Sausalito. Soloists will be two regular members of the choir, Mrs. Boyd Stockdale, soprano, of San Anselmo, and Robert Cover, bass, of Sausalito. Guest organist will be Mrs. Charles Meacham of Mill Valley. Don Francisco, organist for the church, will accompany on the piano. Miss Ruth O'Connor will be a guest singer in the alto section.

Tomorrow at 11 a.m. in the Presbyterian Church of Santa Venetia, the Kirk Choir under the direction of Dr. Judson Goodrich and with Mrs. Margaret Oakley at the console, will sing a narrated cantata, "Songs Before Dawn." Mrs. Herbert Gulbransen arranged the script and Thomas Collins will be narrator.

At 10:30 a.m. Sleepy Hollow Presbyterian Church will have reception of new members with a coffee hour in their honor following the worship service. The children will participate in the service by tthe carrying of palm branches and special songs symbolizing the Triumphal Entry of Jesus into Jerusalem.

Westminster Presbyterian Church, Tiburon, will hold confirmation for communicants at its 9 a.m. service; at 11 a.m. tomorrow there will be infant baptism and reception of new members.

Pastor Wesley C. Baker will preach on "The Covenant Comes Through" at the regular 9:30 and 11 a.m. services tomorrow in the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael.

ROMAN CATHOLIIC

At St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael, blessing of the palms will be held in the Mission Chapel at 6:45 a.m., followed by the procession to the church and high mass at 7 a.m. Palms will be distributed after all the masses, at 6, 7, 8, 9:15 and 10:30 a.m. and noon.

On Wednesday, masses will be held at 6:15, 7:30 and 8:30 a.m. Confessions will be heard from 3:30 to 6 and 7:30 to 9 p.m. Evening mass with sermon will be celebrated at 5:45 p.m.

At St. Sebastian's Parish, Kentfield-Greenbrae, there will be blessing of the palms, procession to the church and mass at 7 a.m. Blessed palms will be distributetd after the 7, 8:30, 10:30 a.m. and noon masses.

REV. KENNETH E. ANDERSON
Elevated to priesthood

Priesthood Ordination At St. Paul's

Rev. Kenneth E. Anderson was to be ordained to the priesthood this morning in colorful ceremonies in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, San Rafael.

According to St. Paul's rector, John D. Riley, today's was the second such ordination in the hundred-year history of the church, and featured some unusual aspects including developments of recent liturgical movement combined with aspects of the ancient Eastern Orthodox liturgies. Rev. Anderson and Rev. Riley were to concelebrate the pontifical ordination Mass with Rt. Rev. G. Richard Millard, suffragen bishop of the Diocese of California.

The Mass vestments worn by the ordinand were designed and made especially for the ceremony by his wife, the former Jill McGrath of Walnut Creek.

Rev. Anderson, a native of Long Beach and a graduate of Long Beach State College, was for two years a Los Angeles welfare worker before attending theological school in New York City

Jehovah Witnesses Attend Assembly

Marin County members of Jehovah's Witnesses today are participating in the second of three days of an area-wide assembly in Petaluma. L. W. Gorman, minister of the Kingdom Hall in San Rafael, was to speak this morning on "Bearing Thorough Witness in Our Ministry."

Gorman also is in charge of the public address system for the assembly, which is being attended by an estimated 1,400 members. W. D. Kitchel, an associate minister in the San Rafael congregation, is in charge of the assembly's chiecking and lost-and-found offices.

Jewish Faithful Recall Passover

Passover, a major Jewish festival more than 2,000 years old, will be celebrated by Marin County Jewish families beginning Friday evening.

This oldest of Jewish holidays commemorates the efforts of Moses to free his people from Egyptian bondage, and involves the entire Jewish family in recollections of the Exodus.

Congregation Rodef Sholom will observe the Passover holiday through April 23; members of Congregation Kol Shofar will participate in observances through April 24.

Although the festival's beginning is nearly a week away, members of both congregations, in cooperation with the Marin Jewish Community Center, are busily preparing for the traditional rituals.

A Family Passover workshop for the entire community will be held tomorrow from 3 to 5 p.m. at Temple Rodef Sholom, 170 North San Pedro Road, Santa Venetia.

The workshop is intended to help even the most unfamiliar persons learn how to celebrate this traditional holiday in their own homes.

Three simultaneous sessions each will be geared to a different member of the family. For the fathers, Rabbi Morris Schussheim of Congregation Kol Shofar will discuss specific ways to hold a meaningful Seder (The Passover Service in the home). He will discuss a Seder, for those not expert in Hebrew, how to interpret and contemporize the story and how to involve each member of the family.

Mrs. Rae Simpson, widely known Marin caterer, will conduct a session for mothers on preparing a Seder dinner. A full menu including Passover baking, matzo balls and other familiar specialties will be demonstrated.

The trained counselors and group leaders of the Jewish Center will work with the children recreating Passover in music, dramatics, crafts and dance.

Refreshment and a short social hour will conclude the workshop.

Congregation Kol Shofar will have a separate model Seder at 10 a.m. tomorrow in the Jewish Community Center, with a table set with all the traditional foods, candles, wine, unleavened bread and bitter herbs.

For Congregation Rodef Sholom, Passover will begin with a brief service in the Temple at 5:30 p.m. Friday. The families will then go home to the First Seder, which will open as the youngest child at the table asks the historic question.

"Why is this night different from all other nights?"

The head of the family then will read from the Haggadah, the elaborate book that recounts the Exodus, and the family will join in ancient songs and dine on special dishes, each with special meaning.

Rodef Sholom members will return to the Temple at 6:30 p.m. Saturday for the Community Seder, at which young pupils in the Hebrew classes will chant the traditional prayers. The congregation's final observance of the holiday will be the Yizkor service at 8:30 p.m. April 23, according to Rabbi Morton Hoffman.

Congregation Kol Shofar will hold its first worship service prior to the family Seder at 7 p.m. Friday. Rabbi Schussheim will officiate at a Passover service beginning at 9 a.m. the next day, another at 8:30 p.m. April 23, and the final service including the Yizkor memorial service beginning at 9 a.m. April 24. All the Kol Shofar services are in the Jewish Community Center, 1618 Mission Avenue, San Rafael.

Catholics Demand Anti-Bias Clause Of Contractors

The adoption of an equal opportunity clause in all contracts for the construction, repair and maintenance of church-related institutions throughout the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of San Francisco has been announced by Archbishop Joseph T. McGucken.

"The clause requires that the contractors shall not discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment because of race, color, creed, ancestry or national origiin," stated Archbishop McGucken.

"Moreover, it demands that the contractor shall take affirmative action to insure that all employees are given equal opportunity for apprenticeship training, advancement, rates of pay and other forms of compensation," he said.

Other paragraphs in the equal opportunity clause makes the contractor's records accessible to check on compliance with the ruling and provide that the clause will bind sub-contractors as well.

Teen-Agers Campaign With Gospel Tracts

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI) — Assemblies of God youth have contributed more than 9 million gospel tracts during the past two years in a concerted literature evangelism drive promoted by the denomination's Christ's Ambassadors (youth) Department.

GUEST MINISTER — Visitor to the pulpit of the Unitarian-Universalist Church of Marin, San Rafael, at the 11 a.m. service tomorrow will be Dr. Robert C. Kimball, professor of theology at Starr King School of the Ministry, Berkeley. His area of special interest is tthe future direction of church and theology, and their relationship to reality.

Episcopalian Group Offers Ideas On Bracero Problem

A solution for the present impasse over use of "bracero" farm labor in California has been proposed by Rt. Rev. James A. Pike, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of California, as he released the report of a special diocesan commission which has been studying the problem for the past month.

He suggested that the Secretary of Labor "should agree to permitting bracero labor this season, where it is established that indigenous labor is not available, after—and only after—agreement from the growers' associations and labor that government-sponsored consultations be initiated to the end that new standards of housing, wages and methods of recruitment be in effect by next season."

The Bishop's suggestion followed generally the lines of the commission report, except that it differed from the majority conclusion that the 1965 problem can be met by increased wages "and a real recruitment program" and that "we do not see any need for importation of foreign labor under the present laws."

The majority report was signed by Conrad Harris of San Francisco, vice chairman of the diocese's Intergroup Relations Committee and a former senior warden of St. Cyprian's Episcopal Church of that city, and James Martinez, a leading lay worker of Martinez.

The third member of the commission, Aime G. Michaud, former Marin County businessman, president of Del Monte Properties, expressed his conviction that the bracero program needs to be extended another year pending immediate passage of legislation to enforce better sanitary and living conditions for workers, "whether domestic or foreign" and studies by the Department of Labor to determine whether a phase-out program and definite cut-off date for the bracero program, as proposed by Governor Edmund G. Brown, are feasible.

Laymen's School Of Religion Announces Spring Class Series

Spring quarter for the Marin County branch of the Laymen's School of Religion will open the week of April 19 and will run for six weeks, according to Marin County chairman Mrs. Robert Jenkins.

Courses will be offered in three locations.

"The Stranger Inside You: Man's Search for Identity" will meet from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. on Mondays beginning April 19 at the San Francisco Theological Seminary, San Anselmo. Dr. Edward Stein, professor and dean of students at the Presbyterian seminary, will be the instructor.

"Conflict and Community in the Church and the Secular World," a course based on the thought of martyred theologian Dietrich Bonhoeffer, will meet Wednesdays beginning April 22 from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. at the Westminster Presbyterian Church, 240 Tiburon Boulevard, Tiburon. Instructor will be Rev. George Morgan, chaplain at the University of California Medical Center, San Francisco.

"Martin Buber and the Life of Dialogue" will meet Fridays, beginning April 23 from 10 a.m. to noon at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, 1123 Court Street, San Rafael. Instructor will be Dr. Muriel James, dean of the Laymen's School of Religion.

The school is a non-profit theological extension school for adults with branches in several Bay Area communities. Marin residents who serve on the board of directors include Dr. Theodore Gill, Dr. Arnold Come, both of the San Francisco Theological Seminary; Rev. Don Falkenberg, field director for the board of education, United Presbyterian Church; and Rev. Gordon Birky, executive secretary, Northern California Conference of Methodist Churches.

Pre-registration may be arranged by writing the Laymen's School of Religion, Box 655, Berkeley, or by calling Marin County members Mrs. Robert Jenkins, Mrs. Richard Stephens or Mrs. Joseph Taylor, all of Mill Valley.

Study Of Seniors Nearing Fruition

A two-year committee study of problems of the Marin County older citizen is nearing fruition.

The Citizens Advisory Committee appointed by the board of supervisors to work with the Marin Council of Community Services is polishing the final draft of a 70-plus page "master plan for older adults." The second of three weekly meetings to adopt the draft will be held Monday at 8 p.m. at 2144 Fourth Street, San Rafael, according to Richard Phenix, coordinator for the long-range study.

Last Monday the committee approved 31 pages of the master plan, including three major recommendations:

1. Compulsory retirement plans should be eliminated as standard practice wherever possible, on the grounds that putting any employee "out to pasture" purely on grounds of age does not fit the social or economic needs of society.

2. The board of supervisors should appoint a long-range, top-level committee including management, labor, pensioners, economic experts and a large civic representation, to decide how to carry out the first recommendation without unduly penalizing any generation.

3. Any Marin County employer with more than 24 employees should set up a pre-retirement training program. Smaller firms should cooperate with unions and educational institutions in sponsoring pre-retirement programs at central locations.

In its research, the committee found that 18,209 Marin County residents were 60 years of age or over, as of last Jan. 1. Of these, some 65 per cent are not identified with any "senior citizen" group nor identified on public service records, the master plan draft states.

The master plan calls for revamping society's view of the older adult's status in terms of economic hardship, productiveness, health, and other factors.

Once the master plan draft is completed by the committee, the board of supervisors will be asked to listen to a comprehensive presentation on it, Phenix said.

Rafferty Backs P.E. Classes

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Daily exercise is more important than ever, says Dr. Max Rafferty, and the legislature should not repeal state requirements for physical education classes in the public schools.

Rafferty, superintendent of public instruction, said in a letter to the California Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation yesterday that "abolition of the daily requirement could set the stage for complete removal of physical education from the schools."

Sen. George Miller, Jr., D-Martinez, is sponsoring a bill that would let school districts offer physical education on other than daily sessions, provided they met minimum requirements for each school year.

School Meeting

Mill Valley School District trustees will meet at 8 p.m. Monday in closed session to discuss the hiring of a teacher, District Supt. G. R. McConnell reported. A progress report by the district's consulting architect on proposed new classrooms, scheduled to be heard Monday, will be heard April 19 since the report is not complete.

Plan To Name Widow Deacon Causes Fuss

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 48-year-old widowed grandmother, for years a faithful servant of the Episcopal church, is prepared to stand firm in the center of a church controversy over an historic honor.

Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike of California said yesterday in New York that he would ordain Phyllis Edwards, a deaconess, to holy orders under revisions in church canon law. As such she would become a deacon.

If she were ordained as a deacon, she would be the first woman to hold the post in the Episcopal church. A deacon is a lay priest who is authorized to perform all functions of the ministry except the sacrament of marriage.

Most Episcopal deacons are businessmen who devote part-time services to holy orders.

A deaconess is a full-time worker in the church whose chief functions are to care for the sick, to teach and to assist priests.

Bishop Pike said a recent change in canon law makes it legal to ordain a deaconess, which would give her the same standing as a male deacon.

The bishop's announcement had a quick follow-up that caused a change in plans.

At the request of the standing committee of the Episcopal diocese of California, which ranks just below Bishop Pike in church affairs, the ordination of Mrs. Edwards was postponed a month.

"I happen to be available," said the deaconess, an assistant at the Episcopal Mission District church in San Francisco, "and I am willing to test the canon to see what it really means."

Mrs. Edwards' reference was to the Episcopal general convention in St. Louis last October which approved a canon amendment stating:

"A woman of devout character and proved fitness may be ordered (rather than appointed) deaconess by any bishop."

The mother of four children and the grandmother of eight dedicated herself fully to church work after her husband's death six years ago. Holder of a master's degree in Christian education from Seabury Western Seminary in Illinois, she became a fulltime deaconess last summer.

Hers is an order within the church whose chief functions are to care for the sick, to teach and to assist priests. Mrs. Edwards wears a habit derived from garb of the British nanny.

"The difficulty in the problem rests in tradition," she said in an interview. "If it isn't me, it will be someone else. Women are people, so it will happen, sooner or later."

School Pay Increases Are Urged

PACIFIC GROVE (AP)—Robert Phelps, a staff member of the California Teachers Association, says California will face a school personnel shortage unless teachers' salaries are raised.

Phelps told the semi-annual meeting of the CTA's 430-member State Council of Education yesterday that California had slipped from one of the highest paying states for college and university professor to one of the lowest.

He said that the state was consequently having difficulty filling 1,296 new faculty positions that will be needed by the end of 1965.

Phelps said a 15.8 per cent wage increase would be needed in the state colleges to boost state salaries to a position comparable to the high levels of the late 1950s. He said professors' salaries for state college professors range from $7,300 to $13,000.

Big 3 Strikes Again! Masters Pressure Mounts

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The pressure increased today as Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player shared a one-stroke lead going into the third round of the Masters tournament, once a cozy gathering for the golf elite.

Since Horton Smith won the first tourney and $1,500 in 1934, the Masters has mushroomed into an immense, colorful multi-million dollar spectacle.

It is televised nationally during the last two days and lures an estimated 40,000 to 50,000 spectators for each of the final days.

Palmer, the defending champion and four-times winner; Nicklaus and Player were shooting for a $20,000 first prize out of a more than $100,000 purse and the prestige of winning a sort of golfing Olympic, which draws the outstanding pros and amateurs of the world.

They were bunched at 138, six under par for the 6,980-yard course that turned killer again yesterday after being a soft touch on Thursday's opener.

The Saturday telecast by CBS-TV was set for 2 to 3 p.m. PST, and the Sunday telecast of the windup was scheduled from 1 to 2:30 p.m. PST.

Series tickets at $15 for the four days and a limited number of daily admissions at $7.50 each for Saturday and Sunday were sold out days ago. Rooms were at premium at distances of 30 to 50 miles from Augusta, a city of about 80,000 which lives for Masters week.

Augusta without the Masters would be like Pisa without the Leaning Tower, New York without Broadway or Venice without gondolas.

The airport was jammed with private planes and parking lots of the Augusta National Golf Club were jammed with cars from almost every state.

Almost everyone wears spiked golf shoes. If you don't have them with you, you can buy them along with folding chairs, shirts, shorts, golfing equipment and souvenirs at the various concession stands.

The players are pursued by autograph-seeking youngsters who apparently know more and care more about Arnie Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Chi Chi Rodriguez than Mickey Mantle and Sandy Koufax.

This is the way it was at Augusta when the final group of 49 went into the final 36 holes over a course that became tougher because of gusty winds, hard, fast greens, and difficult pin placements. The cutoff point was 148.

Close behind the co-leaders were Dan Sikes at 139, Tony Lema at 140, Tommy Aaron and Doug Sanders at 141, Bo Wininger at 142, and George Bayer at 143.

At even par 144 were six pros, including PGA champion Bobby Nichols, Byron Nelson and Billy Casper, one of the hot-shots of the winter tour now playing out of Peacock Gap, San Rafael, Calif.

"The Big Three strikes again," said Aaron, who looked at the scoreboard and saw the big red sixes for the three, indicating they were six under par at the halfway point.

Palmer, five strokes off the 65 pace set by Player Thursday, came charging in with a 34-34—68 for the best round yesterday. There were only three other subpar rounds — a 70 by Australian Kel Nagle and 71s by Nicklaus and Nichols — and only eight par-matching 72s. Nagle had 145.

Thursday, a windless and hot day when the greens held, 33 players smashed par and 11 tied it.

"It was a different course," said Palmer. "The wind was tricky and on some holes — the 15th for instance — the wind was dead in your face. This made it a gamble to go for the greens."

Palmer started off with three straight birdies and wound up with five in all and one bogey.

Nicklaus, after opening with a front nine 34, had consecutive bogies on the 11th, 12th and 13th holes, and then recouped with birdies on the 15th and 16th for 37.

"I was chipping poorly and deserved the bogies," said Nicklaus.

"The course played real tough," said Player, whose score soared to 36-37—73. He had one birdie and two bogies.

"I never played Augusta when the greens were so firm," added Player. "The pin placements were extremely difficult. I guess they didn't want us to score as we did the first day."

Sikes had one bogey and one par for his 72 to go with his opening 67.

"I think I played just as well as yesterday," said Sikes, "but the course was that much tougher."

Giants Send Marichal Against Bucs In Opener

D-Day Monday For New Pilot

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Monday will be D-day for Herman Franks of the San Francisco Giants and Harry (The Hat) Walker of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Franks, a Giant coach for many seasons, will be starting the season as manager in place of Alvin Dark, who was fired.

Walker, a former National League batting champion and minor league manager of the year last year at Jacksonville, will be handling the Pirates in place of Danny Murtaugh, who resigned for health reasons.

A crowd of 25,000 is expected to watch the Pirates open their 57th season at Forbes Field.

Two of the league's best pitchers in 1964 will start. Right-hander Juan Marichal, 21-8 last year, goes for the Giants against southpaw Bob Veale, 18-12 in 1964.

There will be no new faces in either starting line-up. In fact, the Pirates aren't even carrying any rookies.

'MAZ' MISSING

However, one of the Pirates' key men will be missing. He is second baseman Bill Mazeroski, out with a broken bone in his right foot. Gene Alley, a second year man, will replace him.

Roberto Clemente, who won the league batting title with a .339 mark last year, will be in right field but might not be up to par. He missed most of spring training because of malaria.

In 1964 the Giants finished fourth three games behind St. Louis. The Pirates tied for sixth, 13 games back.

Greatest Double In Track

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Randy Matson, the youthful Texas A&M giant, heaved the shot 67 feet, 11¼ inches last night — and that according to veteran observers, is bound to be the greatest double in track history.

The shot throw bettered Dallas Long's world record of 67 feet, 10 inches. The discus toss came within two feet, nine inches of the national college record.

And Matson, the 260-pound sophomore, has only started to work on the discus this year and made it secondary to the shot.

But there are indications that you haven't seen anything yet when it comes to such double feats.

Matson threw the shot 67 feet, 9 inches at the Texas Relays, and thus added 2¼ inches within a week. He had tosses of 66-1, 62-2½, 65-3, 66-10, 66-9½ and then his 67-11¼ performance on the last try.

Matson probably will pay more attention to the discus now that he has attained the world shot put record — something he had announced as his goal this year. Even so, he didn't expect to get it as quickly as he did.

Matson, second in the Olympic Games, is considered the best prospect to attain 70 feet in the shot who has come along.

THEY PRAY FOR RAIN FOR HOUSTON GAMES

By JOE REICHLER

HOUSTON (AP) — "I'm going home tonight and pray for the stormiest, windiest, rainiest day that's ever hit Texas. I'm going to pray like I never prayed before."

This was not the plaintive voice of a distraught farmer in the scorched wastelands of Judge Roy Bean's pecos country. It belonged to Luman Harris, manager of the Houston Astros.

Harris is a hardy soul with the tough, weather-beaten face of a man who has endured much. But he acknowledged sadly that he was sick over the spectacles he had witnessed the past two days inside this unbelievably magnificent $31.6 million structure.

Fly balls lost in the sun's glare through the maze of skylights, fused with the complicated jig-saw type latticework that comprises the dome, caused havoc among the outfielders and made playing in the daytime a hazard.

Consequently, there was grave concern among Houston officials for the afternoon exhibition games today and tomorrow against the Baltimore Orioles and Yankees.

The Astros play the same teams on both those nights, reversing the opposition. But there was no concern there. Playing conditions at night are perfect as proved by last night's performance. There wasn't a dropped fly ball in the ball game.

"We'll just have a keystone comedy," declared Paul Richards, the Astros' general manager. "It may not be baseball, but we'll have a lot of fun."

An intra-squad game Thursday and an afternoon workout by the Astros yesterday left no doubt in anyone's mind that baseball, in any recognizeable form, simply cannot be played under the dome in the daytime under present conditions.

The players simply cannot follow the ball when they have to look into the 4,596 skylights of transparent lucite.

Club President Roy Hofheinz and Richards, embarrased that this one flaw should mar their otherwise perfect air-conditioned stadium, have been searching frantically for a solution. None has been found as yet.

The players yesterday experimented with orange painted baseballs and sun glasses of various hues but none proved satisfactory.

"I don't care if you stripe the balls or paint 'em with polka dots," grumbled Harris. "I just don't believe any colored baseballs or any kind of glasses will help.

"When the sun is shining you might as well forget it. There's nobody in the world that's gonna catch 'em. Not even Willie Mays.

"It's embarrassing. I won't be at all surprised if the other clubs take their men off the field."

Hofheinz and Richards, who spent two days conferring with architects of the engineering company that built the stadium, hope to have a solution by then.

"We may have to blacken the dome and play with the lights on," said Richards. "This, of course, would kill the grass. But we could always bring in synthetic grass. That would be all right. I think synthetic grass would be better, anyway."

ALONG MARIN'S SPORTS TRAIL

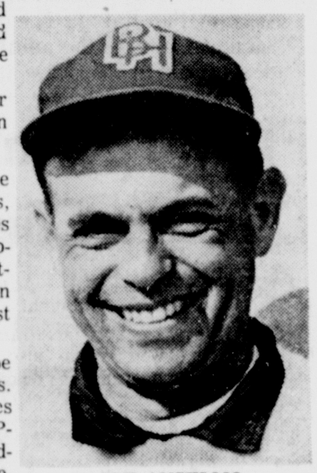
By JIM GILMARTIN
I-J Sports Editor

Here's A Vote For The Giants; Did Skinner Also Drop Pants?

Sports in shorts . . .

Pox on the A.P. and UPI for picking the Giants sixth. I picks'em to win the whole shootin' match simply because Mr. Juanderful Marichal won't miss seven starts and Jack Sanford won't miss half the season and the rest of the club won't suffer the multitude of sinjuries that plagued 'em last year when they finished only three games behind the champ Cards.

So there, put that in your prognosticating pipe and puff on it for awhile.



JOE ANSELMO

IF THERE'S a Hall of Fame for sports announcing highlights, Mill Valley resident Russ Hodges rates an accolade for his description of Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder Bob Skinner dropping an easy fly against the Giants last year.

Radio KSFO is using the tape of that play in its promotions. You know, the one where Hodges repeats the phrase "he DROPPED the ball" with the incredulity that would lead you to believe Skinner also dropped his pants.

P.S. I still say we're lucky to have the Hodges-Simmons announcing the Giants.

COLLEGE OF MARIN track and field team participated in a meet at Santa Rosa Thursday. That's right, Thursday—the day it rained so hard.

You see, it's possible to hold track meets during inclement weather at Santa Rosa because they have one of those new-fangled rubberized tracks. They may lose a few shots, javelins and discuses and pole vaulters may have to wear pontoons to land safely for the unprotected field events, but the track runners are assured of good footing.

Those rubberized tracks have given us sports scribes a bit of a problem. We used to be able to refer to runners as "cindermen." Now we have to call them "rubbers" and it just doesn't sound right. Snappy, but awkward.

TALK ABOUT jinxes or models of frustration, take, for example, the semi-pro baseball rivalry between Billings-Hutchison Builders of Marin and Milen's Jewelers.

They've met 12 times with the Jewelers winning all 12 . . . 11 times by the margin of one run.

B-H manager Joe Anselmo (no relation to Ralph Rafael or Lord Fairfax) gets all wound up each spring just thinking about the frustrating prospect of playing the precision-made tick tockers.

I think Mr. Milen opened a Marin branch of his chain just to rub it in.

I SEE where they're finding some glaring flaws in the new Houston Astrodome. However, give it time and things will straighten out. After all, dome wasn't built in a day.

NAME GAME in local prep baseball box scores: Bill Shine of Marin Catholic and Rocky Shone of San Rafael. So as not to mix them up, we call them Verb and Past Participle, respectively.

PREP SPORTS SLATE MURDERED BY RAINS

Heavy rains murdered yesterday's prep spring sports schedule, with everything washed out but a pair of swimming meets.

The Marin Athletic League baseball tournament was cancelled by Thursday when a steady downpour flooded Albert Field. In track and field, two scheduled meets yesterday were postponed, Tamalpais at Marin Catholic and Terra Linda at Drake. Make up dates have not yet been set.

Two swimming meets were held during the rain, but the Tamalpais at Novato meet was postponed and will be made up later.

Tennis matches called off were Napa at Novato, Drake at Vanden High in Travis Air Force Base, and Tam at St. Ignatius in San Francisco.

Major Leagues Play Ball Monday

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Indoor baseball in Houston's domed stadium, prospects of another wild scramble in the National League and danger signs for the New York Yankees add zest to the new baseball season opening Monday on nine fronts

Tired of waiting in the wings for the Presidential gala at Washington and Cincinnati's traditional opener, most of the other clubs also will start playing for keeps Monday. The Chicago White Sox and Baltimore Orioles will be the only idle teams. They open Tuesday at Baltimore.

The Yankees, as usual, are favored to win the American League pennant. They're shooting for an unprecedented sixth straight. But all is not well in CBS-land.

Mickey Mantle's aching legs have been shifted to left field. Clete Boyer and, until last Thursday, Roger Maris, had non-baseball problems on their minds. Whitey Ford has been bombed steadily. Manager Johnny Keane, who pulled the feat of the year in 1964 by winning a pennant and World Series in St. Louis and then shifting to the Yankees, has had some disturbing experiences.

All of which has given new hope to the Orioles and White Sox, regarded as the two prime contenders, as well as to the longer shots like Detroit, Cleveland, Minnesota and even the Los Angeles Angels.

Even the odds-makers have trouble separating the men from the boys in the National League, where the defending champion St. Louis Cardinals have a host of challengers.

Philadelphia, Cincinnati, San Francisco, Milwaukee and Los Angeles all figure to have a chance in the league where no team has repeated as winner since Milwaukee in 1957-58.

Counting Bob Swift, who is sitting in as acting boss for the ailing Chuck Dressen at Detroit, there are eight new managers.

Keane, of course, is hardly new but he is new to Yankee Stadium. Dick Sisler, who filled in during the fatal illness of Fred Hutchinson last season, has taken over on his own at Cincinnati. Lum Harris did have a few days last fall after succeeding Harry Craft at Houston.

Three coaches moved up: Billy Herman at Boston, Red Schoendienst at St. Louis and Herman Franks at San Francisco. Harry Walker was rewarded for success in the minors by being given the Pittsburgh manager's job.

The Phillies, who came so close last year, help Houston open its new Astrodome in the only night game in the National League.

The defending champion Cardinals will be at Chicago, where World Series star Bob Gibson will oppose the top winner of 1964, Larry Jackson.

Milwaukee will help the Reds stage their traditional opener before a full house and Willie Mays and Co. of the Giants will open at Pittsburgh. The Dodgers, substituting Don Drysdale for Koufax as the starter, are doing the Mets no favor for their opener at Shea Stadium.

If the remnants of winter have drained away the Yanks will open defense of the American league pennant in Minnesota. The Presidential opener in Washington finds the Boston Red Sox matched with the new-look Senators.

In the two American League night games it will be Detroit at Kansas City, where Charlie Finley will unveil his new mule Mascot, and Cleveland at Los Angeles.

Celtic Reign At End? 76ers Jolt Champs In Overtime

Series All Even Now; Bullets Defeat Lakers

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Maybe the Boston Celtics won't win an unprecedented seventh straight championship in the National Basketball Association after all.

The Philadelphia 76ers came from behind to defeat the Celtics in overtime 134 - 131 last night and square their best-of-7 Eastern Division final playoffs at two games apiece.

The Baltimore Bullets also came from behind to beat the Los Angeles Lakers 114-112 and even the Western Division final playoffs at 2-2. Don Ohl scored the winning basket on a jump shot with 48 seconds left.

A sensational 35-foot shot by Hal Greer with just one second to go gained the 76ers an 118-118 tie in regulation time before 9,293 at Philadelphia. The 76ers opened a five-point lead in the overtime and stayed on top after breaking a 123-123 tie on Lucious Jackson's shot from the side.

Boston seemingly had the game wrapped up with a four-point lead at 118-114 with one minute left. Jackson hit a 25-footer with 34 seconds. The 76ers regained possession on a missed Boston shot and Larry Jones threw high to Greer.

SWISH BUZZ

Greer caught the ball, pivoted in midair and let fly. The ball swished through the hoop as the buzzer sounded.

"It went perfect," Greer said afterwards. "I didn't throw it. It was a shot that went right in, like it should."

"Nobody could have gotten off a shot with just one second left, it was impossible," said a disappointed Red Auerbach, Boston coach.

Wilt Chamberlain termed Greer's shot a "Wilt Chamberlain saver" because the Big Dipper had missed four straight free throws in the last minute of regulation play.

"I got even in the overtime," said Chamberlain who scored 34 points, grabbed 34 rebounds and handed out three assists. Sam Jones' 36 points for Boston was high for the game.

NATIONAL TV

The series now shifts back to Boston tomorrow afternoon where the fifth game will be played with a national television audience looking on. "Sunday's going to be the day," said Dolph Schayes, Philadelphia coach. "We're overdue to win one in Boston."

The fifth game in the Baltimore-Lakers series also will be played tomorrow with the Lakers back home in Los Angeles where they won the first two games of the series.

A Baltimore turnout of 10,642, the best of the season, saw the Bullets overcome a 112-108 Los Angeles lead in the last two minutes. Ohl, who finished with 28 points, also tied the score at 112-112 before he sank the winning basket.

Jerry West threw in 48 points for the Lakers who played with the injured Elgin Baylor and Dick Barnett. This upped his four-game point total to 193, but the former All-America from West Virginia tired and missed four shots in the last two minutes.

"Jerry was extremely tired even in the first half," said Fred Schaus, Laker coach. "But I had to use him the entire second half."

West did score a basket with one minute to go, but it was nullified when teammate Rudy LaRusso was charged with a foul on the play.

SKI SHAKEUP: SNOW GALORE

By JACK STEVENSON

TAHOE CITY, Calif. (AP) — Too much snow for the springtime month of April in California causes consternation for the state's biggest ski meet of the year.

The continuing storm in the Sierra already has brought switches in the program.

Originally, the giant slalom at the far west Kandahar was scheduled for today. But as the wet snow continued to fall, the shorter slalom was moved up in the program for this meet at Alpine Meadows, a ski resort which has sprung to life since the 1960 Winter Olympics were held at Squaw Valley five miles away.

Footpackers, trying to set a giant slalom course, sank in snow up to their midriffs yesterday, so finally it was decided this race could not be run.

Instead, the men and women ski stars of the world were scheduled for a pair of two-run slaloms—one today and the second on Sunday.

Canadian stars Nancy Greene and Peter Duncan head the fields, each having won American combined championships a week ago at Crystal Mountain in Washington state.

Challenging were members of the United States and Swiss national teams, plus individuals from Great Britain, Italy and Japan.

Three courses were set for the slalom, each with a vertical drop of 500 feet over a distance of 220 yards on Scott Peak.

The Kandahar honors the British racing society with Bunny Fields, the only racer from Great Britain entered.

Snow has fallen all week and packers were unsuccessful in keeping up with it at the higher elevation. This brought cancellation of the giant slalom, a serpentine race of more than a mile.

More snow would jeopardize the entire meet.

Should the slaloms be run as scheduled, Jean Claude Killy of France ranks as the favorite, challenged by Canada's Duncan and the United States contingent led by Bill Maroldt and Billy Kidd.

Heavy snow on the Donner Summit, enroute from San Francisco to this new ski area, also reduced the spectator attendance for the international meet.

Champs Crowned In Cage Leagues

A and E Garage, San Rafael Teachers, and Sheriff's Deputies are the champion teams in the San Rafael Recreation Department Adult Basketball League.

Final playoff games were played last Monday. The garage team beat Marin Tigers 67-63, led by Joe McGrath's 20 points, for the B-1 title; the teachers whipped Marin Probation 65-59, led by Mike Diaz with 30 points, for the B-2 crown; and the deputies won the "C" title by walloping the Post Office 63-27. John Coleman led the winners in that game with 22 points.

The Hustlers won second place in the "C" division by beating Marin Gardens 60-41, and the Mill Valley Boys Club took second in the B-2 division by downing Cains Tires 73-65.

Is Arnie A Wife-Beater? Course Is Made Tougher

By KELSO STURGEON

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Honest, folks, Arnold Palmer doesn't beat his wife after shooting a bad round of golf.

"Hey, Arnie, did you really beat your wife with your putter yesterday?" someone shouted at Palmer after he tied for the lead in the Masters Golf Tournament yesterday.

"After Thursday's round, I commented to someone that I believed I'd just go home and beat my wife," Palmer jested. "Someone wrote a big story about it . . . and I guess that explains why my wife didn't speak to me this morning."

The conversation illustrates how cool Palmer is in his effort to become the first golfer to win a fifth Masters championship.

Palmer turned in a four-under par 68 yesterday on a course made almost impossible by pin placements and gusty winds. This left him tied with Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player with a 138 at the end of 36 holes.

"The pin placements today were probably as difficult as I've ever seen them," Palmer said. "It looked like they (tournament officials) didn't think the wind was going to blow like it did.

"After the scoring Thursday, I can't say that I blame them too much," Palmer added noting that 44 persons fired par or better opening day.

Palmer shot a 70 on Thursday, which was two under par but five strokes off the pace-setting Player. He said the big difference in the first and second rounds was his chipping.

"The course played almost as difficult today as it played easy yesterday," he said. "I chipped pretty good although I actually didn't play any better than yesterday."

Player and Nicklaus also had plenty to say about the difficult pin placements, but both made it clear they didn't think tournament officials were being unfair.

"It was extremely difficult out there today," said Player. "Obviously whoever placed the pins didn't want anyone to score. You could have hit a bag of balls onto some of those greens and still never have come within 10 feet of the pin.

"But I'm not complaining. I'm happy with my round," he said. Player fired a 73 to go with Thursday's 65.

"The greens putted real well today, but they were tough," said Nicklaus who shot a 71 to go with his opening round 68. "But it wasn't unfair."

Marin Teens Conservative In Graduation Ceremonies

By JEFF GREER

Marin County teen-agers are conservatives, when it comes to graduation ceremonies.

"Pomp and Circumstances" won't ring out for two months yet, but already senior class leaders and school administrators are toiling to put together graduation programs for mid-June.

Students have varying degrees of freedom to shape the programs at the different high schools. But they won't be doing anything drastically different from what the classes of 1964—or of 1924—did.

Redwood High School's seniors have the most responsibility of any students in the county for their graduation ceremony's format. The only requirement, explained Principal Donald Kreps, is that somewhere along the line, the principal gets a chance to vouch to the district superintendent that the senior class has fulfilled requirements for graduation and that diplomas are in order.

Otherwise, the program's speakers and format are all the student's doing.

Proposed innovations in the program have kept seniors abuzz in their government classes, leading to an election which resulted in an impasse, finally decided by class president Mike Russell.

The seniors voted down a proposal that the class valedictorian receive one symbolic diploma for the entire class, eliminating the proud hike across the stage for all the hundreds of other graduates. Also turned down was a proposal that the June 14 ceremony in the school gymnasium begin with the seniors striding in, singing "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

The impasse arose over whether the choir should sing one number or three; Russell recommended two.

"I don't think we have any right to change the graduation. . . . We owe it to our parents," declared one senior. Another thought the one-diploma idea desirable as "a new track with more advanced ideas."

The Pledge of Allegiance, invocation and all other speeches in the Redwood program are handled by students.

At San Rafael High, graduation format is "pretty much decided by tradition" and the advice of administrators, according to Dean of Girls Florence Abraham. The coeds have voted that each will carry flowers in the ceremony at 8 p.m. June 18 in the school gym, when about 470 seniors will get diplomas. Invitations to deliver an invocation are rotated among pastors, unless one of the graduates' parents happens to be a clergyman.

The seniors have almost total responsibility in planning the social functions of the final week, such as the senior ball, and decide on their own format for graduation announcements and whether they'll be sent. Baccalaureate services are not sponsored by the school.

Drake High seniors met Monday with advisers to plan their June 18 gradaution rites.

Principal Harold Allison said there will be few innovations.

Five outstanding students, selected by faculty members, will speak on a theme of their own choosing; the ceremony will include presentation of various awards as well as diplomas. Most of the other schools will hold separate awards assemblies for presentation of scholarships and the like.

The Drake students will select a minister to offer the invocation at the graduation exercise. Traditionally no benediction is offered, Allison said.

Terra Linda High officials "have to be fairly dictatorial" about the June 18 commencement format, because the only spot available for ceremonies is the amphitheater, which is strained to the bursting point by the number of seniors and relatives, according to Daniel Thornes, assistant dean.

To speed up the outdoor rites, with their long-drawn handing out of diplomas, the number of speeches will be minimal, Thorner predicted. He said details are being discussed with senior class leaders.

Terra linda social functions already in the planning stage include a June 12 senior ball at the Corinthian Yacht Club. School officials have questioned County Counsel Douglas Maloney about propriety of the school sponsoring a baccalaureate service and other religious features of gradaution events.

Tamalpais High Principal Robert H. Prather said a student committee is just shaping up, to begin work with faculty members on format of the June 20 graduation in the outdoor ampitheater.

Novato High's graduation June 10 will include talks by foreign exchange students, plus the usual features, according to senior adviser Jon Michael Gragg. Student speakers have yet to be chosen; the decisions are based on grade points.

The school's seniors have decided they want a baccalaureate service the Sunday preceeding; they will invite the community's ministers to select a clergyman. Plans are still vague for the senior ball June 5 at Peacock Gap. Senior Week also will include a breakfast, picnic, banquet and other activities—to be followed this year by final exams.

The former years' custom of giving the seniors their exams earlier than the rest of the students "has been a sore spot with other high schools," Gragg noted.

The tradition of sending announcements has withered, even though it benefits the class treasury, he commented. Novato students "say it's not that important, that you're only asking for a gift" by sending the announcements, he reported.

546 Placed In New Jobs

There were 546 job placements made through the San Rafael office of the State Department of Employment last month, 46 more than were made in March, 1964, Edwin W. Ayer, office manager, announced yesterday:

Student job placements rose from 99 in February to 157 last month. Increase in placements from February to March was a result of more job openings for domestic help and yard men because of good weather, Ayer said.

Decrease in payment of unemployment insurance benefits from 1,398 per week in February to 1,140 per week last month was attributed to increased construction activity and retail trade.

Religious Service Up To Schools

The Marin county counsel's office has given county school trustees pretty much their own say in deciding policy on baccalaureate services, benedictions and invocations and similar religious functions in school programs.

In essence, the opinion expressed is that although the United States Supreme Court has barred schoolroom prayer in certain situations, "the court has recognized that governmental agencies are not to be hostile toward religion even though they are supposed to remain neutral."

The opinion was written last month by Deputy County Counsel James F. Gustin, in response to a question put by Terra Linda High School officials through the San Rafael High School District, regarding "the legality of certain religious services in high school graduation ceremonies."

Justin's three-page reply consisted mainly of citations of court rulings. It concluded, in part:

"We would hesitate to advise you to eliminate all references to religion in your graduation ceremony as we do not feel that is the intention of the court. However, there is an element of risk. . . . Any sponsorship by the school tends toward establishment of religion. Our advice would be to have the religious aspect . . . on a completely voluntary basis . . . in that the various religious denominations are asked to participate. School district personnel might be involved as host and moderator of such a ceremony, but we would advise against such personnel actually conducting the service. . . . Sponsorship should be permissive and not mandatory."

THE SAVAGE CELL

It Begins To Appear Cancer Is Often Affected By Mind

one) prior to the appearance of cancer symptoms.

Twentieth Century literature includes such nonsense as: "Dull' cancer patients do better than "bright" ones.

Patients in whom the disease does not proceed rapidly tend to be "worthless rascals and totally irresponsible fanatics."

Patients with cancer of the uterine cervix are subject to dislike for sexual intercourse, failure to attain an orgasm, frequent divorces, and a tendency to marry men who drink.

Breast-cancer patients have these characteristics: masochism, inhibited sexuality, inhibited motherhood feelings, inability to deal appropriately with anger, hostility under a facade of pleasantness, unresolved conflicts with mothers, and the use of denial as a psychological defense, usually against guilt.

Men with lung cancer often suffer from serious martial problems, venereal disease, and alcoholism; men with prostatic cancer are tractable, easy to please, unaggressive.

People with skin cancer tend to become depressed easily, one study contends.

Experimental animals can be matched genetically, for age and physical condition. They can share precisely the same environment. They and control animals can be paired or separated into groups with true mathematical randomness. They can be subjected to similar experimental conditions and yield measurable results.

At the University of Illinois Medical School, for example, scientists found that some stresses -- surgery or heat (110 degrees F.) but not cold (32 degrees F.) — increase rat's susceptibility to injected cancer.

The burden of evidence in animal experiments is that stresses do speed the course of cancer, although there is only the most tenuous indication that stress by itself will help initiate cancer.

In other experiments, mice subjected to the trauma of a surgical operation and the application of chemicals which cause cancer, showed substantially more and earlier cancers than mice given the carcinogens only.

Many authorities feel that emotions well may be related to cancer; but they deplore most of the present-day clinical approaches to the problem — approaches which are unscientific or pseudoscientific. One of the exponents of the scientific approach is Dr. Eugene Pendergrass of the University of Pennsylvania, former president of the American Cancer Society. He has said:

"I personally have observed cancer patients who had undergone successful treatment and were living and well for years. Then an emotional stress such as the death of a son in battle, the infidelity of a daughter-in-law or the burden of long employment seems to have been the precipitating factor in reactivating the disease which resulted in death.

"The opposite may obtain. I have patients with extensive malignant disease spread throughout the body who are living with their disease and living in comfort. The disease has been controlled by radiation, surgery, hormones and supportive care. These patients live in happy homes.

"Even if psychological factors have no influence on the course of the disease, they have a great deal to do with the well-being of the patient. We as doctors must begin to emphasize treatment of the patient as a whole, as well as the disease."

Two Intoxicated Drivers Fined

Daniel Patrick Coyle, 47, of 61 Pixley Avenue, Corte Madera, and Donald LeRoy Sullivan, 41, Rohnert Park, Sonoma County, were each fined $166 Thursday in Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving.

Both were arrested by California Highway Patrol on Highway 101—Coyle on March 29 and Sullivan on March 30.

Beautification Jobs Planned

If the rain stops, the Belvedere Recreation Commission next week will sponsor a city beautification project which also will provide jobs for vacationing students.

Belvedere students will be given first consideration in applying for city jobs at $1.50 an hour to weed the walkway along San Rafael Avenue next to Richardson Bay. City crews will supervise the work, scheduled for 8 a.m. to noon each day.

Students may apply at the city hall for the Easter vacation work and for a summer work program which will include weeding, clearing and minor repairs of lanes in Belvedere.

Books On Careers

A vocational library shelf, with books on careers and job opportunities, has been set up in the counselling center of the College of Marin thanks to a $200 gift from the San Rafael Kiwanis Club.

A MESSAGE TO OUR ADVERTISERS!

The next time you call an ad taker to place a Classified Ad in the I-J, stop and consider this. You are about to spend some money for an advertisement and of course you want to get the utmost in results. To accomplish this your ad should tell ALL THE DETAILS about the things you are trying to accomplish. Be sure you don't make any of the following errors that frequently prevent results . . .

DON'T: OMIT THE PHONE NUMBER!

DON'T: OMIT THE ADDRESS!

Many out of town readers will write you but will not spend money for a long distance phone call.

DON'T: USE BLIND BOX NUMBERS!

Avoid them at all costs. They are difficult to answer. It is more convenient to phone or write directly.

DON'T: LEAVE HOME ON DAYS OTHERS MIGHT ANSWER YOUR AD!

DON'T: OMIT WORDS THAT WOULD TEND TO INCREASE THE NUMBER OF RESPONSES!

DON'T: CONCEAL THE PRICE DESIRED!

DO: GIVE YOUR AD SOME THOUGHT BEFORE CALLING AN AD TAKER!

DO: RUN YOUR AD MORE THAN ONE, TWO OR THREE DAYS!

Not all of our readers are home every day. Just the person who wants what you are offering may not see your ad until the 4th, 5th or 7th time it runs.

$38,750 NEW DELUXE SPLIT LEVEL 3 BR-2½ baths. Exquisite charm, quality — numerous plush appointments. Oaks, redwoods and a babbling brook! QUICK COMMUTE, TOO!

$31,950 PETERS BUILT means "well done!" 3 BR-2 baths. ALL ROOMS ARE LARGE & this 2 yr. old gets an extra feeling of spaciousness from the exposed beam ceiling. The well planned, all elect. kitch. is a DREAM! Wall-to-wall over hardwood. Fenced yard is large and level (as your table). Trees all around but sun all day and NO WIND! VACANT — WE HAVE THE KEY!

$28,890 MOVING TO THE CITY (poor people!) and only 20 minutes away. Their 4-yr.-old charmer has 3 BR-2 great baths, elect. kitch., raised hearth fireplace, gabled roof with exposed rafter beams. Insulated. All on one level with large level rear yard. GREAT VIEW from the home and yard. 2 car garage and workshop under. JUST REDUCED.

$29,000 GREEN THUMB? This unusual opportunity for gardeners is just 2 minutes from the highway. About 14,000 sq. ft. level knoll type setting, planted in a wide variety of fruit and nut trees and flowers. There's a sprinkler system and, incidentally, a delightful 2-bedroom home with a large detached garage. JUST LISTED!

$26,900 NONE BETTER in southern Marin! This 4-yr.-old shows as well as if new. 6 rooms 3 BR., 2 ceramic tile baths. Complete built-in elect. kit. Large basement area, easily expanded. Lovely, quiet country setting with VIEW!

$26,900 JUST MARRIED? Let us show you just how easy it is to expand this one-large-bedroom home. Only 18 mos. old. There's a terrific view from the commodious living room which contains a brick fireplace. Full elect. kit. with snack bar. Deluxe ceramic tile bath with vanity.

$19,900 RUN DOWN. Yes, but very clean and most charming! 13,000 sq. ft. of one of the most exhilarating views in ALL NORTHERN CALIFORNIA of S.F. and the E. Bay. Beautifully studded with evergreen trees.

Custer Was Loser, But Show Is Winner

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The worst part about Custer's last stand is that he lost so embarrassingly, which only inspired the government to press west against the Indians — and now look what's happened. As the fellow in a recent cartoon said, while admiringly surveying a grimy industrial site: Just think—this all used to be wilderness.

Well, to work. Gen. Custer, who has a special place in the hearts of 20th century losers, was the subject last night of another "re-enacted" documentary in ABC-TV's superlative "Saga of Western Man" series, which is produced and directed by John Seconari and his wife Helen Jean Rogers.

The documentary noted that Custer was a teetotaler and loved to fight. This should have been a tipoff on him, but the subtleties of this mixture apparently did not make too much impression at the time. He was courageous and loved his wife, and finished last in his class at West Point, so naturally the newspapers loved him. It was mutual. But even a press agent couldn't describe him as a general's general. Eventually he needed a comeback for his fading career, and the action at the Little Big Horn looked to be it.

The trouble was that neither the Indians nor Custer had ever heard of government by concensus. Experts on the battle will tell you, by the way, to forget the word "massacre" since Custer wasn't in the vicinity just because he happened to be riding around the countryside enjoying the scenery. In any case, the Indians won, but the government and Hollywood took care of them after that.

Custer's story was a natural for television. But what made it a worthy hour was that the Secondaris took what by now is an ancient plot — the government-Indian conflict and the settlers moving west — and, instead of resting on this easy saleability, gave it a human dimension and even, as is usual with their works, a sense of physical beauty. The scenery was exquisite, but it would not have been so to the viewer if the makers of the film had not appreciated this fact.

CHANNEL SWIM: Basketball's champion Boston Celtics, playing at home, take on Wilt Chamberlain and Philadelphia in an Eastern divisional title game Sunday on ABC-TV at 2 p.m. EST. . .Dr. Jonas Salk is interviewed on NBC-TV's "Today" show Monday.

Johnson Delayed By Bomb Scare

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — There was a bomb scare but President Johnson showed no concern last night as he and 50,000 other fans watched air conditioned baseball.

An anonymous report that a bomb had been placed in the $31.6 million Harris County Domed Stadium proved false but it caused the President and the first lady to be late for the opening of the all-weather structure.

They saw 7½ innings as the Houston Astros opened their astrodome by beating the New York Yankees 2-1 in 12 innings.

Unification Television Show Monday

Many Marin residents will see themselves Monday night on a one-hour television documentary about the controversy over proposed unification of the Tamalpais High School District.

The program will be aired at 10 p.m. Monday on KPIX, channel five. It will feature footage edited from some 16 hours shot at hearings of the County Committee on School District Organization.

In addition, there will be comments on the April 20 ballot measure by two committee members, Mrs. Joseph B. Wallace and David D. Ring, and commentary by the station's Wanda Ramey, who lives in Mill Valley. Mrs. Wallace will speak in favor of the plan; Ring will oppose it.

To the dismay of the committee members, the program will be aired at the same hour that another station is presenting a special network documentary on a social topic. As a result, Mrs. Wallace said, KPIX officials may agree to show it again later.

Truck Driver Hurt In Crash

A garbage truck driver was trapped in the cab of his truck at 11 a.m. yesterday after it rolled down a three block hill in Tiburon, ripping out trees in its path and crashing into a bus stop.

Driver John McClain of Oakland was pulled from the cab by Marin County sheriff's deputies. He was treated for a bruised abdomen at Marin General Hospital, where he was said to be in good condition today.

His brother, Otis McClain of Berkeley, clung to the rear of the careening Mill Valley Refuse Service truck and rode it down the hill, but was unhurt.

The truck hit the bus stop at Stewart Drive and Tiburon Boulevard.

John McClain told deputies his brakes failed.

Handicapped Girl Dies In Blaze

VALINDA (AP) — Firemen say a handicapped 14-year-old girl died when fire swept her home in this community near La Puente.

Betty Zitzka perished despite attempts by her mother, Lydia, 48, to rescue her yesterday. Firemen said the teen-ager was crippled and partially blind.

Mrs. Zitzka tried to reach her daughter by climbing through a rear window of the three-bedroom dwelling, but heat and smoke forced her to give up the rescue effort.

Firemen estimated the damage at $18,000.

Officer Cleared In Shooting Boy

OAKLAND (AP) — An Alameda County coroner's jury decided yesterday that the police shooting of a 15-year-old fleeing from a stolen car March 22 was "lawful homicide."

Michael Corcoran was gunned down about 3:05 a.m. by Officer Raymond L. Deaton who testified at the coroner's hearing that he had shouted warnings before firing on the boy.

The jury deliberated 13 minutes before returning the verdict. Corcoran had never been in serious trouble before, but he had a minor police record for loitering.

Driver Injures Ankle In Crash

Charles S. Young, 32, of Walnut Creek, was in good condition at Marin General Hospital today with a broken ankle after his car ran off Sir Francis Drake Boulevard near San Quentin Prison at 1:30 a.m. this morning and hit a power pole.

California Highway Patrol, who investigated the accident half a mile east of Highway 101, said the car was demolished. No other vehicle was involved.

Thieves Scared Off By Police

Two men attempting to steal a boat, outboard motor and trailer from the Western Boat Shop 101 Third Street, San Rafael were scared into abandoning their loot but managed to escape pursuing policemen at 3:30 p.m. Thursday.

Patrolman John Loane said he noticed brake lights flashing at the boat shop, and as he drove up to investigate a 1958 or 59 light-colored Rambler station wagon sped away with two men inside. He found a 16-foot boat and trailer in the middle of Third Street, alerted other units and gave chase. The suspects apparently escaped via Highway 101, he said.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Changes In Hands, Feet Noted When Circulation Is Poor

VAN DELLEN

When the circulation is inadequate, many changes are noted in the hands and feet. Coldness is not always a reliabe index because normal blood vessels are capable of going into spasm and the temporary reduction in flow lowers the skin temperature. This explains why some nervous individuals complain of cold hands and feet, even though the vascular system is normal.

Hardening of the arteries is seldom a problem until the flow of blood is reduced 70 to 80 per cent. The tissues complain when they do not receive enough blood to function properly and degeneration occurs when blockage ensues. The skin becomes tight, shiny, and dry; nails become brittle and growth is disturbed. In some instances, the ends are thickened and curled like horns. Muscle strength is affected and there is an overall wasting of the limb.

VARIATIONS in the color of the skin also are circulatory clues. When the bloodless extremity is elevated, the flesh assumes a waxy pallor or pale yellow appearance. The small amount of blood in the leg drains off quickly and the flow is impaired to such an extent that the supply is not replenished.

The affected part takes on a dusky hue when hanging down in the dependent position. This is due to stagnation in the vessels; the blood scarcely moves because the flow is obstructed. In addition, the color deepens as the corpuscles lose oxygen. Pressure on the skin with the finger leads to blanching. On release the color returns within a few seconds but when the circulation is blocked, a longer period is required before the skin returns to normal.

CHARACTERISTIC symptoms also are noted when the circulation is impaired. Fatigue and weakness of the extremities are not unusual in arteriosclerosis. Many develop a cramp in the calf of the leg after walking a few blocks. This is relieved on standing a few minutes, only to recur after walking an equal distance. This symptom is more noticeable in cold weather and when walking rapidly or uphill.

Discomfort developes regardless of exertion as the impairment gets worse. It may be so severe at rest that the individual has difficulty sleeping. The end result is gangrene unless the blockage is by-passed by a graft or medicine is used to improve the circulation.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

WEIGHT GAIN

F. C. writes: Is it true that drinking beer makes the abdomen grow?

REPLY

Yes. Beer contains colaries. Gain in weight can be expected when the total number of calories exceed that required for energy, growth, and tissue repair. A bay window frequently is the first sign of weight gain.

NARCOLEPSY

J. L. writes: What is the name of the disease that causes a person to fall asleep when walking down the street or sitting still?

REPLY

Narcolepsy. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on this condition.

RED EYES

G. K. writes: What causes the eyes to be extremely red the day after a few drinks the night before?

REPLY

Alcohol dilates the vessels of the skin and conjunctiva of the eye.

LARGE NOSE

A. P. writes: Is there any help for a boy with a large nose?

REPLY

Plastic surgery.

HICCUPING GIRL

W. B. writes: My 8-year-old daughter has hiccups several times every day. What can be done about it?

REPLY

Encourage her to eat more slowly and not gulp her food. A glass of water or holding the breath usually relieves hiccups at this age.

BLOCKED TEAR DUCT

F. P. writes: If nothing is done about an obstructed tear duct, will vision be affected in time?

REPLY

No, but the tears cannot drain into the nose and will flow over the lower lids and down the cheeks.

MORNING HEADACHES

F. H. writes: What is the cause of morning headaches?

REPLY

Tension, sinus trouble, arthritis of the neck vertebrae, and high blood pressure are the most common causes of morning headache.

ITCHY EYELIDS

J. D. writes: Several times a day my eyelids get very itchy. It this caused by a fungus infection?

REPLY

This is doubtful, even though the lids are inflamed. Most of these infections are caused by staphylococci.

ARTHRITIC SPINE

Mrs. F. L. writes: Can someone who has arthritis of the spine be helped?

REPLY

Yes, with physiotherapy, exercise, and the use of braces.

HERNIA AND PAIN

V. A. writes: When a rupture occurs, does the victim feel pain?

REPLY

Some do, but others cannot recall the slightest distress prior to the appearance of the hernia.

Six In Running For Mill Valley Board

WILLIAM L. CLARK

JOYCE R. GROSS

WILLIAM P. EVERTS JR.

GALEN H. WILLIAMS JR.

ANN E. HEPP

T. J. DeLASAUX JR.

The race for the Mill Valley School District Board is a crowded affair with six candidates, two of them incumbents, running for three seats in the April 20 election.

Mill Valley is one of the 11 elementary school districts in the Tamalpais High School District that faces the possibility of being absorbed in the unification proposal that also will be voted upon April 20.

The candidates and some of their views are:

DR. WILLIAM L. CLARK, 44, of 38 South Knoll Road, an orthopedic surgeon, has served one term on the board and is currently chairman. He is the father of three children.

Dr. Clark is a member of the Alto-Richardson Bay Volunteer Fire Department and scoutmaster of Boy Scout Troop 33.

A native of Fort Benton, Mont., he received his B.A. degree from Dartmouth College and his M.D. from University of Rochester Medical School.

He has retired from the National Guard with the rank of colonel after 20 years service. During World War II he served in Iceland and in 1950-52 with the Army in Germany.

Clark favors unification. He said: "I feel that the greatest benefit of unification, so far as Mill Valley is concerned, lies in the opportunity to develop curriculum in a continuous logical program through elementary grades into high school." He said other advantages include administrative efficiency and better opportunities for teachers.

"Like most taxpayers I feel that all taxes are too high, but I do not feel in comparison with other areas in the United States that our school taxes are too high," he said. However, the state should "find some way of getting money for the schools other than property taxes," he declared.

MRS. JOYCE R. GROSS, wife of Edmond Gross of 1 Roosevelt Avenue, is seeking a second term on the board. She is the mother of three children.

Mrs. Gross has been active in Parent-Teacher Assn., serving as president of the Mill Valley Parent-Teacher Council, president of Old Mill School P-TA, and director of education for the 14th District Parent-Teacher Council. She served on the steering committee for Mill Valley School District bonds in 1959, and on the citizens advisory committee for Tamalpais High School, 1960-62. She also is active in the League of Women Voters and is a founder of the Awareness Group in Mill Valley.

A native of Alameda, she has been a resident of Mill Valley since 1955. She holds a bachelor of arts degree from University of California at Berkeley.

Mrs. Gross is on record as favoring the Tamalpais High School District-wide unification.

WILLIAM P. EVERTS JR., 46, of 246 Manor Drive, is an attorney with United States Steel Corp. in San Francisco. He has four sons.

He formerly served as a member of the district's policy development committee.

Everts was a history teacher and coach at Kimball Union Academy, Meriden, N.H., 1939-41, assistant headmaster at Cardigan Mountain School, Canaan, N.H., 1946-47, and instructor in mortgages and contracts, San Francisco Law School, 1956-60.

A native of Boston, Mass., he received his B.S. degree from Harvard College, and his law degree from Harvard Law School. During World War II, he served as a captain in the Army in the China-Burma area. He also has served as a Little League coach and has taught Sunday School at Church of Our Saviour.

Everts said, "I am in favor of unification of the Tamalpais High School District."

He said the present Mill Valley school board has served exceedingly well and the quality of the educational program "is high indeed," but believes that "the Mill Valley schools will be able to do an even better job of educating our children if unification is passed."

Regarding school taxes, Everts said, "I feel that school taxes in Mill Valley are within reason, when one considers the excellence of the schools in this community." However, he said, "I feel that consideration should be given to affording tax relief to retired persons with fixed incomes."

GALEN H. WILLIAMS JR., 32, of 137 West Blithedale Avenue, is a security analyst with Mitchell Hutchins and Co. in San Francisco. He has one son.

Williams holds a bachelor's degree from Florida State University and a master's degree in business administration from University of Chicago. He was staff sergeant in the Marine Corps during the Korean War, serving in Korea and Japan.

A native of Wilson, N.C., Williams has lived in Mill Valley for two and one-half years.

Williams is opposed to the unification proposal that will be voted upon April 20.
a 'yes' vote is, in my opinion, a reprehensible attempt to prostitute democratic processes," he said. "The advantages claimed "The bribe being offered for for big unification are largely characteristics of good management which can be obtained without the concomitant danger of bigness."

Regarding taxes, he said, "As a taxpayer I feel property taxes are too high; as a parent whose child faces 12 years in overcrowded schools I feel taxes are too low."

He would "tend to support any bond issue necessary to reduce class size and to provide the space needed for a fully enriched curriculum," Williams said.

MRS. ANN E. HEPP, wife of Carl Hepp of 155 Elm Avenue, assists her husband in his advertising business. They have two daughters.

She is a library volunteer at Park School, South Marin chairman for the Klamath River Indian flood relief project, and a member of the board of Swedenborgian Church, San Francisco.

Mrs. Hepp was born in San Francisco, but her parents lived in San Anselmo, making her for all practical purposes a native of Marin."

She is a graduate of Stanford University with a bachelor's degree in languages, and was president of the Stanford Hot Jazz Society.

She said she is opposed to the present unification plan "for the reasons that the physical size of the district is so large and varied, and the change from 58 to seven school board trustees is such a huge drop, that it would be impossible for each community to receive the individual attention it now does from its local school board."

Mrs. Hepp also said she was concerned with the prospect of an immediate raise in school taxes after unification.

She said she has become increasingly aware of the plight of the local taxpayer, especially older people who have no children in school. "When high taxes drive these people out of their community, they are replaced by couples with young children, causing a continual overload on school facilities," she said. "This is a vicious spiral which will not be corrected until some measure is taken to relieve the pressure on the local homeowner."

T. J. DeLASAUX JR. of 163 Kipling Drive, is vice president and managing director of a credit-finance firm in San Francisco. He is the father of three daughters.

DeLasaux, a graduate of Tamalpais High School and College of Marin, has lived in Mill Valley most of his life since he was six.

He is a member of Mill Valley Post, American Legion, and Mill Valley Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons. During World War II he was a radioman in the Navy.

DeLasaux said he favors continuation of local control of Mill Valley schools, which he claims have excellent administrators and modern and well-oriented educational facilities and curriculum.

"Plain common sense tells us that unification, bringing with it largeness and lack of local control, cannot improve on this situation," he said.

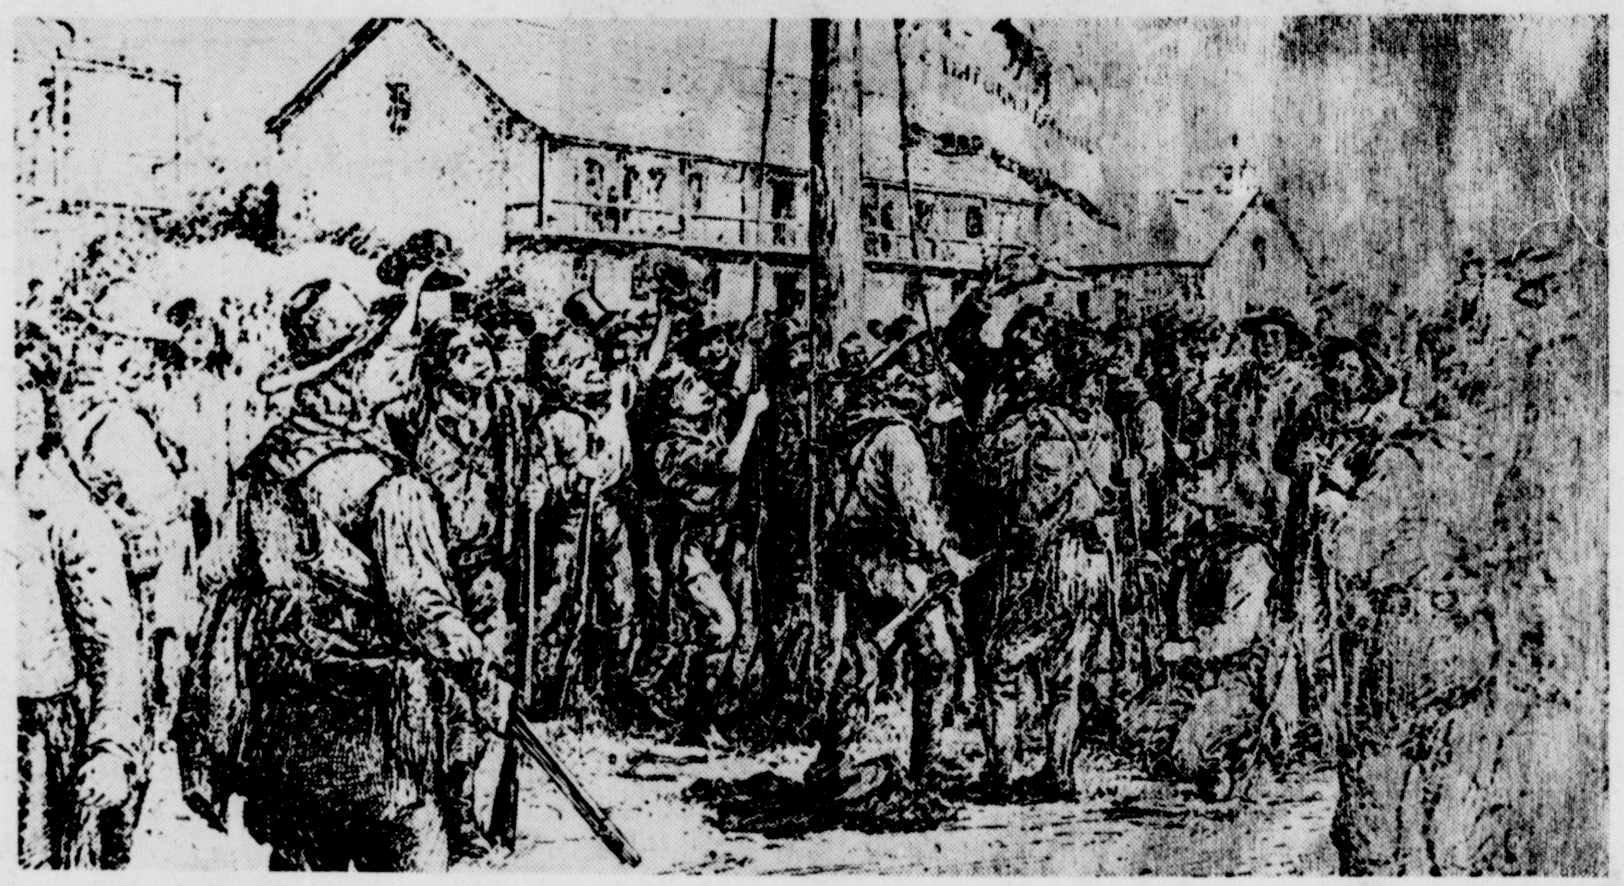
The San Geronimo Story—

Grandson Of Paul Revere Played Role

By FLORENCE DONNELLY
Independent-Journal Historian



A FADED ILLUSTRATION shows an important moment in California history — the raising of the Bear Flag at Sonoma on June 14, 1846, proclaiming the independence of the Republic of California from Mexican rule. One month later, Lt. Joseph Warren Revere, naval officer and grandson of the famed American patriot, replaced the Bear Flag with the Stars and Stripes, making California officially the territory of the United States. Revere remained at Sonoma as the military commander, and later that same year purchased the San Geronimo grant in Marin County.

It was Lt. Joseph Warren Revere, grandson of the famous Revolutionary War hero Paul Revere, who pulled down the Bear Flag at Sonoma, read the proclamation that California was a possession of the United States, and ran up the Stars and Stripes on the flagpole.

That was on July 9, 1846.

Lieutenant Revere, an officer on board the Portsmouth commanded by John B. Montgomery, which was at anchor near Sausalito, had traveled by launch through the waterways almost to the pueblo of Sonoma.

THIS SAME Lieutenant Revere, while in command of the military post at Sonoma, bought the San Geronimo grant of two square leagues in Marin County in October of 1846. The rancho had been granted to Rafael Cacho in 1844.

In his book, "Keel and Saddle," Revere wrote as follows:

"The canada (hollow or vale) of San Geronimo is one of the loveliest valleys in California, shut in by lofty hills, the sides of which are covered with redwood forests and pines of several kinds and interspersed with many flowering trees and shrubs peculiar to the country. Through it flows a copious stream, fed by the mountain brooks. The soil in the bottom lands is so prolific that a hundred bushels of wheat to the acre can be raised with the rudest cultivation and other crops in corresponding abundance.

"WHILE HUNTING elk in that neighborhood, I had come upon this beautiful valley and determined to possess it, if possible, and in due time acquired the property and stocked it with horned cattle and mares in the usual fashion of making a settlement in California.

"In my absence the cattle had increased to about 500 head of animals of all kinds, which roamed at will in a state of nature over my domain, the major-domo engaged to take charge of them having left the place, and gone off to the bonanza (corruption of abundancia), a few months before my arrival.

"I laid in a stock of tools, farming utensils, etc., and arrived at the mission of San Rafael, where I was hospitably received by my old friend, Don Timoteo Murphy. Here we sojourned for several weeks but, finding it impossible to engage in any regular pursuit in consequence of the unsettled state of the country, I concluded to follow the current, setting towards the 'placer.' A party was formed of my neighbors, the rancheros, who, with their Indian servants and vaqueros, made a company of some 30 persons. We had a caballada (herd of horses) of a hundred head, and drove with us over 200 head of beef cattle, collected from the herds that ranged over our lands, which we intended to sell in the mining country.

"THE CATTLE, being perfectly wild, were always driven on the full run, so that a day's drive was quite wearisome, the cattle seizing every opportunity to escape, bolting suddenly from the column in order to return to their acarencias (grazing grounds).

"Arriving at the dry diggings, our party separated, and for two months we prospected in the vicinity, changing our ground as we saw a chance to dig, trade cattle, swap horses, or to barter our little stock of goods for 'dust.' I also made a trip in a dug-out to San Francisco on account of partners and self, and returned in a larger boat to our camp on Feather River, laden with dry goods, groceries, crockery, and hardware.

"We sold all off at enormous prices, butcher knives fetching $20 apiece, common iron spoons $5, and ordinary wash bowls and meaner vessels $15.

"LABOR WAS so high in the diggings that it was difficult to compute its value. Some Mexicans, encamped near us, paid their camp keeper $100 per day for his services and for cooking. These fellows averaged much more than that sum daily in digging and picking up nuggets, or occasionally washing the dirt of the gulches.

"I sold all the flour I brought up, which came from Chile, in bags of four arrobas (25 pounds to the arroba), at $100 the sack. Several dozens of common calico shirts, bought for the use of our company, were snapped at $20 each, unwashed, after my partners had worn them for a week.

"Gold was then found everywhere, on the surface, in the clefts and hollows of rocks, in the brooks and upon and beneath the soil.

"ALL NATIONS were represented in the Sacramento dry diggings but the luckiest miners were always the Mexicans and South Americans. They possessed all the qualities which insure success—skill in prospecting, quick eyes for gold-bearing formations, rapidity in extracting or washing the auriferous earth with great industry and patience. Honesty pervaded the little community for the Botany-Bay men had not yet arrived in California.

"After a stay of several weeks, we returned to our homes, bearing with us the fruits of our industry. I set to work at San Geronimo with about a score of Indians and, having scratched up with the rude ploughs of the country about 15 acres of ground, and enclosed it with a brush fence, I set out for San Francisco to procure seed for planting.

"MANY VESSELS had arrived since my last visit and the cry was, 'Still they come.' Their crews would scarcely wait long enough to furl sails after their arrival so impatient were they to leave for the diggings. . . .

"Among the ships in the harbor, I found an old friend of other days in command of a brig from Honolulu, sitting in solitary state in his cabin, his crew having left him. From him I obtained a few barrels of potatoes which he had among his stores, poor and small, it is true, but the only ones to be had. And, with this prize seed, I returned to San Geronimo, where I planted the seed in the enclosure.

"I then left the place in charge of my Indian servants, and addressed myself to the duties of my office as government timber-inspector.

"IN THE intervals of these duties I piloted several vessels up the Sacramento River, among which was a bark from Peru with a company of miners on board, organized at an immense expense, with whom I remained for several weeks.

"The small seed-potatoes, not larger than a walnut, which I planted, produced at least 20-fold and the improvement in quality over the seed was really wonderful. The virgin soil, of pure vegetable humus, so nourished and stimulated their growth, that I had several hundred bushels of potatoes in the crop, each of which weighed 10 pounds avoirdupois, or over, and the average of the rest would not fall below a pound. The sale of this crop at one real (12 and a half cents) per pound, which was the market price, fully repaid the expense and trouble of planting.

"SAN FRANCISCO had become a city of some 40,000 people and was the business center of the rising state. With the increase of population, the irregular placermining became obsolete, or practiced by those only for whom its adventurous character had a peculiar charm, while rude machinery, dams, conduits, canals and sluice-ways

IN HIS UNIFORM as a Union Army general, Joseph Warren Revere, grandson of the immortal Paul Revere of Revolutionary War fame, was photographed during his Civil War service in 1863. Seventeen years earlier, as a young naval officer and landowner, he had played historic roles in California and Marin.

"Certain branches of industry, indispensable to the new state of things and to the development of the country, were exploited; saw-mills, lime and brick kilns and stone quarries were established at favorable points, while with the acquisition of wealth came the desire of enjoyment and comfort. Houses were built and mechanics of all kinds found employment at high wages.

"THE PROVERBIAL adaptation of the Yankee to every condition of life was illustrated on every side but foreigners were not behind him in bettering their fortunes in the new cities springing up all over the country.

"Meanwhile, keeping pace with the emigration from beyond the seas, a hardy though rude population flocked into California from our western states, and spreading themselves over the country in the rural districts, settled down on 'squatted' or purchased farms, and set manfully to work to plough and sow.

"The industrious and orderly, however, did not constitute the only addition to the population, for, following the law of civilization, in their train came those who seem born only to prey upon their fellows . . .

"A LITTLE later the people were aroused from their apathetic tolerance of these villains, who corrupted the very source and fountains of justice, and that sharp cure, the vigilance committees, took them in charge with excellent results.

"At the end of the rainy season, and the advent of the delightful California spring, my little party of neighbors again visited the mining regions, finding everything changed in the operations, which were now carried on in the neighborhood of the water-courses.

"What I saw was hardly calculated to give one an elevated idea of human nature. . . . I had been among tribes of barbarians and on the islands of the Pacific peopled with naked savages, but here I found that man is more of a savage when he has once lived in a civilized condition and retrogresses. The denizens of the mining region were indeed clothed, poorly enough to be sure, but with some regard to decency. But morally they were utterly naked.

"I built a new house on my place, and projected other improvements. My neighbors, stimulated at last to enterprise in that direction, began to bestir themselves. But we were all annoyed by the incursions of the 'Gentiles,' as the wild Indians are called in contra-distinction to the 'Christians,' or tame Indians, who came stealthily upon our lands to steal horses. . . .

"At last, in self-defense, we organized an expedition to suppress these forays, and at the same time to indemnify ourselves by securing some of these 'Gentiles,' intending to keep them as hostages, and to use them, meanwhile, as laborers. A council of rancheros was accordingly summoned at the Baulines, a rancho on the seacoast belonging to Don Juan Briones, and a plan of operation was formed.

"FIVE RANCHEROS, each with five to 10 Indian vaqueros, assembled at the rendezvous at the appointed time with a caballada of some 50 excellent horses. The Christian Indians entered into the spirit with great zest and took keen delight in entrapping their wild relatives.

"At the trysting place, Don Jose Armenteros was unanimously chosen leader of our party. . . . He was the majordomo of the ranchero, Rafael Garcia, and noted as the best rider, the most skillful riatero (thrower of the lasso), and the most accomplished in all the sports of the camp. He had also the advantage of experience in similar expeditions.

"At the rendezvous we began preparations for the expedition by a grand feast on the supplies brought or sent there by the provident wives of the rancheros, consuming all our stores in one night. Then, like Herman Cortes after he had burnt his ships, we were ready to push into the wild regions before us, unencumbered with whiskey or other groceries and depending solely on the rifle or the riata for our subsistence. We carried with us a few trinkets for trading.

"AT DAYLIGHT we rose from the ground, and taking a northerly route, set forth into the wilderness at full gallop, the caballada in advance, with all the vaqueros, headed by Armenteros.

"Encamping in the woods north of Bodega the first night, we resumed the march at early dawn, and rode all day through a beautiful and fertile country, more like a gentleman's park than a primeval forest. . . .

"WE KILLED a deer in the afternoon, and while selecting a place for a bivouac, Armenteros lassoed a bear, on the savory paws of which, a bonne bouche with hunters, we supped heartily.

"We were now in the Gentile country; so the next morning a place of security for our caballada, abounding in grass and water, was selected on a point of land projecting into the sea; and Juan Briones with two vaqueros were left to guard the neck which connected it with the mainland. The rest of our party continued their route.

"Don Pepe, as Senor Armenteros was called, was now in his element, and recounted many anecdotes of former raids. He led our small but well-armed and mounted party in an easterly direction until about noon, when we halted in a dense wood and he set out with one man, my Antonio, whom he selected for his intelligence and courage, to seek an Indian village or rancheria. Meanwhile we picketed our horses and beguiled the time with smoking and monte.

"AT DAYLIGHT Don Pepe and Antonio returned with an ally in the person of a naked Indian, with shaggy, unkept hair and a horrible squint.

"Don Pepe introduced his new ally as an old acquaintance, and we returned with him to his rancheria, he being, according to our chief, 'muy bravo,' and crafty. We found the rancheria in a valley near the sea, but he remained in the grove on the outskirts of the village. The Indians contributed to our frugal evening meal some excellent salmon and melons from their milpa (garden).

"Next morning we collected a few beads and light goods, and invited the men to visit our camp.

"I FEARED they would shoot madly with their arrows, so great was their admiration of the many-colored beads, great needles, awls, mirrors and knives displayed in our camp. Encouraged by the cupidity of our visitors, our spokesman began cautiously to approach the subject of our mission into their country, but he found the wary Gentiles better diplomats than he imagined.

"For two mortal hours the keen encounter of wits endured. Don Pepe endeavored to induce the Indians to send men from their rancheria to accompany us home, promising them good cheer in plenty and a generous reward. But all his eloquence was in vain so we broke up the conference. . . .

"In the afternoon we were called upon by our Indian friend and another chief, and informed that we should have their assistance in getting all the help we wanted, if we would be guided by their advice and grant their exorbitant demands. It was plain that a council had been held and that our allies wanted to get rid of us, after obtaining certain articles they coveted, especially fish hooks, at the sight of which in the forenoon they had greatly marveled, never before having seen steel or iron hooks.

"Their whole story was to the effect that our hosts were a much-abused and long-suffering people, honest and above horse-stealing, while a neighboring community some 10 leagues away were vile oppressors and bloody-minded villains, horse thieves by profession, whom it would be both just and creditable to capture and enslave, in which laudable enterprise they would cheerfully aid us.

"While still deliberating, our conference was suddenly broken off by the appearance of Juan Briones and his vaqueros, who brought the astounding intelligence that our whole caballada had been stampeded and carried off by unknown Indians. Briones himself and a vaquero were wounded by arrows. The other boy dragged along at the end of his lasso an Indian of dogged and sullen aspect.

"WHILE WE were listening to the story of Briones, one of our servants came up, and told us that every Indian in the rancheria hard by had vanished. As these Indians instantly kill and eat their stolen horses on reaching a place of security, our indignation was at once aroused; and we prepared to follow the trail, and rescue our caballada of over 45 well-trained steeds, amongst which were many special pets of every individual of our party.

"Luckily Don Pepe had secured the persons of the two chiefs, at Briones' first intimation of our loss, before they could escape. Instant death was now pronounced upon them if our horses were not recovered by the morning's light. These worthies communicated with their subordinates, who had taken refuge in the inaccessible undergrowth hard by, and collected a party of 20 braves of their rancheria, armed with clubs, wooden spears, and bows and arrows.

"WE SOON struck the trail of our horses. It was so broad and plain that we pursued it at full speed, our Indian allies stopping occasionally to verify it. . . . Don Pepe rode far ahead of the main body with his vaqueros, keeping a sharp lookout on the Indian runners, who out-traveled our horses, and seemed to enjoy the sport of tracking their fellow men and brothers quite as well as we did. . . .

"About midnight we noticed that the hoof tracks were quite fresh in the moist ground and by other signs we knew we were not far in the rear of our caballada and their abductors. We now proceeded cautiously in order not to alarm the Indian camp, upon which we might come at any moment. At last it was reported near at hand. We dismounted, leaving our horses under charge of our vaqueros, while we stealthily approached the village on foot.

OF HIS SAN GERONIMO RANCHO, Joseph Warren Revere wrote: "(It) is one of the loveliest valleys in California, shut in by lofty hills, the sides of which are covered with redwood forests and pines of several kinds and interspersed with many flowering trees and shrubs peculiar to the country. . . . No wheat is raised in the San Geronimo Valley today. But the area retains much of the beauty and tranquility that so captivated Revere. Relatively sparsely populated, its three communities of, top to bottom, Lagunitas, Woodacre and San Geronimo are pictured above as they appear today on what was once Revere's rancho.

"The little rancheria of lodges built of slender sticks, rattled with grass and mud, huddled around the usual temascal (sweat-house), lay in the gorge of a canyon. The hills rose steep around it on every side, save that by which we approached.

"NO SOUND broke the solemn stillness of the night, and the whole scene was brightly illuminated by the moon and twinkling stars.

"These Indians had no domestic animals whatever, not even dogs, which lack accounted for the silence, and it remained unbroken, until, on a nearer approach, we heard the stamping of our captured horses from a crude corral near the sweathouse.

"Don Pepe instantly formed his plan. We withdrew again to our cover, each of us being assigned his place. The plan was explained to the Indians, the main body of whom, led by Don Pepe, making a detour round the village, climbed the hillside and took up a position at the head of the canyon in order to cut off the retreat of men and horses to the hills. The rest of us were to attack in front on signal from our leader and simultaneously with his party.

"AT TWO o'clock the moon had set. The village was but faintly illuminated by the stars when a group of Indians aroused themselves under our very eyes from their first sleep, and gathered around a fire whose embers they raked into activity, and began cooking, eating and gambling, often wrangling with each other as they tossed the bones. We could even smell the savory horse meat as it spluttered on the coals. . . .

"We waited in silence for an hour or more, until the first faint, gray streaks of dawn appeared in the east, when the Indians of the rancheria gradually ceased gambling, and sank again in sleep. From the head of the canyon came the cry of the coyote — thrice repeated. This was the signal for mounting.

"We all bestrode our horses; then, from the same quarter, came the old Spanish war-cry 'Santiago' from the deep chest of Don Pepe Armenteros, followed by the shrill war-whoop of our Indian allies. . . .

"WE INSTANTLY moved up and, intervening between the fire and the corral, stood guard to prevent the horse thieves from stampeding our imprisoned animals, to which they instinctively rushed when aroused from their sleep. The Indian horde, thus meeting our leveled firearms and lances, faced instantly in the opposite direction, but were intercepted by our leader and his party and turned again on us, using war clubs, spears and bows, while a crowd of squaws in their rear hurled stones and sticks at us over their heads.

"The melee became general and shot after shot was heard, while sabres, lances and firearms met the cruder Indian weapons in a hand to hand conflict.

"The contest ceased at last, the Indians sulkily retiring out of harm's way when convinced that they had no chance of success. Their head men sullenly informed us they wanted peace.

"IT WAS granted as soon as asked for. Our object was attained, and we recovered all the horses, save one that had been devoured, without the loss of a man, although most of our party were badly bruised by the clubs of the Indians, and several received arrow and spear wounds.

"We now prepared to inspect and adjudge the spolia opima of our vanquished foes, but there being but little material and that little having been appropriated by our Indian allies in their way, we hesitated not to seize the personnel we had legitimately acquired, according to the notions prevalent at that time in California.

"The prisoners thus pressed into our service were divided equally among our party, submitting resignedly and even joyfully to their fate. They selected those of their squaws and children whom they wished to accompany them, and we all left for home, after rewarding our Indian allies.

"ARRIVING AT our respective ranchos, our captives were soon domiciled, and supplied with full rations of beef; and having finished their task of making adobes for building purposes, they were permitted to depart, laden with good shirts and blankets.

"Two of the bucks remained with me, preferring good living and kind treatment to their precarious half-starved condition in their native wilds, and from savage and graceless Gentiles were converted into decent and respectable Christians.

"I remained at San Geronimo, attending to my duties both public and private; but near the end of the year 1849, I resigned my commission as lieutenant in the United States Navy, hopeless of promotion after 20 years of service, yet reluctant to abandon my profession . . ."

JOSEPH WARREN Revere, son of Dr. John Revere, was born in Boston on May 17, 1812.

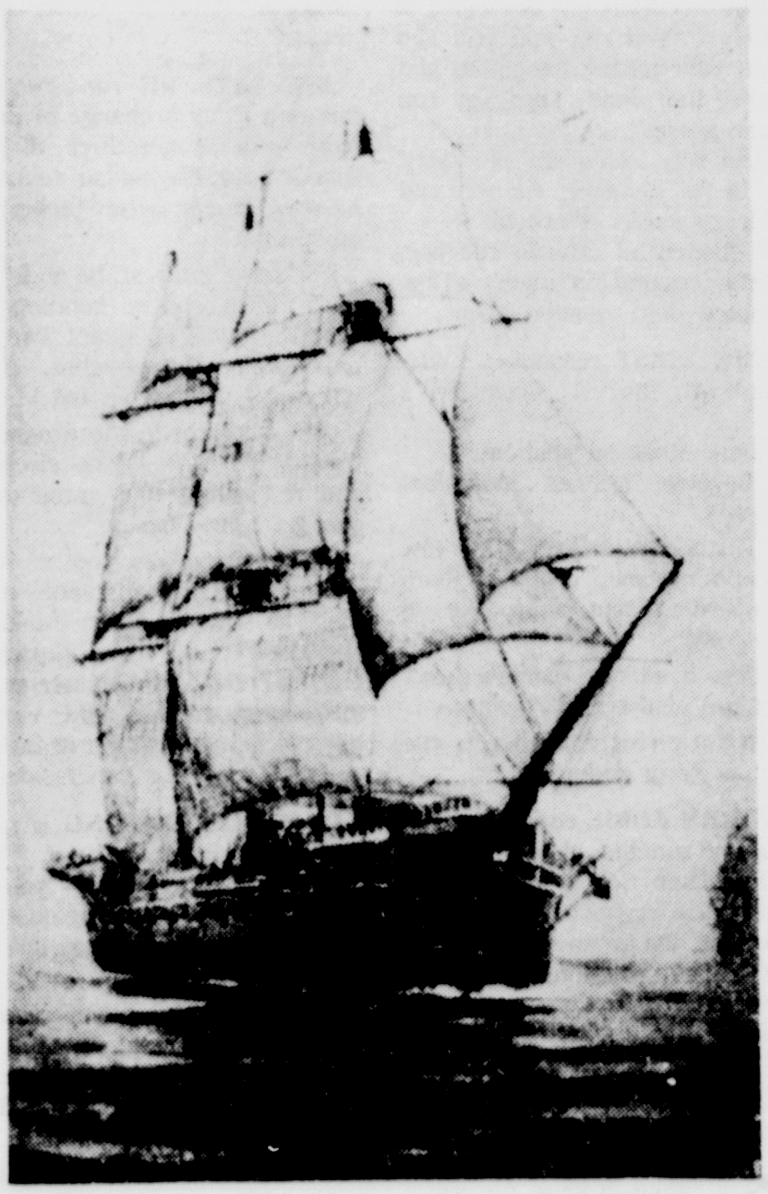
He was named for his uncle, whose name had been bestowed on him by Paul Revere as a tribute to his bosom friend, Joseph Warren, national hero, who was killed in the battle of Bunker Hill.

Joseph Warren Revere left the United States Navy to become an officer in the Mexican Army. He was an instructor of artillery.

For rescuing Spanish subjects, the Queen of Spain knighted him in the Royal Order of Ysabel the Catholic in 1852 and the city of Cadiz gave him a gold medal. He returned to the military service of the United States in the Civil War, and was breveted brigadier general for meritorious service. In 1875, when he was in poor health, he went to France and found himself in the home of his ancestors, the De Rivoires on the River Rhone near Vienne.

The De Rivoires were Huguenots, who fled from France to avoid persecution and settled in America.

Joseph Warren Revere, grandson of Paul Revere, patriot and famous goldsmith, died at Hoboken, N.J., April 20, 1880. Thus a brilliant military career was ended.



IT WAS THE USS Portsmouth, commanded by Capt. J. B. Montgomery, that in 1846 brought the young naval lieutenant Joseph Warren Revere to California to play a major role in its history. Revere left the Portsmouth near Saucelito to travel by launch to Sonoma to preside over the lowering of the Bear Flag and the raising of the Stars and Stripes. Later he returned to Marin as master of the San Geronimo grant.

Run And Run— Then Run Some More

ON A CROSS-COUNTRY jog, Drake High School distance runners Joe Johnston, right, and Roger Lais use the "buddy" system and run side by side. Running over such terrain is more fun, Johnston feels, than circling the regular track oval.

Just what is the sport of cross-country running?

One sportswriter described it thusly: "You run and you run until your tongue hangs out and you're half dead. Then you run some more."

And why would any one want to be a distance runner and undergo such an ordeal?

A bunch of Marin coaches, sitting around in their office, bandied that question about.

THE FIRST response: "Why climb Mt. Everest? Because it's there."

Some other suggestions:

"Because it's an individual activity."

"Distance runners, with few exceptions, shun ordinary team competition, but they like to compete."

"It's a unique achievement. Not run of the mill."

"It's a direct challenge to the human body and mind."

JERRY KOBIL coaches cross-country running at Sir Francis Drake High School in San Anselmo. He organized the Pirate team on the momentum of the enthusiasm for running that had been instilled in him at Tamalpais High School by "the dean of Marin track coaches," Glidden (Benny) Benefield.

Kobil's answer to that question — "Why run?" — is simple. "It's a labor of love for me," he says. "Coaching is a labor of love, too." He's a mathematics and history teacher at Drake.

For a runner's opinion, ask Joe Johnston, Drake student, track and cross-country letterman, member of the Marin Athletic Club, an outside-of-school Amateur Athletic Union program.

JOE SAYS HE runs for relaxation — as a change of pace from routine activities like a school day. Having so relaxed, he says, he can better tackle his homework.

For sheer interest, he adds, he likes cross-country running — over the trails of Mount Tamalpais, along the beaches, elsewhere off the beaten track.

"It's all right to run around a track," he says, "but circling and re-circling that same oval can get pretty boring."

Johnston speaks too of the challenge. Long distance running, he says, requires thinking and theory as well as supreme physical effort. The runner must make adjustments and variations in his pace—"figure things out and apply his conclusions."

DISTANCE RUNNING is also Johnston's favorite sport "because it is individual — you're on your own. It's you against — well, whatever it is that one is running against."

Johnston, a high school senior, intends to enroll at College of Marin, then at the California Medical Center. He plans to become a biologist.

Science, like running, he finds to be interesting, challenging and potentially individualistic. Relaxing, too? Well, perhaps. And if the book and laboratory work gets too demanding or too exhausting, Joe can always go out and run a few miles — just to rest and relax.

A Man Who Knows And Likes Teen-Agers

A high school English teacher was quoted in a recent issue of Time magazine as saying: "If Booth Tarkington were to write 'Seventeen' today, he'd have to call it 'Twelve.' "

And sociologist Reuel Denney notes with fascination the shopping list of a 12-year-old suburban girl: "Water pistol, brassiere, permanent."

The point here, according to John R. Kirk, associate producer of the Bay Area Teen-Age Fair, currently being staged through April 18 at the San Mateo Fairgrounds, is that children are actually becoming "teen agers" at an earlier age than ever before.

KIRK, WHO resides at 1328 Erica Road, Muir Meadows, in

A Marinite To The Defense Of The Teen-Ager Today

Mill Valley, has been associated with teens since studying at Harvard. His experience ranges from social work in settlement houses of South Boston to acquainting high school students with the role played by industry in the Geo - Physical Year program.

During the last four years, with Teen-Age Fairs, Kirk has spent most of his waking hours working with the younger generation, an occupation that has led to some very definite ideas regarding teen-age America.

"Don't ever underestimate teen-age power," Kirk states. "Teen-agers now make up 12 per cent of the population but, because of high post-war birth rates, within five years they will constitute 20 per cent. The Census Bureau states that the teen-agers are increasing at a faster rate than any other age group. There are nearly 19 and a half million teens now. The total will swell to 27 million by 1970."

ACCORDING TO Kirk, the teen-age group will then have a direct annual spending power of about 21 billion dollars a year.

By 1970, the teen-ager will be the country's number one consumer.

It's more interesting, however, Kirk believes, to look at where the teen-agers gets his money and how he spends it, rather than how much he has.

Kirk explains that the average teen-ager has $9.45 a week in his pocket. Half the teens earn it, the other half (mainly girls) are given it by their parents.

A TOTAL OF 272,000 teen-age boys and 220,000 girls in the United States work full-time averaging $2,221 and $2,933 respectively a year. Thirty-five per cent of the boys and 22 per cent of the girls hold year-round part-time jobs, and more than half work during vacations.

"It's interesting to note," Kirk states, "that teen-agers today pull down three times more money than their counterparts right after World War II."

And if you are interested in a smattering of statistics to show where the money goes, Kirk will rattle off these figures without drawing a second breath: Teen-agers spend one and a half billion dollars a year for entertainment, buy 75 per cent of all single phonograph records sold, purchase 20 per cent of all cars sold.

GIRLS MAKE UP only 11 per cent of the population but account for 23 per cent of all cosmetic purchases and take home 20 per cent of all the women's clothes sold. Boys spend 120 million dollars annually on hair cream and similar toilet articles. Ten per cent of all the money teen-age boys spend is spent on teen-age girls.

Are teen-agers far-sighted and serious?

"Of course," Kirk states. "For example, teen-age stockholders have tripled to 500,000 in five years and minors hold fully 10 per cent of the stock of Communications Satellite Corp."

BUT THE teen-ager is more than a financial statistic, Kirk warns, and to sum him up in dollars and cents is to act precisely the way he thinks an adult does act—just as it is unfair to classify him as weird because he moves to a different beat of music than his dad did.

"Adults look aghast," Kirk continues "at teen lexicon of 'hoedaddies' or 'gear.' But how different is their language from '23 skidoo' or 'beat me, daddy' or 'keen'?

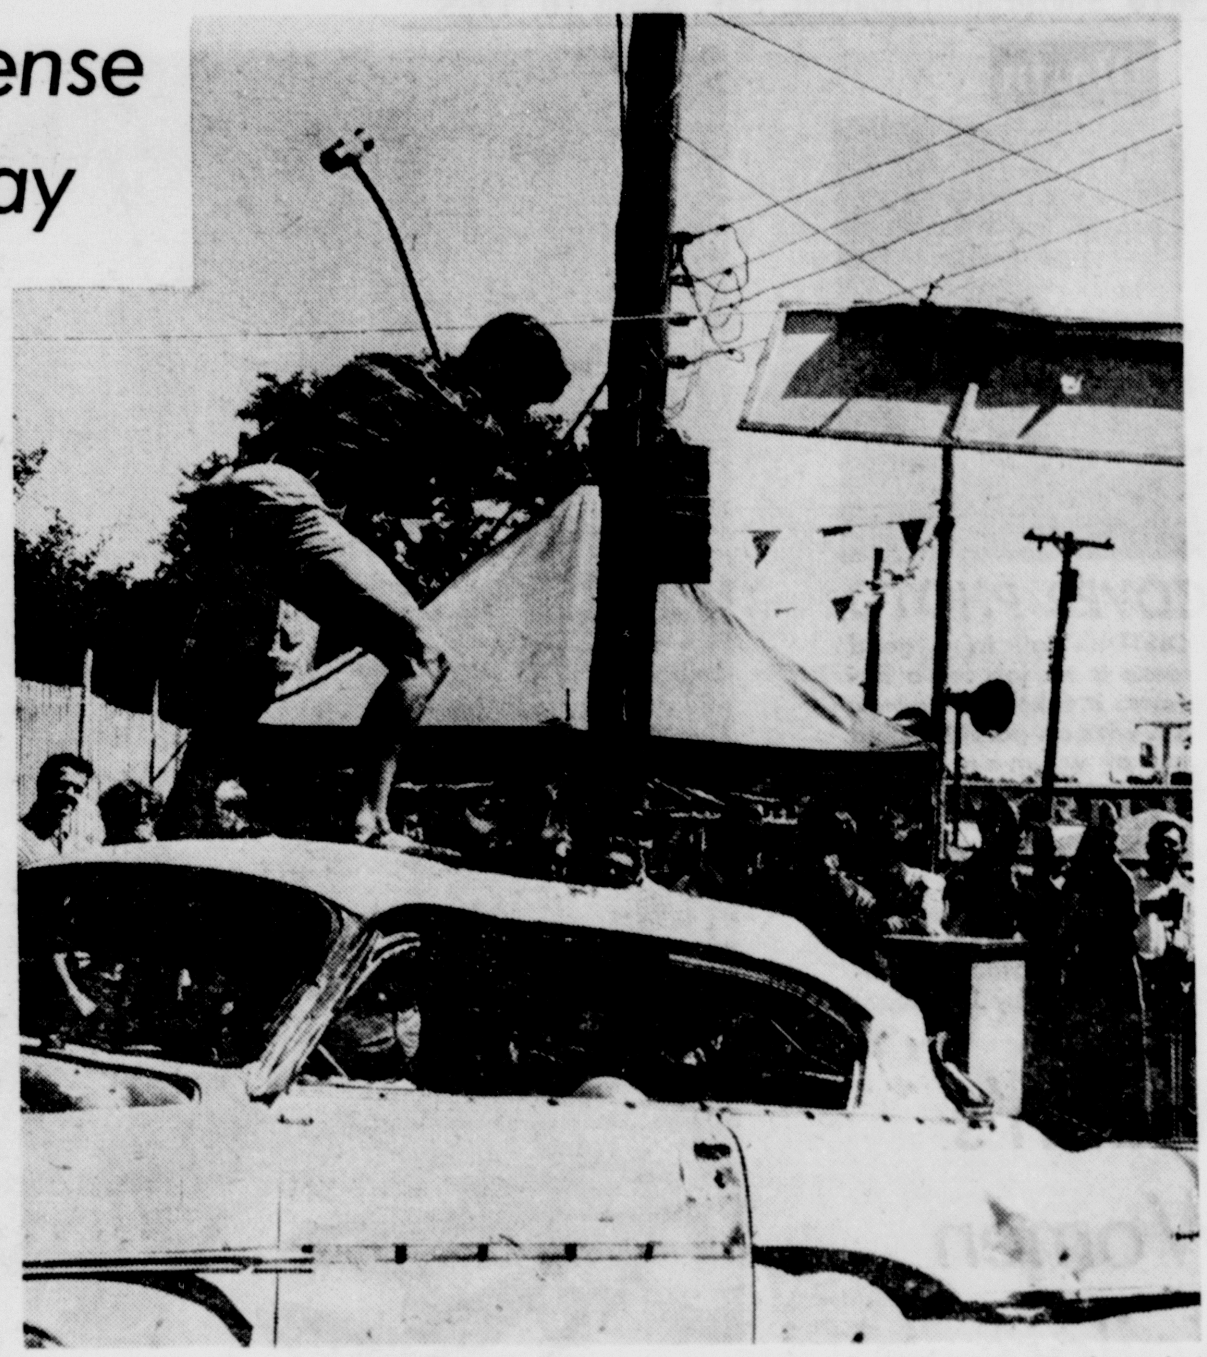
"With Teen-Age Fair we come into face-to-face contact with more than a millon teen-agers every year, and through our television presentations and research projects we're in contact with over five million more.

"IT IS MY personal observation that today's teen-agers are almost unbelievably adult. They know more about this world than any generation before them and they are anxious to become a part of it, ready to do their share and full of enthusiasm when treated with respect."

"There is an evident break in the lines of communication between the teen-age and adult world," Kirk asserts, "and the only way to repair the line is to establish a feeling of trust—based on mutual respect."

"When you're dealing with teens, that's the key word—respect," he concludes.

"They are worthy of it."



EVEN SUCH SEEMINGLY wild teen-age rituals as the "car bash" will become more understandable, John R. Kirk says, if the elders will take the time to recall some of the methods they used in their youth to blow off steam and to burn up excess energy. Actually, Kirk adds, today's teen-agers are almost unbelievably adult in their interests and activities.

HOISTING sail in a good breeze is no job for a beginner. It takes an expert. Even with an accomplished crew of women sailors, there's plenty of work for all hands. Marin's Women Sailors

By MARIA WOODWARD

As every sailor knows, there is an old superstition which claims that women are creatures of the land who bring bad luck to sailing ships.

And as every woman knows, this is pure nonsense.

Time and the winds of change have dispelled the legend and there has now emerged on the scene a new kind of Lorelei. She is clad not in seaweed but in Catalina togs, and her sandals are of the non-skid variety. She can handle a tiller, trim a sail, and maneuver a sailboat in narrow quarters. Her siren song is the language of the sea, or what is more commonly known as "boat jargon."

She is, in short, a full-fledged sea-woman — knowledgeable, alert, and ready for fair weather or foul.

IN LOOKING BACK over the Marin County sailing picture, one "old salt" has observed that "women have been paddling about for years." But it was not until after the war that women began to take an active interest in competitive sailing.

Prior to this time ladies with a taste for the nautical life had confined their efforts to paddling a light canoe across the placid waters of Lake Merritt or Stow Lake.

In Marin County, the Paradise Cove picnic area was a popular spot for such aquatic diversions. Early photographs taken at the turn of the century show us these fore-runners of our present day women skippers sitting stiffly in oversize canoes, flowered hats set squarely on their heads, bravely bending an oar.

WHILE THE ladies of Marin County were daintily swinging their oars, an important event was taking place in the waters off Long Island Sound. A trophy emblematic of the women's sailing championship was placed in competition by one Commodore James R. Hodder of the Boston Yacht Club. It was the first trophy of its kind to be presented to a woman in sailing competition and was won in three successive tries by the Cohasset Yacht Club of Massachusetts.

SIXTEEN-YEAR-OLD SUSIE Wosser, one of the youngest "lady sailors" at the San Francisco Yacht Club, is an expert at performing "crew duties" aboard ship. Already she has had five years of sailing experience and has known the thrill of winning races aboard her father's International Class sloop Rutsan, a perennial champion on the racing circuit.

In a subsequent year, Charles Francis Adams of the Boston Yacht Club presented a similar cup in honor of Mrs. Adams.

THE ADAMS CUP, as it is still known today, added an important new dimension to the role of women in sailing. Here at last was the chance to measure their skill against the test of full scale competition. The race was on!

By 1955 a new kind of woman sailor had blossomed on the local sailing scene, commanding the admiration of many a hard-bitten yachtsman. The group was small, to be sure, but the swagger unmistakable.

They were for the most part wives of racing skippers who enjoyed the excitement of participating in the weekly sailing contests sponsored by the Yacht Racing Assn.

THEY HAD learned about sailing the hard way, performing the combined duties of deckhand, line-handler, scrubwoman and gear lugger. Through some indomitable spirit and innate love of competition they had come through their apprenticeship intact and well grounded in the basic sailing techniques. Not only were they useful aboard ship, but they had become indispensable working members of a sailboat crew.

In Belvedere, the San Francisco Yacht Club produced a surprisingly large number of these accomplished sea women. Among them were Betty Potter, Ruth Barth, Dorothy Noyes, Marianne Mason, Elinor Cross and Ruth Capell. From this group there emerged a smaller nucleus of gold star graduates with qualities which enable them to go one step further and assume the role of command over their ships.

These single handed skippers include Nancy Rogers, Roberta Ferguson, Saliy Mathews, Rickie Treacy and Rosemary Seale.

OTHER OUTSTANDING women sailors who compete with the best of them include Jocelyn Nash of Richmond, Elva Benone, and Jeanne Nooney of Sausalito.

In evaluating the delights of sailing, the eager aspirant is apt to skim lightly over the discomforts which often accompany the sport. But even the most devoted of lady mariners will point out that sailing can sometimes be a messy business and not for the squeamish.

"Many are called, but very few can take it," remarks one well-seasoned expert.

"ACTUALLY, learning to sail is not difficult. Any woman who is mentally capable and physically coordinated can easily grasp the theory as to why a boat sails to windward. The techniques of tacking and jibing come with practice and winning a race is only a matter of adjust-

"SPRING CLEANING TIPS"

Personal grooming is really the goal of Good Grooming Week. But since the Week (April 1-7) comes during spring cleaning time, it also brings to mind household "good grooming."

Sometimes spring cleaning is regarded with dread; but the results are always well worth the effort. And with efficient planning you can make the job easier and more thorough.

For example, while you are vacuuming, be sure to clean away all the lint from the crevices in closets. Moths can hide in a small amount of lint and later attack clothing. Those few seconds with a vacuum may prove to be a truly valuable "ounce of prevention."

Send drapes and slipcovers to your drycleaner before you start cleaning; then finish the spring spruce-up while they are away. This way the fabrics are safe from splashes and spills during clean up.

While the slipcovers are being cleaned, let their cushions aire in the sun for a few hours. If the cushions are particularly soiled, have them cleaned.

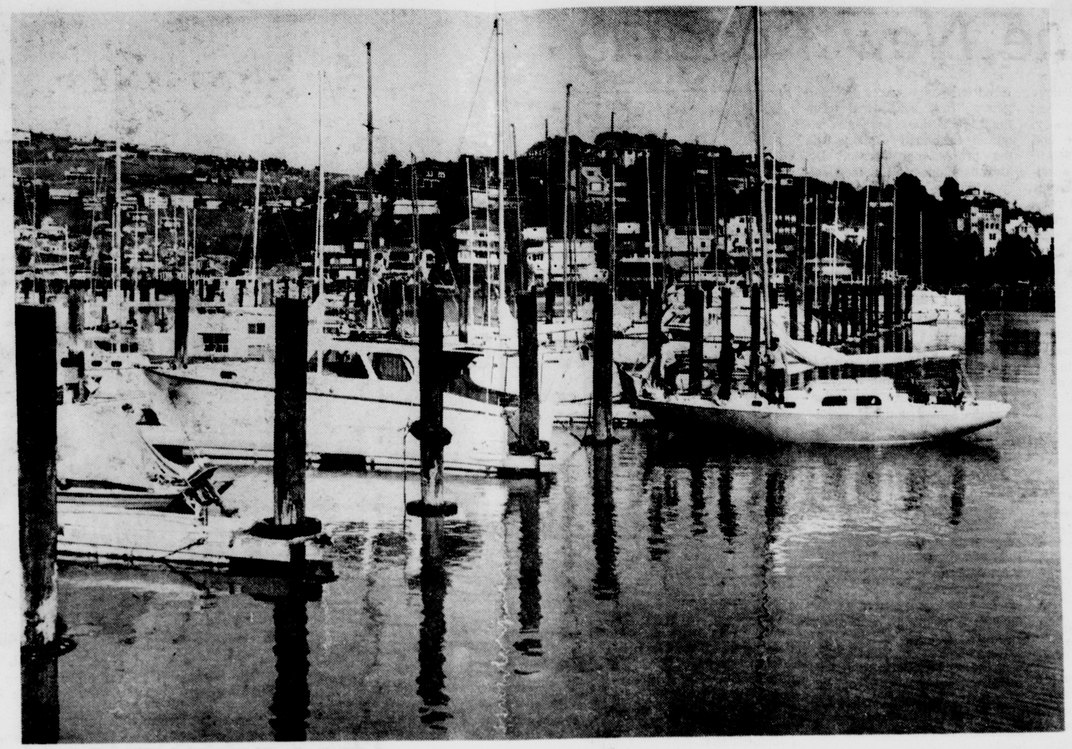
IT'S OFF TO THE races as young crew member Susie Wosser, left, greets her skipper for the day, Rickie Treacy, at the San Francisco Yacht Club. At 16, Susie is already an accomplished sailor who owns her own El Toro and has crewed on a number of boats during the racing seasons.



HEADING OUT TO where the wind blows, the Arion leaves her berth at the San Francisco Yacht, Belvedere. At the helm is Triton skipper Sally Mathews, the president of the club's Women's Auxiliary who has sailed as a finalist in the Bay Area elimination series for the Women's National Sailing Chamiponship.

IT'S THE LITTLE things that count in winning a sailing race. And Rickie Treacy of the San Francisco Yacht Club is a top racing sailor who knows the importance of good equipment. Here she inspects the fittings on her Rhodes 19 as crew member Susie Wosser checks out the rigging to make sure all is in shipshape condition for the next big race. Such precautions can pay off when they're on the water and the wind is blowing strong.

It's Sea And Sails For Marin Women

ment on the mainsheet."

But conditions can frequently get rough, particularly on San Francisco Bay waters. One young woman, a former airline stewardess who frequently accompanies her husband out on the bay in an International Class sloop, describes with painful vividness the memory of an early outing:

"It was during a race on one of those miserably cold days. The boat kept pitching up and down in a really vicious chop and I sat there with water up to my waist and my feet braced against the sides of the cockpit. The boat was heeled over at a 75 degree angle and everytime I started to speak, I got a mouthful of salt water. Nothing in flying had prepared me for this experience . . ."

WHEN SHE had finished describing her harrowing adventure, our narrator rose briskly to her feet and proceeded to a nearby berth where her husband was preparing to set sail.

In answer to our look of surprise, she cheerfully explained: "That first experience should have scared me off, but it didn't. I love sailing. There's nothing quite like it . . ."

Despite similar experiences, more and more women are heading for the open sea.

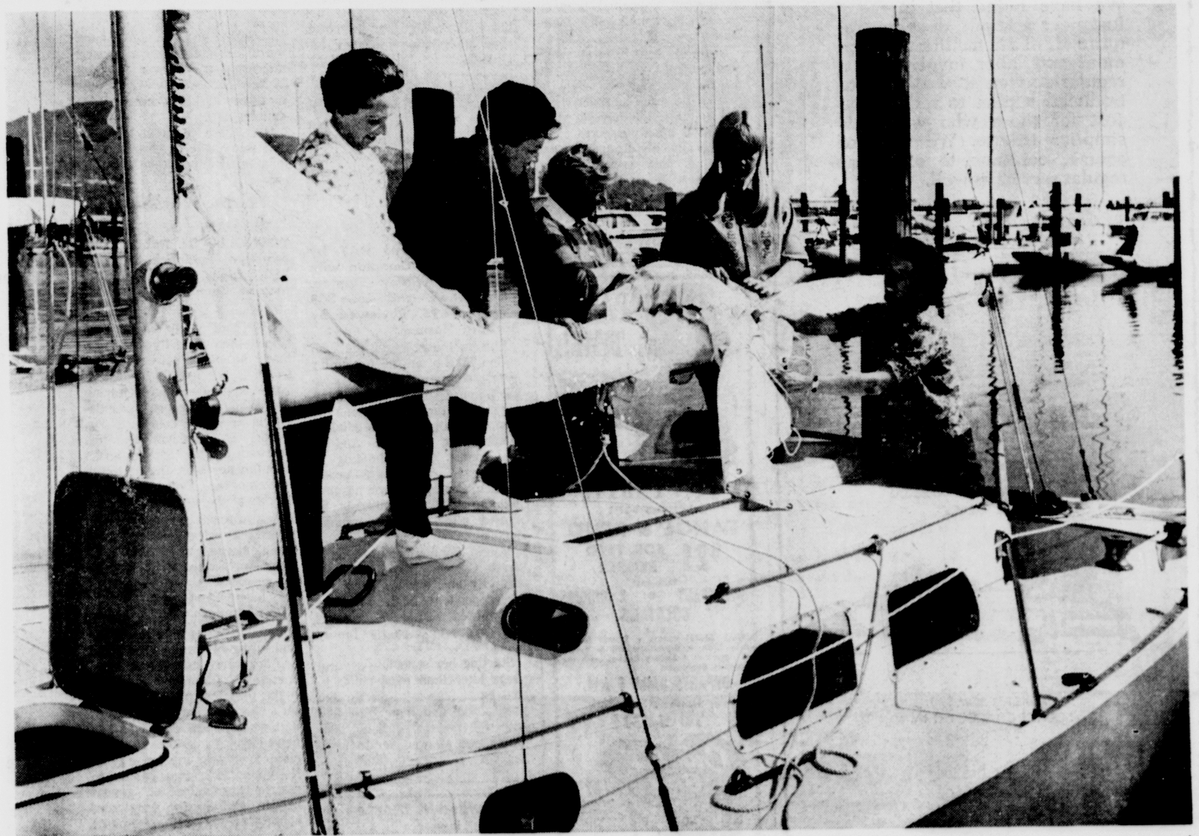
AS FOR getting wet, it seems that feminine ingenuity has come up with several answers to that problem as well. According to one veteran racer, a pair of washable wool socks are a boon for mid-winter sailing on the "frostbite circuit." Another woman sailor wears a headband under a snug fitting watch cap for protection against gusty breezes.

There are several lady skippers who find that a shower cap provides the perfect answer for keeping a hairdo intact.

At the San Francisco Yacht Club, an ambitious women's training program is under way to educate the newest crop of would-be sailors. Sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary and headed by auxiliary president Sally Mathews, the course includes six dockside theory classes and four sessions under sail in various types of boats.

THIS ENLISTMENT of new recruits comes at a time when interest in women's sailing is at an all-time high. One of the reasons for this is the recent announcement by the Adams Cup National Committee designating the San Francisco Bay area as the site for the 1966 Women's Sailing Championship finals. This is the first time in its history that the coveted trophy has come so temptingly close to Marin's home shores.

WITH WHITE SAILS billowing on a starboard tack, the Arion's all-girl crew test their skill against a stiff breeze off the Tiburon shoreline. For these women, one such exhilarating moment on the water is worth many hours of indoor study of sailing theory in the classroom.



ONE THE TRICKIER skills of sailing is learning how to rig a boat properly. Stowing, making up lines, coiling halyards and cleating — all these play an important part in the preliminary pre-sailing ritual that is familiar to all sailors. Triton skipper Sally Mathews, at right, gives final instructions to her crew as the feminine mariners prepare to get under way. Left to right, they are Rickey Treacy, Jean Vulte, Betty Potter, Susie Wosser and the skipper.

Our Reviewers And The New Reading

Plain Psychology

THE STRANGER INSIDE YOU by Edward V. Stein, Westminster Press, 144 pages, $3.75. Reviewed by Lee Cadwallader.

This book is addressed to the average man — more specifically, the layman who may have been exposed to one or two formal courses of psychology that left him "full of relatively useless information about salivating dogs, reflex arcs and (a)mazed mice — not quite enough to help you live with your boss, your kids, your spouse, or yourself."

Dr. Stein is now associate professor of pastoral psychology and dean of students at San Francisco Theological Seminary. He has been both pastor and psychology professor in the U.S. and the Philippines. His experience and education well qualifies him to offer the layman a map to guide him through the maze of his psyche in search for that which is unique in himself, or in more currently popular terms to help him establish his identity.

Stein is a scholar who addresses himself to the layman and surprisingly hits his mark. He writes clearly enough to be understood and entertainingly enough to hold your interest.

This is rare in a book of this type.

Relieving Tension

EMOTIONAL CRISES by Dr. Peter H. Stevens, Odyssey Press, 220 pages, $5. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Dr. Peter H. Stevens is a respected therapist in New York City, where he teaches psychology at New York University and serves as senior psychologist at that school's testing and advisement center.

In his book, he discusses some of the more serious emotional problems that confront us today —death of a loved one, addictions, fear of aging, job loss, unhappy love affairs, divorce, depression, unwanted pregnancy, fear of intellectual inadequacy, etc.

Using the case histories of his own patients as his base, the psychologist suggests steps to relieve the resulting inner stress and minimize the damage which we inflict upon ourselves.

Naturally, his discussions can serve as only broad, general guidelines. No two individuals, no two cases are alike. And specific advice must await specific details.

Thus, the Stevens book is offered only as a source of emergency "first aid." Real treatment of serious problems requires first-hand contact with the professional person. Dr. Stevens alludes to this frequently and suggests some of the sources where such assistance can be found.

Nazi Philosophy

GERMAN EXISTENTIALISM by Martin Heidegger, Philosophical Library, 58 pages, $2.75. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

If anyone wonders what those in German academic circles were thinking during the rise of Hitler's mad national socialism, this collection of Heidegger's speeches offers a partial answer.

Most professional philosophers in Germany did not oppose national socialism, but Heidegger, a leading professor of philosophy, went further and was a full-fledged supporter of Hitler.

No one can accurately measure the influence of one "thinker" on a society, but Heidegger's attitude certainly influenced his students.

The importance of Heidegger's contribution to national socialism was not overlooked by Hitler, who is quoted as saying that without the German students he could not have won his battle.

One wonders how a philosopher can support a regime that burns books and carries out a race annihilation program, but Heidegger skillfully merged his theories with Hitler's political and social aims.

The book, translated by Dagobert D. Runes, is concise, but covers the ground from Heidegger's lectures and addresses, newspaper editorials and news stories.

YOUNG African Legson Kayira literally walked halfway around the world to America for his education, setting out on foot from his village in Malawi with a Bible, the clothing on his back and a few handfuls of flour. The story of his trip, "I Will Try," is to be published this week by Doubleday.

Woman Doctor

LOOK TO THIS DAY by Nardi Reeder Campion with Rosamund Wilfley Stanton, Little Brown and Co., 308 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

This is the story of the education of the one of America's great woman doctors — Connie Guion, who came from humble circumstances to become the first woman professor of clinical medicine in America. And of the Connie Guion Building of the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center, the first hospital building in the country to be named after a living woman doctor.

Young Connie grew up on a North Carolina farm far from any city and learned early the interdependence of the people as she worked with her 11 brothers and sisters to keep the family going.

Starting her schooling several years later than most children, she came through Northridge prep school and later Wellesley with a determination if not brilliance that allowed her to work her way through Cornell Medical School and, standing at the top of her class, into a coveted internship at Bellevue Hospital in New York, where women doctors were barely accepted and a definite rarity.

It is these years of hardship and study that the book details in a fairly interesting way.

Youth Worshipers

THE ART OF STAYING YOUNG by Dr. Robert Alan Franklyn, Frederick Fell Inc., 250 pages. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Nowhere else is feminine beauty and youth more worshiped than in Hollywood. And many an aging actress' best friend is her plastic surgeon.

One of the best known among the cosmetic surgeons practicing in the film colony is Dr. Robert A. Franklyn, who has followed up his earlier books with this new one offering to the women of the country the beauty secrets of the Hollywood stars.

Few women can help but be interested in the details of how the glamorous on the entertainment world ward off the effects of age with surgery, medicine and beauty practices.

And while his discussions of such subjects as skin injections and surgery to remove the facial sag are interesting, the average woman is far more likely to make practical use of the doctor's sound advice on cosmetics, bathing, diet and exercise. You don't have to worship youth and cling to it with the tenacity of Hollywood's leading ladies to realize the value of good health. And in the long run, nothing preserves the woman's looks as much as simple good health and grooming.

There Dr. Franklyn can help us all without us having to go near the knife or needle.

Written Legacy Of A Remarkable Man

By DON KEOWN

JOURNAL OF A SOUL by Pope John XXIII, McGraw-Hill Book Co., 453 pages, $7.95.

JAZZ COUNTRY by Nat Hentoff, Harper & Row, 146 pages, $2.95.

"The whole world is my family," wrote Pope John XXIII in his "Journal of a Soul," one of the most remarkable documents of the 20th Century by one of our era's most extraordinary personages.

This ecumenical approach to his vast responsibilities, along with his piety, wisdom, humility and unstinting concern for and service to humanity were to make this Pope as beloved to peoples of other religions, or of no religion, as he was to his own huge flock.

And, while he held the papal reins but momentarily as time is counted in the Vatican, it was to insure his lasting influence of a most benevolent kind upon the world's future course.

"Journal of a Soul" includes not only the diary that Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli began at 14 as a young seminarian, but other significant writings including letters, his will, some biographical notes, several of his prayers, a set of "rules for the ascetic life" and an accumulation of thoughts and aphorisms.

Through all this shines the constant striving of a rare individual for spiritual perfection. And along with that devoutness, a brilliant grasp of man's temporal needs and yearnings.

"The two great evils which are poisoning the world today are secularism and nationalism," he wrote. And "we are living through great events, and chaos lies ahead. This makes it all the more necessary to return to those principles which are the foundation of the Christian social order . . ." And "since the Lord chose me, unworthy as I am, for this great service, I feel that I have no longer any special ties in this life . . . The whole world is my family. This sense of belonging to everyone must give character and vigour to my mind, my heart and my actions."

He wrote, too: ". . . the example of Jesus is more closely followed in the most appealing simplicity, not dissociated from the God-given prudence of wise and holy men. Wisacres may show disrespect, if not scorn, for the simple man . . . But those wiseacres are of no account . . . The 'simple, God-fearing man' is always the worthiest and the strongest."

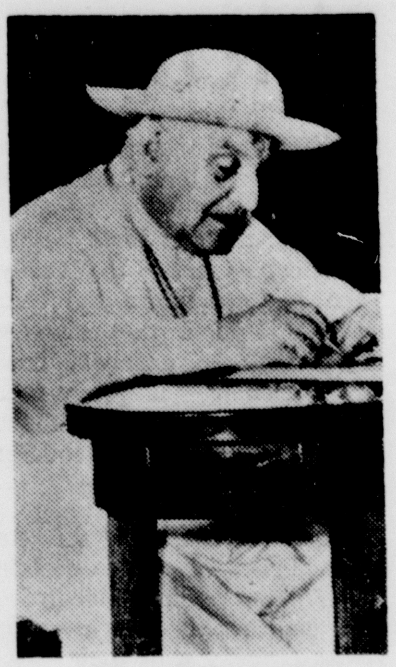
Guided by unquestioning devotion to and faith in his Lord, by a philosophy of "love for my neighbor, unswerving and most patient," a willingness to toil and sacrifice for that philosophy, a basic simplicity and humility of awesome genuineness, the man born Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli of peasant stock became the prince of his church and the world's most important religious leader and spokesman at a time when his unique attributes were most sorely needed. It was typical of his foresight that he should leave among his many lasting legacies to his "family" this inspiring written record of his most intimate thoughts and principles.

NAT HENTOFF is a strongly opinionated, often caustic commentator and critic who writes about jazz with authority and about the broad American social scene with bite and uncompromising honesty.

His "Jazz Country" is billed as a novel, but it reads more like a case history that Hentoff has created to illustrate some of his observations and theories.

Teen-age musician Tom Curtis, white, son of a wealthy corporation lawyer, must choose between a college education, or the uncertainties of a career in jazz.

Foremost in his mind are the questions: Can a white man really make it in jazz? And even if the answer to that query is "yes," will the limitations of his own background disqualify him from a music so closely associated with trial and tribulation?



POPE JOHN XXIII
His "family"—the world

In his quest for the answers, Tom learns not only a great deal about Negro jazz musicians and big city life, but also about himself.

No less than Dizzy Gillespie testifies to the authenticity with which Hentoff has presented the life and feelings of the black jazz musician. Yet, the short novel reads more like an argument for Hentoff's social views than like a story. Characters are too obviously manipulated to make his points. Still, those Hentoff views are interesting, incisive, provocative, disturbing.

THE MONTH OF THE PEARL by Philip Jones, Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 180 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.

The Englishman called Medwin, under cover of working for a British tourist agency, roams Europe as a professional assassin. His target, and he hopes his last—so he can retire to the English countryside — is Alan Barclay, a member of the British Foreign Office.

Changing names and passports, Medwin flies to Rome and waits his chance to kill. His victim knows he's being readied for slaughter by persons unknown. While his superiors ready an apartment and guard for him in Rome, Barclay drinks and suns himself in Capri. He meets Brenda Malline, and falls in love.

His life and hers almost complete a circle with Medwin a mysterious and deadly element at the center. But who would suspect Medwin, soft-voiced drinker of tomato juice? There's a scream and Barclay falls from his balcony. Medwin starts his retirement in England.

But someone doesn't want him to quit — the man behind the scenes who always gives him killer instructions. Barclay's associates, with the help of a young Italian detective, track down that someone. There is a satisfying, surprising and suspenseful ending.

This is an unusually good suspense novel, with an international setting, perfectly and accurately described. The characters are real, personable, believable. One wants to hear from Philip Jones again.

Stereo Hi-Fi

By C. J. Catania

Did you know that one of the world's largest high fidelity installations is at the New York World's Fair? The world's largest carillon, installed in the 120 foot Coca-Cola Tower uses 35 specially designed University projectors. These sound reproducers project the bell tones from the Tower to every corner of the 700 acre fairgrounds.

These custom units were built by University to the extremely exacting specifications from Schulmerich's to cover the full range and frequency – from lows, through mid-range – to highs. The Hi-Fi effect is so true, that it becomes difficult to believe the bells are not large traditional cast bells which would have weighed in excess of 500,000 pounds). Instead, 610 miniature bells were used. Metal hammers strike these bells producing barely audible sounds which are amplified by 3600 watts of audio amplification, achieving a full bass response down to 50 cps with a range as high as 15,000 cps.

Did you know that IRS, Internal Revenue Service, imposed a 10% excise tax on all furniture designed and sold for housing radio equipment, and that this tax has been in effect since last October? Did you know that IRS was to place in effect a similar 10% excise tax on all loudspeakers, loudspeaker systems, and on amplifiers sold after April 1, 1965? Fortunately, this last tax has been delayed until July 1st.

NEW PRODUCTS. Another barrier has been crashed by Ampex. This week they introduce a quality stereo tape recorder, all solid state–transistorized–4 track record, 4 track play for less than $300. Some of the many features: uncomplicated straight line threading; simplified operation with all controls clearly marked; versatile 3-speed operation; accurate record level VU meters; interlocked tape controls; lifetime Ampex deep-gap heads; automatic shut-off switch; tape lifters; automatic digital counter; and top mounted microphone inputs. The prices of the three 800 series models cannot be advertised except for the List prices, but they are well below $300. Visit our Tape Recorder Room for a demonstration.

Two By Marin Authors

Two more books by Marin's busy authors of books for the junior readers have been published.

All three writers involved have had previous successes in the field.

Marin author Lillian Pohlmann has used a European trip that took her and her husband into Lapland for background material for her interesting "The Summer of the White Reindeer" (Westminster, $3.50). Intended for readers 8 to 11, it tells of young Jay's experiences when he accompanies his scientist father and the remainder of his family to that land of the midnight sun on a research project. At first, Jay's adjustment comes none too easily. Then he encounters the reindeer in trouble that changes everything. An excellent book for introducing youngsters to a strange and remote land—and also to some of the tenderer facts of life.

Lagunitas residents Adrien Stoutenburg and Laura Nelson Baker have again collaborated on a high quality biography for young readers with their "Explorer of the Unconscious: Sigmund Freud" (Scribner's, $3.95). The greatest value of this book on the highly controversial father of psychoanalysis lies in its objectivity. Controversial issues are not avoided, yet they are kept in proportion to the overall life and contributions of the man. As always, the authors have been thorough and scholarly in their research, resulting in a book lucid enough for young readers and yet so accurate as to be unquestionably of value to adults. In addition to the index, there is a chronological calendar and a glossary.

Some New Books For The Junior Readers

Some new books for the junior readers:

"All About the Universe" by David Dietz (Random House, $1.95) is part of that publishing house's excellent and moderately-priced "All-About Books" series. Pulitzer Prize winner Dietz covers the discoveries by which man has been able to peer farther and farther into outer space, even before he could venture in person into those vast reaches. Dietz also presents the theories that have resulted from these studies. Diagrams and photographs by John Polgreen provide strikingly informative illustrations. A fine book for youngsters whose curiosity has been aroused by the international emphasis upon space, but they should be forewarned that this is a field in which rapid changes are occurring in techniques and thinking.

Active small boys have no trouble identifying with Dale Bick Carlson's livewire character Perkins. In "The House of Perkins" (Doubleday, $2.95), Carlson involves his young hero in a tree house project that has repercussions inside the Jones house. From there, Perkins and his friends go on to other hilarious misadventures that are certain to keep boys of the third, fourth and fifth grade levels well entertained.

"No Dessert Until You've Finished Your Mashed Potatoes" by William O'Brian (Random House, $1.95) will bring a chuckle from young readers, 10 to 15. Most of the comic pictures and amusing captions will cause the grown-up to smile, too, as he looks through the eyes of a youngster at some of the problems he faces with adults. Some of the situations pictured are funny, others appear slightly overwhelming — if you're only four feet high.

"Piper, Pipe That Song Again" edited by Nancy Larrick (Random House, $2.95) is a jolly book, a collection of poems of the type that boys and girls enjoy reading and hearing over and over again. Selections range from Christopher Morley and William Wordsworth to Ogden Nash and John Ciardi. The poems are marked by the lilting, catchy melody that so appeals to the youngsters. And Kelly Oechsli has added fresh, appealing little drawings. A book of exceptional merit for early readers.

"Ghost Hound of Thunder Valley" by Ewart A. Autrey (Dodd, Mead, $3.50) is a boy's book of extraordinary merit, winner of the publisher's Librarian and Teacher Prize Competition. It is the well-written, sensitive story of a dog, the runt of a litter of foxhounds, brought up by wild foxes, and of the boy who befriends him. The author is a resident of northern Mississippi's fox-hunting country, and he knows his subject well. He also has the ability to transmit that knowledge in terms which the young boy will understand and appreciate.

"The Brownies: Their Book" by Palmer Cox (Dover, $1.50) in durable paperback is the first reprint of a highly successful series originally published before 1924. These 24 episodes about elves at the zoo, the toy shop, the circus, etc., can recall great fun for the adult who shares this book with his child, and at the same time provide the child another coveted glimpse into the childhood of his parents similar to the one he gets when he reads "Alice in Wonderland" or "The Wizard of Oz."

NEW SURVEY SETTLES THE QUESTION:

"When you have an accident, who is more likely to help you—an independent agent or a one-company salesman?"

ANSWER:

An independent agent, by a big margin.

The National Association of Insurance Agents asked an impartial, nationally recognized research organization to accurately measure the difference. Here is what their research showed:

9 out of 10 independent agents help with claims.
A far lower percentage of other agents do.

This research proved that The Big Difference in insurance is the continuing, personal attention of an independent agent.

To insure your car, home, or business through an independent agent, look for this seal. Only an independent agent—a man pledged to help you when you have a loss—can display it.

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER
KBRG Program Manager

COLLABORATION—The Modern Jazz Quartet with Laurindo Almeida—Atlantic Stereo 1429:

At the 1963 Monterey Jazz Festival, guitarist Almeida got together with the MJQ for a delightful period of music-making. Later Almeida went on European tour with the group and they met with great success, playing for audiences about evenly divided between classical and jazz fans.

There is a swing version of J. S. Bach here too, a "Fugue in A Minor," in addition to three John Lewis originals and two bossa nova items. The main work is the adagio movement of Rodrigo's "Concierto de Aranjuez" in a sensitive and stately version for the MJQ with the original guitar part left untouched.

This is the music already introduced to jazz fans on Miles Davis' "Sketches of Spain" LP, and is another completely successful marriage of classical and jazz elements.

HIDDEN FEAR

To know a whimpering cry;
To taste the tears
Of one who wants to die;

To touch his velvet hopes
And feel the rough
Wet velvet as he gropes;

To wonder with him why
He can't look us
In the face—eye to eye;

To hear his lively song
But watch his eyes
Stare at the grave so long;

Believe with him his dreams
But don't pretend
He fears more than it seems.

His hands must take the plow
—Life put it there.
Needs your help—needs it now.

SAN RAFAEL — JOYCE ECKREM

PHILOSOPHY CLASS

Question:
Who am I?

Joy:
I am a chisel
Carving the marble of reality
Into the statue of dreams.

Despair:
I am a chiseler
Starving the marvel of reality
Into the spectre of illusion.

Innocence:
I don't understand the question.

NOVATO — BARBARA FLYNN

ANOTHER THOUGHT

Sometimes my inner voice doth cry
At things beholden by the eye,
At other times shouts admiration
For some deed done, yet did I ration
The saying of a word or two
Like "That's well done" or "I thank You"?

What It Means To 'Snap Chalk Lines'

"I do not scream easily," says this indignant woman, "but there is only so much a lady can stand. And I most certainly will scream the next time I pick up a newspaper or magazine or book and find that the instructions for determining the center of a room say to 'snap chalk lines' and let it go at that.

"Please, please, tell a fairly handy member of the female sex exactly how to go about snapping chalk lines. I need the information because I expect to be putting down some vinyl asbestos tile any day now."

OKAY. FIRST, you need some chalk and some cord. Then you have to chalk the cord.

And before you say "How's that again?," this merely means drawing the cord across the chalk until it has a powdery surface along its length.

When you buy your tile, you can get a small kit that includes the chalk and cord along with a putty knife and adhesive spreader. Or you can use almost any piece of cord and any kind of chalk.

NEXT, MEASURE along one wall of the room and make a mark on the floor at the center. Drive a long nail into the floor at that point, just far enough so that it holds. Do exactly the same thing at the opposite wall. Now take the chalked cord, tie one end to the top of the nail and the other end to the top of the other nail.

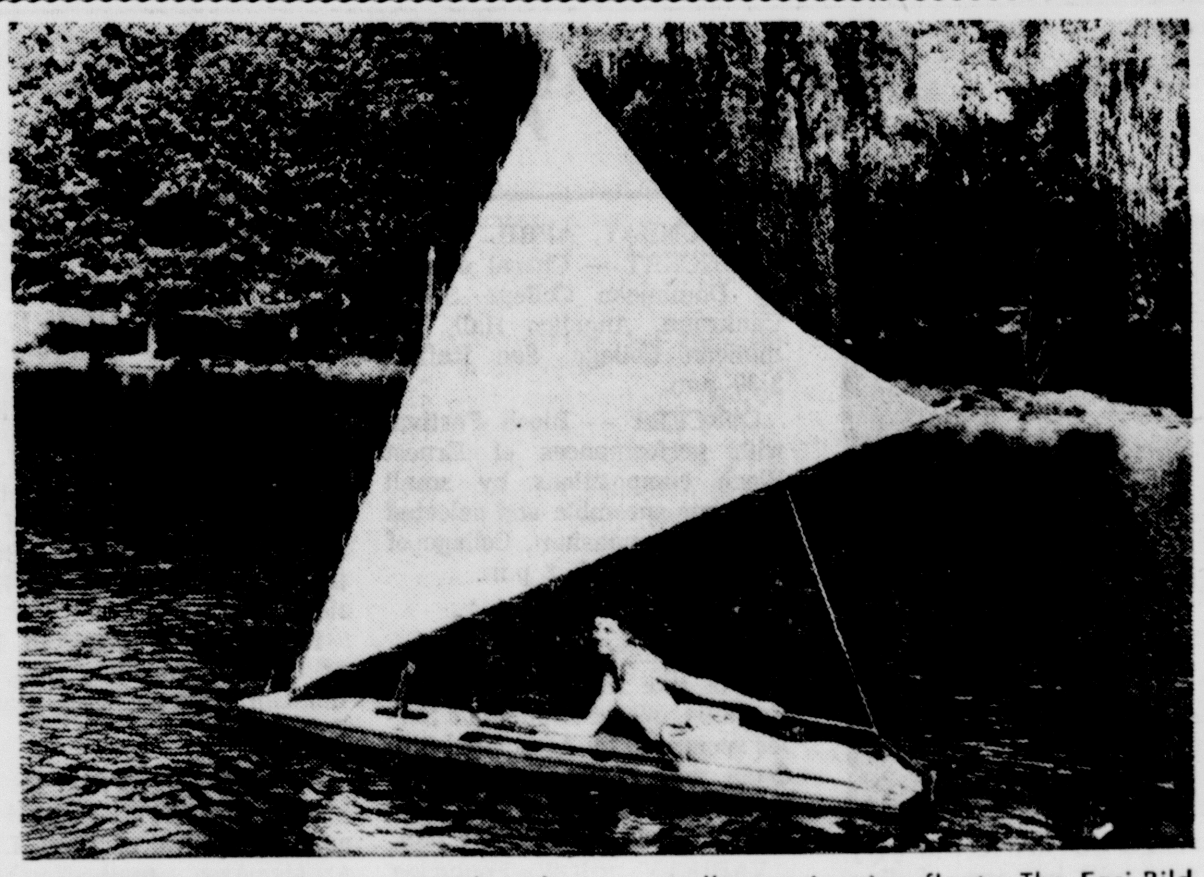
You now have a cord stretching across the room an inch or two above the floor. Be sure that it is taut. You now will find that if you lift up that cord and then let it go with a snap that it will leave a chalk line across the floor.

Do exactly the same thing at the other two opposite walls. The chalk lines will cross at the center of the room. And you can go ahead with your floor tiling.

THE WHOLE idea of finding the center of a room is to wind up with even borders when you complete your tiling. So, when you've found the center, start there and place uncemented tiles in two rows, one to a side wall, one to an end wall.

Measure the distance between the wall and the end tile in each row. If the distance is less than two inches or more than eight inches, move the chalk line opposite that wall four and one-half inches closer to it. Repeat this procedure with the other row of tiles.

This is one of the little things (it takes only a few minutes) that will make your finished job have a professional look.



A SCOOTER that sails can provide a lot of water fun. Especially popular in eastern resorts, they can be useful to the novice just learning to swim or sail. They can be substituted for the surfboard in riding the breakers. And without the sail, rudder and centerboard, they make excellent swimming floats. The Easi-Bild pattern for the construction of the light, yet sturdy craft can be obtained by sending $1.50 to Independent-Journal, P.O. Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., and asking for Sail Scooter Pattern No. 248. Materials are readily available in lumberyards and marine supply stores.

An Oft-Forgotten Ornamental That Bears Fruit Is The Guava

When we think of ornamentals that combine beauty with delicious fruit we usually think of the citrus trees—the orange, lemon, lime—or some of the deciduous flowering cherries or peaches that have been developed.

Certainly they are useful both for beauty and for the fruit they provide. But there are less well known, less frequently used ornamentals that yield fruit still relatively used. These are the Guavas, which can be eaten out of hand like a plum.

The so-called Guavas actually are not all of the same family or even of the same characteristics, but such are the vagaries of common names.

THE STRAWBERRY Guava is named for the fruits or "berries" that appear after late spring bloom. The shrub actually gets as high as 10 feet and can be shaped into a small, round-topped tree. Usually, however, it is used as a shrub in the background of borders or alone as a specimen plant. Its large, glossy evergreen foliage is always handsome and the one-inch white flowers with bright golden stamens put on a spring show calculated to brighten any corner.

The Guava is particularly at home with plantings of native shrubs or groundcovers.

There is the Red Strawberry Guava and the Yellow Strawberry Guava, both with fruits that can be eaten out of hand, although they are slightly tart to the taste. They are excellent for jams and jellies.

TO GET THE best fruit you will have to pick a sunny spot, for they do appreciate heat. They also like to be kept on the dry side—not too much water—hence their ability to get along with the natives.

The Lemon Guava is very much like its Strawberry cousins but tends to be more open rather than compact and bushy. However, by pruning a little, or better still, pinching off the tips with thumb and finger when the shoots are young and tender, you can make it grow bushy and compact.

The fruits on the Lemon Guava are slightly larger (up to two inches long) and have a lemony flavor, as you might have suspected. Some people like the slightly acid flavor and some find it too much for them to eat as you would a ripe plum, but whether you want to eat them right off the bush or not, you can always use them for jams and jellies. This seems to bring out the delicate lemon flavor.

THE LEMON GUAVA definitely wants to remain in the background. Not that it isn't handsome, it is, but it doesn't want to be kept small enough to come forward.

Perhaps the most valuable quality of the Guavas is this combination of ornamental beauty and the fact that anyone can eat the fruits safely as they become bright and ripe. Children tend to pick berries and fruits from shrubs and trees and this time they can pick and eat them without harm!

For a rather tropical effect, you can try the Pineapple Guava, which is not of the same family as the previous Guavas we've met but is very ornamental and has tasty fruits very like the Lemon Guava only with pineapple flavor.

IF YOU LET it, and it likes your garden, the Pineapple Guava will get up to 16 feet, but you can easily clip it to suit your purposes. It will become a bushy, compact shrub, if that's what you want. The gray-green foliage is lighter on the underside than on top so it makes a wonderful contrast with the Strawberry Guava.

The flowers, too, are quite different. The petals are quite fleshy, a white with purplish tinge and as they open they show dark red stamens that make quite a show—almost as bright as a Bottlebrush. They not only do well as foundation plantings where you have lots of foundation to hide, or as background plants.

These go-everywhere Guavas have the delightful quality of producing in areas that get both as cold as 15 degrees and hot as a furnace. The Pineapple Guava, however, may not produce fruit in Bay Area localities where the fog persists. They'll still be ornamental enough, however, to deserve planting.

ORIENTAL DESIGN and American materials can be combined into some interesting outdoor structures. This garden gate is an adaptation of a Japanese Shinto shrine entrance. The fence is made of natural-color, whitish mineral fiber sheets, inexpensive and easily maintained, and contrasting handsomely with the redwood framing to which it is nailed. Pre-finished sheets in other colors could be combined with the painted frame to give many different effects.

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓ If you've been passing up azaleas because you can't give them shade, ask your nurseryman about the Sun Azaleas, or Southern Indicas, that actually prefer a good amount of sun.

✓ Lily of the Nile (agapanthus) can be planted now in sun. It likes loamy soil, but will grow in heavy soils under poor conditions and still produce its free-blooming tall clusters of blue or white flowers. If you want a small form of this showy summer bulb, ask for the variety, "Peter Pan." Clusters of deep blue flowers only eight to 10 inches high. Terrific in rock gardens or borders.

✓ Set out citrus this month in a well drained sunny location that's protected from wind. The very popular dwarfs make excellent container plants. Both dwarf and tall kinds can be trained as espaliers.

✓ Don't depend on April showers to do your watering for you. Instead, pay close attention to deep, regular watering as temperatures increase. Plants need constant moisture to support soft, young growth.

✓ Set out trees and shrubs from containers now. For an excellent, low ground cover, ask your nurseryman about the new "Blue Carpet" juniper. It's an intense, silvery, blue-green color and grows no higher than 10 to 12 inches. Highly drought resistant.

✓ Keep faded blooms picked from your camellias.

WEEKEND SHOWS

Two Nurses At Work In Malaya

Two young Peace Corps nurses serving in one of the world's most under-developed areas, on a Malayan island, are the subjects of tonight's television special, "Mission to Malaya," to be seen at 9:30 o'clock on KGO-TV.

It is the second in "The Daring Americans" series and promises to be an absorbing documentary.

Among the movies this evening will be the Hall Wallis production, "Wild Is the Wind," with Anthony Quinn, Anthony Franciosa and Anna Magnani. KRON will carry it at 9 o'clock.

An Alec Guinness comedy, "All at Sea" will be seen on KGO at 11:15. Burt Lancaster plays the title role in "Jim Thorpe, All America..' on KTVU at 8 p.m. Richard Burton is one of the stars of "Sea Wife" on KRON at 6.

On KQED tonight at 7, a new series, "Dollar Diplomacy," on U.S. foreign aid, will begin. More of the Pacem in Terris Convocation will be carried at 9 p.m. And additional finalists in the Oakland Symphony Young Artists Contest will be heard at 8:30.

TOMORROW'S second day program in the University of California symposium on "The Uncertain Quest: The Dilemmas of Sex Education" will be carried by KQED with sessions at 9 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.

At 12:30 p.m., the same channel will show "Every Tenth Man: A Study of Homosexuality," a production of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

Palm Sunday and Passover will be observed on TV with: Palm Sunday mass from St. Peter in Chains Cathedral, Cincinnati, on KRON at 8 a.m.; a drama and music adaptation of the book "The Terezin Requiem" as a Passover special on KPIX at 8 a.m.; a performance of the Passover opera "The Final Ingredient" on KGO at 1 p.m.; premiere hearings of two new works by composer Stuart Sacks on "Camera Three" on KPIX at 9 a.m.; and two Passover programs on KRON, one with Jan Peerce at 10 a.m. and another locally produced at 10:30 a.m.

In sports, the Masters Golf Tournament will be on KPIX at 1 p.m., followed by collegiate gymnastics at 2:30. KGO will continue its coverage of National Basketball Assn. playoffs at 2. "Requiem for an Arena" (the Polo Grounds) will be a special on KGO at 4.

Socialism's Norman Thomas will be interviewed on "The 20th Century" on KPIX at 6 p.m. Beethoven's "Symphony No. 7" is on the Boston Symphony program on KGO at noon. Cab Calloway appears on "The Ed Sullivan Show" on KPIX at 8 p.m.

The movies include James Mason in "The Decks Ran Wild" on KTVU at 7 p.m., Gregory Peck in "The Big Country" on KGO at 9 p.m., James Stewart in "No Highway in the Sky" on the same channel at 5:30 and Kurt Jurgens and Maria Schell in "Duel in the Forest" on KRON at 11 o'clock.

"MISSION TO MALAYA," a Purex Special presentation in "The Daring American" series, to be seen on KGO-TV tonight at 9:30 o'clock, tells the story of two Peace Corps nurses, Marjorie Benning, at left on a motorcycle while on duty on an island near Malaya, and Rita Franzone, whom Miss Benning replaced and who is seen at right at her wedding to John Hurley. Hurley was also a Peace Corps worker whom Rita met while serving in Malaya.
